Adopted Budget History 2006-2010

Prepared by the Department of Local Government Finance
April 5, 2010

Key Findings

Growth in budgets and additional appropriations adopted by local units of government has slowed overall between 2006 and 2009. Statewide, units adopted budget increases of 4.2% in 2007, 3.7% in 2008, and 1.2% in 2009. This results in an average annual percentage increase for the four years of 3.0%. These correspond to nominal increases of $724M for 2007, $651M in 2008, and $212M in 2009. While budgets adopted by local units, as well as additional appropriation adoptions, are subject to adjustment by the Department, the slowed growth provides evidence of enhanced fiscal constraint at the local level over the time-span presented. Significant variation exists in the budget adoption growth of individual units.

For the 87 counties with completed budget work for 2010 this far, the average decrease in adopted budgets and additional appropriations recorded to date is 3.9%. Despite some counties showing large increase (Jasper at 12.3% from 2009 to 2010, Brown at 7.8%, Benton at 6.5%, Switzerland at 6.4%, and Decatur at 6.0%), all other reporting counties have growth rates that do not exceed 5%. In 67 of the 87 counties reporting as of the date of this report, the units have adopted lower budgets and additional appropriations than the previous year. It is important to note that units have until December 15, 2010 to file petitions for additional appropriations for Department approval, and so these figures will be updated throughout the 2010 budget year.

Data and Methodology

Budgets (or “appropriations”) are adopted by the fiscal bodies of local units of government. They are subject to the adjustment and approval of the Department, which issues a final certified budget in the Budget Order. Also, local units of government may petition the Department for additional appropriations throughout the budget year; these must be adopted by ordinance and submitted to the Department’s Budget Division not later than December 15 of each budget year. This report analyzes the budgets adopted by the local units (as reported to the Department), plus any additional appropriation requested amounts, rather than those certified by the Department during the budget order certification process. The county and statewide overall percentage changes compare the total appropriations as adopted, including any additional appropriation requests, for all units for the first year and compare it to the same figures for all units for the second year. For 2010 budgets, the statewide percentage change compares the 2010 totals to the 2009 subtotals for the reporting units only. For the county-level unit, welfare funds were excluded from all years in order to remove the bias from the state assumption of welfare costs in 2009. Since the deadline for 2010 additional appropriation requests is December 15, 2010, the figures for budget year 2010 are expected to increase for many units as additional appropriation requests are received and certified by the Department.

The portion of this report that shows the percentage change in adopted appropriations by unit type measures the difference in the aggregate adopted appropriations for all units within a given type (i.e., county, township, school corporation, etc.) for budget years 2006-2009, and for the comparison between 2009 and 2010, only those units for which we have data for both 2009 and 2010 are included in the comparison. Some unit types show substantial variation from year to year; especially redevelopment commissions and special taxing units. These wide variations are typically the result of one or two units with large changes skewing the unit type group as a whole – an example for the change in special taxing units is the Marion County Airport. Due to the size of its appropriations in relation to the aggregate of all special taxing units, this unit's substantial changes in year-over-year adopted appropriations have a dramatic effect when viewing the total change by unit type. Another example can be seen with redevelopment commissions; the wide variation in year-over-year changes when looking at the unit type analysis typically results from one or two units with large additional appropriation adoptions in a particular year, and when these are one-time requests, the resulting aggregate comparison shows an extraordinary year-over-year change.

It is also important to note that the figures in this report reflect what the local units adopted for budget year and additional appropriations, and these are not necessarily the final Department-certified appropriation amounts. The certified figures may be found in our report "Certified Budget History 2006-2010".
