Re: Memo 001

- Assessments, 21 Day Pre-release, Services within Criminal Justice facilities, Clarification of Medicaid/HIP 2.0

Assessments

If a Recovery Works Participant is already receiving services from a designated Recovery Works agency prior to receiving a referral, the provider may choose to skip the initial comprehensive assessment and continue services. We ask that you fill out the Individualized Recovery Plan (IRP) based on the current Treatment Plan and send the IRP over to the participant's Criminal Justice Provider (CJP). If you feel that the participant has had a significant change since the last comprehensive assessment, or it has been longer than 6 months, we are asking that a new assessment be done. The new assessment can be claimed for under Recovery Works.

21 Day Pre-Release:

Participants who are being released from jail within 21 days are eligible for Recovery Works services. All participants are eligible for an initial comprehensive assessment WITHOUT a prior authorization. However, if it is determined that the participants needs services while in jail, ALL SERVICES MUST RECEIVE A PRIOR AUTHORIZATION. Prior authorization forms can be found on the Recovery Works website, www.RecoveryWorks.fssa.IN.gov, and should be turned into Recovery.Works@fssa.IN.gov. Depending on volume, we will do our best to have a determination to you with in 2-4 business days.

Services within Criminal Justice Facilities:

We would like to offer clarification on the following points:

1. Participants who are within 21 days from release are eligible for payment of an initial assessment while in Jail, without prior authorization. They are also eligible for additional services while in jail, with a prior authorization.
2. Participants are eligible for payment of treatment services at a Community Corrections facility in the event that the Recovery Works provider's primary office is located within the same facility (this is primarily for those ASO's embedded in CC organizations).
3. Participants are eligible for payment of treatment services while participating in a work release program. A participant may receive an initial assessment at the Work Release facility without prior authorization. After the initial assessment, if the participant can only receive treatment services at the work release facility, a prior authorization for those services must be submitted. If the participant can attend the recommended treatments outside of the work release facility, no prior authorization is necessary.

4. Participants receiving treatment within the walls of a jail, work release, or community corrections facility are expected to be referred to a community based treatment provider at the conclusion of his or her jail/work release stay or community corrections case.

Clarification on Medicaid/HIP 2.0

As you are aware, the Recovery Works program is a payer of last resort. This means, if a participant has any other payer source (i.e. private insurance, Medicaid, HIP 2.0, etc) he/she must go to a provider that accepts his/her insurance coverage. Just like with my insurance, if I choose to go to a provider that is outside of network, I have to pay for those services out of my own pocket. The same goes for our Recovery Works Participants. If they choose to go to a provider that does not take their insurance, they must pay for those services.

We acknowledge this might not have been 100% clear in our initial instructions and expectations. Therefore, we want to provide this clarification and ensure everyone has a clear understanding moving forward. Please consider the following scenarios:

1. Participant has Medicaid, HIP 2.0, or other insurance coverage: he/she will need to select a provider who accepts his/her coverage.
2. Participant is eligible for Medicaid or HIP 2.0: he/she will need to sign up for coverage. The provider receiving the referral shall connect the participant with a navigator or provide assistance to get the participant enrolled. Upon approval, the participant will need to receive services from a provider who accepts his/her coverage.
3. Participant is "pending" coverage for Medicaid or HIP 2.0: he/she will need to select a provider who accepts his/her pending coverage. The provider will bill the insurance for retro payment, and recovery works funds can be used to cover any claims for eligible services that are denied for the pending period. If the individual is denied coverage from Medicaid, HIP 2.0, or other insurer, Recovery Works funds can be used to pay for eligible services provided by a designated Recovery Works agency.
4. Participant is ineligible for insurance coverage through another payer source, or has been denied: Recovery Works funds can cover eligible services provided by a designated Recovery Works agency.

We greatly appreciate each and every one of you, and we thank you for your patience and flexibility, as we continue to work through the kinks of a new program. If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact the team at Recovery.Works@fssa.IN.gov. Thanks for all of your efforts as we grow the Recovery Works program.

Sincerely,

Angela Boarman

Team,

Attached is a short summary of this grant. Thanks Josh for sending. I think this would be a great fit as it provides training for providers on medication assisted therapy (MAT). This has been identified as an area of need from the drug task force and fits in with the Project Echo program that was discussed. Might be a good fit for ISDH? Please let me know if you need any help on this.

