2014 Falls of the Ohio Summer Day Camps

Young Explorer Day Camps – Students explore the different habitats found at the Falls of the Ohio State Park and exhibits within the Interpretive Center. Using hands-on educational activities, students learn about science and history, including fossils, nature, native people, plants, aquatic life, and more. Falls of the Ohio Members receive a 10% discount.

Camps are for grades 4-6 from 8:30-11:30 a.m.

Schedule: June 16-20, fee $125
June 23-27, fee $125
July 7-11, fee $125
July 21-25, fee $125

Family Paleontologist Camp – This “career camp” is for children fascinated with fossils who want to experience the glimpse into living the life of a paleontologist. Park educator and paleontologist Alan Goldstein and paleontology professor Kate Bulinski, PhD will guide participants through three memorable days, July 15-17, 9am-4pm. Two off-site collecting trips are scheduled and the adult participating must transport the child to the off-site collecting trips on Wednesday and Thursday (this lasts usually from 9 am – 1 pm). During field collecting, participants will be able to keep what they find. Because of the depth of this camp, participants must meet these criteria:

- 1) Children are between 12 - 16 years old as of July 1.
- 2) Parent, grandparent or legal guardian will agree to actively participate with the child for the duration of the camp.
- 3) Child must have a interest in fossils for at least 2 years prior to this camp.
- 4) Prefer that child has a career goal in paleontology and/or has their own fossil collection.

Priority will be given to first-time participants. Limit to 10 child / adult pairs. As you might gather, this "career camp" is not geared for those without a serious interest in fossils!

The child/adult’s registration form must include a hand-written paragraph explaining why the child wants to attend. Falls of the Ohio Members receive a 10% discount.

Fee: $150 -- July 15-17, Tuesday-Thursday, 9:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.
