	Chapter 6: Court Involvement	Effective Date: January 1, 2009
	Section 13: Voluntary Termination of Parental Rights (TPR)	Version: 2

POLICY

The Indiana Department of Child Services (DCS) will evaluate, on a case-by-case basis, whether it is in the best interest of the child to accept Voluntary Termination of Parental Rights (TPR) consents.

Note: Caution is urged in taking the consent from the mother of a newborn child too quickly. Consents must not be taken within the first 48 hours after birth. See Related Information for further details.

PROCEDURE

The Family Case Manager (FCM) will:

1. Communicate with the parent to determine the basis of his or her request for Voluntary TPR;

Note: If the child is a newborn, discuss other options (e.g., adoption, guardianship, etc.) with the parent and discuss the consequences of Voluntary TPR.

2. Consult with his or her Supervisor, the Division Manager, DCS Local Office Director, and the DCS Local Office Attorney to determine if Voluntary TPR is in the best interest of the child;
3. Ensure that the DCS Local Office Attorney completes the appropriate paperwork for Voluntary TPR, including the Voluntary Relinquishment of Parental Rights \(SF 1258 \(CW 1351\)\), court petition, family medical history, and adoption registry;
4. Enter the hearing and decree date of the petition in the Indiana Child Welfare Information System (ICWIS); and
5. [NEW] In the Eligibility Module in ICWIS, update the reason for lack of parental support and care on the Deprivation screen to reflect that the parent's rights have been terminated.

The Supervisor, Division Manager or DCS Local Office Director, will discuss the specifics of the case with the FCM and arrive at a decision about the appropriateness of Voluntary TPR.

The Supervisor will:

1. Assist the FCM in preparing for the Voluntary TPR process; and
2. Ensure that ICWIS is updated in a timely manner.

PRACTICE GUIDANCE

In making the decision to accept a Voluntary TPR, DCS will consider whether the child could receive child support, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), or other benefits from the parents whether or not the parent is physically present in the child's life.

RELATED INFORMATION

Legal Rights of the Parent(s)

The DCS Local Office Attorney and FCM will advise the parent of his or her legal and constitutional rights and of the consequences of Voluntary TPR.

Discussing Options and Consequences with Parent(s) of a Newborn Child

Before taking written consent, DCS has a responsibility to discuss with the birth parent(s) other options available to them as well as the ramifications of Voluntary TPR and adoptive placement.

Consequences of Voluntary Termination of Parental Rights

Consent for Voluntary TPR is permanent. It is irrevocable and cannot be set aside unless the consent was obtained under fraud or duress or the parent is incompetent.

Termination by the court means that all rights, powers, privileges, immunities, duties and obligations, including rights to custody, control, visitation, or support relative to the relationship are permanently ended. Therefore, the consent of the parents is no longer required in order for the child to be adopted.

[NEW] Parental Support and Care

Lack of parental support and care, which is referred to as "deprivation", is one of the requirements for a child to be eligible for federal funding that covers some of the costs of substitute care and DCS's administrative expenditures. Termination of parental rights should be documented on the 'Deprivation' screen in the Eligibility Module of ICWIS as this establishes an ongoing reason for the child to be considered deprived of parental support and care. Every six (6) months when ICWIS requires a redetermination of the child's income, resources and deprivation, the court order for TPR can serve as the verification for deprivation.