Importance: High

Given your boss's interest in addressing opioid abuse across the country, I wanted to make you aware that today the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ) announced a call for research to expand access to evidence-based treatment for opioid use disorders in rural area.

As the press release notes, AHRQ will make up to $12 million available to fund research projects to support implementation of medication-assisted treatment (MAT) for opioid use disorder in rural primary care practices. Grant applications are due March 4, 2016.

The announcement aligns with ongoing efforts by HHS, which is tackling the opioids crisis in three priority areas: prescribing practices; increasing the use of naloxone, a drug that can reverse an opioid overdose; and expanding the use of MAT.

AHRQ's opioids announcement supports the Agency's mission to produce evidence and improve the quality and safety of health care. In accomplishing its mission, AHRQ engages in three types of activities. AHRQ invests in research on how to make health care safer and improve quality and access; creates materials to teach and train health care systems and professionals to catalyze improvements in care; and generates measures and data to track and improve performance and evaluate progress of the U.S. health system.

AHRQ Grant Opportunity to Address Opioid Abuse in Rural Areas

Background

On December 8, 2015, AHRQ announced a grant opportunity to improve MAT in rural primary care settings through the provision of evidence-based provider training and assistance.

This funding opportunity includes buprenorphine, buprenorphine/naloxone (e.g., Suboxone) and extended-release injectable naltrexone (e.g., Vivitrol). While methadone is an important option for treating opioid addiction, it is excluded from this funding opportunity.

How much funding is available?

1$ million per year, renewable each year for three years.

Who is eligible to apply?

This funding opportunity is available to the following non-profit entities:

- Local and State Government

Subject: FYI [Clip] IBJ - New psych hospital in Indy marks break with 'failing model'

New psych hospital in Indy marks break with 'failing model'

Indianapolis Business Journal – J.K. Wall

The Pence administration's decision to spend $120 million on a new psychiatric hospital represents a stark re-adjustment from the de-institutionalization movement of the past 30 years, which led the state to close seven of its 13 psychiatric hospitals.

State officials want to construct a \$120 million mental health hospital on the campus of Community East Hospital in Indianapolis by 2018.

The 159-bed facility, called the Indiana Neuro Diagnostic Institute, will eventually replace the Larue Carter mental hospital, located in Indianapolis on Cold Spring Road, which the state plans to phase out of operation.

When open, the institute could serve 1,500 patients per year with such conditions as acute and chronic mental illness, chronic addictions, intellectual and developmental disabilities, traumatic brain injury and degenerative illnesses such as Alzheimer's disease.

But the new institute would also serve as a diagnostic hub for Hoosiers to get mental illnesses or addictions accurately diagnosed. Then the institute would provide telehealth consultations over the Internet to health care providers in each patient's community, to help them perform the ongoing care those patients often are not getting now.

"It's a big deal," said Stephen McCaffrey, CEO of Mental Health America of Indiana, which lobbies state government on mental health issues. "It would be a new way of providing care."

He emphasized that the state should not revert back to the days when patients with mental illness were "warehoused" at state psychiatric hospitals.

"The days of just putting people in a place where they would live out their lives because we didn't know what to do with them, those days are over," McCaffrey said.

But there is a need, he said, to improve how patients with mental health issues are diagnosed and treated.

"We've tended to provide the services that we had rather than the services that patients need," he said.

The Pence administration seems to agree. A feasibility study it commissioned concluded that the way the state has treated patients with mental illness since it began closing psychiatric hospitals in the 1980s is "failing."

"Now, 30 years after the initial closures of seven state hospitals, we have seen that de-institutionalization of the mentally ill population in Indiana has become 'trans-institutionalization' into expensive and less therapeutic environments," stated the introduction to the feasibility study, which was commissioned by the Indiana Family and Social Services Administration, or FSSA.

“As state hospital beds have closed, patients with chronic psychiatric disease and relapsing chemical dependency have moved to nursing homes, become homeless, been cared for in emergency departments and general hospitals and (most disturbingly) ended up in Indiana jails and prisons,” the report added. “FSSA deeply desires to counter this failing model.”

The study noted that roughly 6,000 inmates in Indiana prisons—about one out of every five inmates—have been diagnosed with mental illness. It also noted that Indiana has declined to 44th out of 50 states in access to mental health care, hospital services for the mentally ill and treatment outcomes.

