

Timber Rattlesnake

State Endangered

Can be confused with

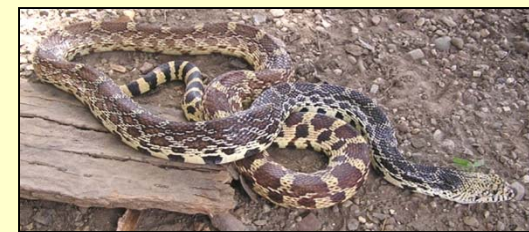

Eastern Hognose

When threatened, some species of nonvenomous snakes will put on displays to make themselves appear more intimidating. These displays include flattening out the body, raising up or rattling the tail.

Gray Ratsnake

Bullsnake

Some large snakes can be confused with the Timber Rattlesnake due to size and similar coloration.