Current Situation

No significant rain is forecasted for the next couple days. Flooding continues to be an issue throughout the affected counties. The Indiana State Emergency Operations Center remains activated to monitor conditions and provide resource to support to local agencies.

The state EOC has requested FEMA to send a logistics expert to assist with requests, has requested the Army Corp of Engineers to send a coordination /support staff person and was notified of a fuel supply shortage in the counties bordering Louisville and Cincinnati.

The dam at Lake Dalecarlia continues to hold and water is receding below the roadway. Indiana Department of Natural Resources (IDNR) Water Division continues to express concerns regarding the structure integrity of the dam and potential long term issues. Local fire department personnel continue to monitor.

Flooding of sections of Interstate 80/94 (from IL state line through Lake County), a major thoroughfare from Chicago east across Indiana, continues to be a priority. Crews and pumps are working around the clock.

The Crawford County EMA reported that the elementary school is setting up food operations. Numerous counties in District 10 (southwest corner of Indiana) are assisting Crawford County by providing generators, food, equipment and manpower. Additional police patrols will be held in Crawford County. Two State Troopers will be on patrol. ISP Troopers will also be providing security at the fairgrounds when the water distribution begins.

Washington Co. reported mass care issues regarding feeding people still without power. The Salvation Army and a local church are assisting.

Dearborn County reported that 4,000-5,000 residents are still without power and may not be restored until Friday and Saturday. Most of the gas stations have run out of fuel. Distributors have also run out of fuel.

Jennings County Emergency Management Agency reported 80% of the county is without power and earliest restoration is Saturday. Need water for Lovett and Marion townships. Running low on fuel in the county and starting to ration fuel. Have temporary shelter and may need to have it go to a full shelter facility.

LaGrange County is back to normal. No issues, no requests.

The Civil Air Patrol and the American Red Cross in Warrick County are handing out food.

Boil orders continue for Scott, Brown and St Joseph counties. Power outages in southern counties have created water production shortages. Finding additional generator sources for water facilities and fuel re-supply, as well as providing drinking water resources, are of top priority. Harrison and Crawford Co. have little water pressure due to power outages and will be receiving additional water.

The American Red Cross has a total of 5 shelters open in Clark, Lake, Jennings, and Washington counties. Scott County shelter supported by the Salvation Army for citizens with power needs (oxygen machines for example).

Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission (IURC) reports 100,749 customers are still without power.