The Pence administration did study what it would cost to renovate the Larue Carter hospital, which is located in a 1930s-era building acquired from the Veterans Administration in 1997. The Daniels administration decided to build a replacement facility for Larue Carter, with construction scheduled to begin in 2008. But the recession sidelined those plans, and they have never been revived.

The feasibility study concluded that it would cost $105 million to modernize Larue Carter, versus the $120 million cost of the new facility. It also said that being located close to a hospital focused on other health issues would be an advantage.

By locating the facility next to Community Hospital East, the state hopes the patients also can have their non-mental health needs addressed. Patients with mental illness often fare worse in other areas, particularly with such chronic diseases as diabetes.

“As the largest provider of mental health services in Indiana, we know firsthand the desperate need that exists for these services,” said Bryan Mills, CEO of Community Health Network, in a statement.

The state said the institute will be the flagship hospital of its network of state-operated mental health facilities. That network currently includes six inpatient hospitals—in Indianapolis, Evansville, Richmond, Logansport and Madison—as well as 25 community mental health centers spread around the state.

“As outpatient care is voluntary, it is difficult to insure compliance, and severely ill patients frequently fail. It is then left to emergency departments or local jails to triage and arrange care for these impaired individuals,” stated the state’s feasibility study. “This challenge is exacerbated by the absence of a central, flagship facility which is able to effectively assess and triage patients to deliver the most effective treatment and provide adequate inpatient care. What is needed is a new model of care spearheaded by the proposed [institute].”

The state expects construction to begin in April and to finish in September 2018. It will pay for construction by selling 20-year taxable bonds.

Updates on my end:

1. Attached is the list of folks invited that we know of. I didn't have time to format them all into the same format since FSSA sent me 5 lists in 12 different formats. I just copy and pasted them over so everyone could get an idea of invites. This list also contains the county sheriffs. It does not contain drug task force since someone else is inviting them.
2. I have spoken to Supt. Carter. He will be there.
3. I have sent an email to Luke Bosso about Judge B.'s invites and I am waiting on a response. Will send this list when I get it.

Hello John,

Here is Ms. Tonya Murphy's contact information: Her son, Dustin is addicted to heroin and has Hep-C. He is in great need of treatment. I fear his overdose because he just recently lost 2 "friends" to overdose of heroin.

I am not working with a Lawmaker on the Involuntary Commitment law but I know we have several Indiana Lawmakers on the Governor's Task Force who could very easily amend HB1448 language to include this into our already existing law that just passed this year by Rep. Steve Davisson. This is the #1 issue people in Indiana contact me about. I just spoke to MHAI President Steve McCaffery today about this. I also told him this bill needs a "title" of reference. I suggested to him :Jennifer's Law" or "The Jennifer Act as HB1448 is already referenced as by Lawmakers. I have known Steve McCaffery for over 6 years and he will be a great asset on this bill.

By the way, I just attended Mental Health America of Indiana's Heroes for Recovery luncheon and was the guest speaker. I was presented by Steve McCaffery and MHAI the Consumer Advocate Award -2015 for the state of Indiana. It was an honor to receive it.

Please let me know how I can further assist Governor Pence, you and the Task Force Committee.

Good morning Veronica,

Our meeting yesterday with Governor Pence (and Lani) was a blessing to me and all the Mothers who attended. They felt their voices were heard.

I am sharing a document I meant to give Governor Pence yesterday. Would you please print this and share this with Governor Pence:

Barriers with Involuntary /Civil Commitment Laws and need for addressing changes in Commitment Code process and procedures:

LACK OF IMPLEMENTATION

Untreated severe mental illness and progressive,chronic SUD (Substance Use Disorder) and its negative consequences persist despite the existence of assisted outpatient treatment (AOT) laws in 45 states and progressive civil commitment standards in 26 states. In virtually every state, implementation of existing laws and standards is inconsistent at best and nonexistent at worst. Common obstacles to the use of existing laws and standards include:

LEGAL BARRIERS

Incomplete or inconsistent understanding of how the laws and standards work

Inconsistent application by judges

CLINICAL BARRIERS

Hospitals, physicians and mental health professionals who are unaware of the laws and/or don't know how to use them

Identification mechanisms that would enable hospital emergency rooms, law enforcement and others to immediately recognize individuals under court-ordered outpatient treatment

