LSC Communications of Crawfordsville is a ‘STAR’ of Workplace Safety and Health

INDIANAPOLIS (June 30, 2017) – LSC Communications North Plant of Crawfordsville, Ind. achieved recertification as a ‘STAR’ site in Indiana’s Voluntary Protection Program (VPP). LSC Communications is recertified for continuing and expanding excellence in workplace safety and health programs.

“LSC Communications prioritizes the safety and health of its employees, which makes for a great role model for other companies in the industry,” said Indiana Department of Labor Commissioner Rick J. Ruble. “Managers and employees at this international company understand how to succeed by protecting themselves and each other while getting the job done.”

LSC's traditional and digital print-related services and office products serve the needs of publishers, merchandisers and retailers around the world. The company is part of the LSC Communications Inc., which employs more than 20,000 across the globe. Crawfordsville’s North Plant is operated by a team of approximately 100 Hoosier employees.

Part of promoting an exceptional culture of occupational safety and health, the North Plant has created several employee incentive programs to incorporate safety and community involvement. Employees actively participate in the Crawfordsville Area Safety Action Team, along with “B SAFE” Hazard Recognition and Near Miss Reporting program. Lastly, they created a “Lead & Shine” breakfast to provide managers an opportunity to reward employees who go above and beyond safety and housekeeping expectations.

“LSC in Crawfordsville demonstrates a proven success plan at keeping their team safe,” said Commissioner Ruble. “Their workplace accident and incident rate continues to remain low.”

For the last recorded three-year average, the North Plant’s Total Case Incident Rate (TCIR) was 1.5, less than half the industry average of 3.2.

About the Indiana Department of Labor:
