On June 28, 2016, Indiana Department of Workforce Development Commissioner Steven J. Braun recognized more than 100 educators and schools for their efforts over the previous school year. Their continued hard work in making a positive impact on the young Hoosiers enabled JAG Indiana to earn the prestigious “5 of 5” statewide award for the second-consecutive year.

JAG is a state-based national non-profit organization dedicated to reconnecting students with barriers academically by helping them on their path to graduation. Students receive adult mentoring from a JAG specialist while in school and one year of follow-up counseling after graduation. Indiana’s program graduates more than 94 percent of participants and many students choose to continue their education after high school.