OFFICIAL BARRIERS

Perceived or projected fiscal impacts on local government

Shortage of public personnel with knowledge or training in implementing the laws

Opposition by the mental health officials charged with implementing the laws and standards

PERSONAL BARRIERS

HIPAA/confidentiality obstacles

Absence of committed or informed family members to act as advocates
Perceived civil rights issue

My mission of The Jennifer Act is to improve Indiana's Involuntary Commitment process for families whose loved one is in a life and death crisis of substance addiction. The passage of HB1448 is a step in the right direction however, by combining our Commitment Codes and clarifying the process by giving it a "title" "The Jennifer Act" or "Jennifer's Law" to make it familiar to Judges, Prosecutors, Public Defenders, treatment centers, hospitals and Hoosier families, we will be implementing a life saving tool and assist the flow and process of families in crisis.

GOAL:

HOW: Give it a title: "Jennifer's Law" "The Jennifer Act"

RESULT: More Indiana families in a life and death crisis will gain emergency intervention and treatment. Lives are saved and families are restored. Addresses the revolving door of inmates in DOC who are addicted, reduces the number of children in our Foster Care System.

Kentucky has Casey's Law and it is widely used and very well known in KY. We would be making great strides in Indiana to amend this process.

Sincerely Yours,

-- Sharon Blair

Vivitrol Project Description
Indiana Department of Correction
Michael A. Mitcheff, DO MBA CCHP

Summary of Vivitrol Project

The participant pool to be screened will consist of offenders who have completed a substance abuse treatment program preferably a Therapeutic community and remain motivated for long term recovery. The Addiction Recovery Staff will have a critical role in this selection process. The counties of initial focus will be Marion, Scott and Tippecanoe.

The selected candidates will sign a consent form with a prescriber present to educate and answer questions. The Prescriber will become the witness to the informed consent.

Prior to the initial Vivitrol injection, a release of information to the community health center who will continue to prescribe and provide wrap around services must be signed. Also, prior to the initial injection, confirmation off approval into the HIP 2.0 program must be obtained.

The patient must have a recent negative witnessed urine drug screen confirmed.

All patients being considered for the Vivitrol program will have clearance by a primary care physician while in IDOC. This clearance is only possible following a thorough history and physical exam as well as review of lab work. Contraindications will be ruled out.

All healthcare and parole liaison staff will receive training in relation to Vivitrol and the IDOC Vivitrol program.

The Vivitrol program monitoring team will consist of the IDOC CMO, Director of MH services, Director of addiction services, Vendor Addiction recovery service director and the Director of re entry.

Consent for Vivitrol Administration

Vivitrol is an medication given by injection into the muscles of the buttock that is intended to help maintain abstinence from alcohol and/or narcotic drugs by removing the “high” associated with their use. It may also decrease cravings. It is given every 4 weeks.

The serious risks of using this medication are as follows:

Anyone who has a hypersensitivity to Naltrexone, or to any of the components of Vivitrol should not use the drug.

There is a probability that there will be minor discomfort at the injection site, as well as the possibility of firmness, tenderness, bruising, or other minor temporary reactions to the injection. Rarely, there have been more serious injection site issues. If you receive the injection and you think you may be having a serious problem at the injection site – notify your physician immediately, or proceed to the emergency room.

Using this drug can lessen or eliminate tolerance to opioid-type narcotics. Therefore, if you have used Vivitrol and then resume using an opioid type drug (e.g. heroin, Percocet , vicodin and many others) at the dose that you could tolerate just prior to starting Vivitrol, you could overdose, and potentially, you could die.

Vivitrol should never be given to someone who has not been off of drugs or alcohol for at least 7 days. If the drug is given to someone who is currently taking opioid drugs, for example, it will induce immediate and potentially severe withdrawal.

If you have been given Vivitrol, and you suffer a serious injury that requires treatment of acute pain, traditional pain medications will probably not work. Your physician will need to consider other options for pain control.

It is not to be given to anyone with acute hepatitis, or decompensated liver disease.

The more common minor effects of the drug include: injection site discomfort, headache, nausea, decrease appetite, diarrhea, and joint pain.

If you have any questions about this medication, please ask your physician or nurse practitioner.

I have been counseled regarding the possible medical risks of Vivitrol, and I have been given the opportunity to have all of my questions answered. I consent to receiving the drug, Vivitrol, which will be given in the appropriate manner, at the appropriate time prior to my release. I understand that this is a voluntary program and I may refuse the medication without penalty.

Information for the Offender

MEDICATION ASSISTED TREATMENT

You have the opportunity to participate in a special project that involves taking medication, along with substance abuse counseling, to help you be successful when you return home. The medication provided with this project is helpful for people who are addicted to alcohol and/or opiate drugs such as heroin.

The medication is called Vivitrol and is in the form of a shot given once a month by a doctor or nurse. If you decide to participate and the medical staff does not find any reasons why you should not take this medication, you will receive the first shot of Vivitrol close to your release date. The purpose of having the shot shortly before release is to help reduce cravings for alcohol and/or opiate drugs and prevent relapse when you return to home.

After you are released, you must agree to continue in counseling and receive the monthly shot. IDOC re entry staff will assist you in securing community services when you leave. The community counselors, nurses and doctors will help you decide how long you need to keep taking the Vivitrol shot. Most people take it for several months before they decide to stop taking it or switch to another medication to help them be successful in their recovery.

Vivitrol

Vivitrol is a medication known as a narcotic antagonist, which works by blocking opiate receptors in the brain. It helps take away the cravings for alcohol and opiate drugs like heroin and blocks the “high” from alcohol and opiates. It also helps to prevent a relapse back to alcohol or opiate use.

Vivitrol has been found to help people who want to participate in substance abuse treatment and choose to take medication for a limited time to assist in reducing cravings and staying clean and sober.

The most important factor in staying clean and sober is your motivation to do so.

To be successful, people who take medications to help with a substance use problem also take part in other services such as counseling and education groups and individual meetings with a counselor. Medications like Vivitrol help take away cravings and prevent relapse; the other services help you learn skills and become part of self-help groups or other programs that will help you in long-term recovery.

Quick Facts about Vivitrol

- Vivitrol blocks the euphoric effect (high) of alcohol and opiate drugs like heroin.
- Vivitrol helps take away cravings for alcohol and opiate drugs which can help when you are in places with “relapse triggers” like an old neighborhood.
- Vivitrol, like many medications, may cause serious allergic reactions like swelling of face and mouth, blurred vision, increased heartbeat, wheezing, mood changes and hallucinations, nausea, ear pain, fainting, skin rash or pain, swelling and redness at injection site. Doctors and nurses closely watch those who receive the shot to make sure they are not having a bad reaction.
- Vivitrol can cause other less serious side effects like anxiety, irritability, increased thirst, muscle and joint aches, fatigue or weakness, insomnia or decreased sex drive.
- Vivitrol may need to be taken for several months. Each person, along with their counselor and doctor, decide when they are ready to stop taking the medication. Most people continue to participate in counseling and self-help groups after they stop taking Vivitrol.

Benefit of Participating in the Vivitrol Project

- Vivitrol can be an additional support for maintaining sobriety, especially when facing relapse triggers upon release from institutional treatment and returning to your home.

Possible Risks of Vivitrol Treatment

- There is a serious risk of overdose if you use opiates/heroin while you are taking Vivitrol.
- It is possible to have liver damage or a problem if you already have serious liver damage. The chances of this should be ruled out by the healthcare professional who is prescribing Vivitrol because you will receive a medical screening to determine your eligibility to participate in the program.
- Vivitrol alone will not keep you sober or successful in your recovery. You must continue to use of all of the treatment and recovery tools that you are developing. It is a combination of counseling, 12-step programming, a support system and medication, as well as other social supports, which will keep you clean and sober long term.
- There is a risk of an irritation of the skin at the site where you receive the Vivitrol shot.

VIVITROL – FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What does Vivitrol do?

It blocks cravings for alcohol and opiate drugs such as heroin and prevents someone from getting intoxicated or "high" from alcohol or opiates/heroin.

What will happen if I use alcohol or heroin while I'm taking Vivitrol?

Vivitrol will block the effects of alcohol or opioids, meaning you will not get the high for approximately 30 days after you receive the shot.

Is it possible to overdose on opiates/heroin while I am taking Vivitrol?

Yes, while you are taking Vivitrol, using opiates in the amount you were used to before incarceration can lead to overdose and possibly death. However, it is important to know that a person is more likely to overdose on opiates/heroin following release from prison if they have not received Vivitrol because they are more likely to have cravings which could trigger relapse and lead to overdose.

Are there any medications that I can't take while I'm receiving Vivitrol?

The only medications that cannot be used while taking Vivitrol are opiate-based pain medications like OxyContin. You should inform any doctor or healthcare provider if you are taking Vivitrol. You will be given a Vivitrol I.D. card to help you and your healthcare providers remember this.

What are the possible side effects of Vivitrol?

There are possible side effects of Vivitrol, like any medication, and they may be different for different people. The most common side effect is a skin irritation at the site of the Vivitrol shot.

There are other possible side effects that are rare and include swelling of face and mouth, blurred vision, increased heartbeat, wheezing, mood changes and hallucinations, nausea, ear pain, fainting, skin rash or pain. The doctors and nurses giving the shot are trained to watch for these possible side effects and to take appropriate action if they occur.

How long should I stay on Vivitrol?

This differs for each person who receives Vivitrol. It is just one tool for achieving and maintaining long term sobriety, in combination with counseling and other supports.

Some people have stayed on Vivitrol for a few months and others for much longer. It depends on the needs of each person and what their doctor and counselor think is best for them.

Do I have to attend treatment/counseling in order to receive Vivitrol?

Yes, you must be following the professional recommendations of the community health center to be eligible to continue to receive Vivitrol.

How often should I get a Vivitrol shot?

The shots should occur monthly, or about every 25-30 days.

Where will I get Vivitrol shots when I get back in the community?

You will be connected with treatment professionals in the community prior to release. The parole liaison will assist you once released.

Can I become addicted to Vivitrol?

No, Vivitrol does not have any abuse or dependence potential.

IndyStar – Shari Rudavsky

Midway through a meeting of the governor's task force on drug abuse, Sheila Holloway, whose sister and son have substance abuse disorders, posed a question to the audience of about 50 people: "How many moms and grandparents do we have here?" About three-quarters raised their hands.

The lengthy meeting, much of which was devoted to hearing public comment, reinforced what anyone familiar with drug abuse knows: It affects not just users but also their family and friends.

"Addiction is not isolated to the addict. Addiction is a family disease," said Gina Bardach, the mother of a 24-year-old son in long-term recovery and the founder of Hope and Overcoming, a nonprofit support organization based in Hamilton County.

With her son, she has attended the funerals of 13 of his friends who overdosed on drugs.

Mother after mother presented a heartbreaking story to the members of the Governor's Task Force on Drug Enforcement, Treatment and Prevention, which met Tuesday at Community North Hospital for the third time since the governor created the group in September.

Cheryl Dicken told of how less than a month ago she found her son unconscious in a heroin-induced haze. By the time paramedics had arrived, she had managed to wake him. But that night she took him to the Hancock County Jail, where he is doing time for a nonviolent offense.

The Marion County street where she lives has seven houses on it. Three of her neighbors also have heroin-addicted sons or daughters, she said. Her co-worker at the middle school where she works also has a heroin-addicted son in prison.

Four days after her own son started his stint in jail, he missed the funeral of his best friend from childhood, who had been clean for a year and then overdosed.

"I don't know what the end story is for my son," said Dicken, whose son, a welder, has had trouble keeping a job since he injured his back while working for a moving company. He started on opiates legitimately and then moved to heroin.

Amid such heartfelt words the testimony that moved the members of the task force to immediate action came from Lee Buckingham, prosecuting attorney for Hamilton County.

Recent legislation has lightened penalties for drug dealers, Buckingham said. He asked the task force to do what they can to support increasing minimum sentences. Previously, convicted drug dealers faced three to 10 years. A new law made that nine months to a little more than four years.

“The reality is today prosecutors do not have the tools they need to deal with these serious drug users,” Buckingham said. “The hammer has just been shrunk down immensely.”

Without hesitation the task force voted to back strengthening such penalties.

Said task force member Doug Carter, superintendent of the Indiana State Police: “This has been gut-wrenching today. How could we not support them? ... The notion that folks will continue to feed what’s happening to these incredible people without the significant consequence of Indiana law is beyond anything I can comprehend.”

Harsher penalties for drug dealers were not the only proposed solution.

Speaker after speaker also spoke of the importance of drugs in the battle to help stop others from continuing to misuse drugs. And they also shared the difficulties of finding treatment programs that have space, take insurance and work.

Many of the speakers had family members who had been saved from death by Narcan, or naloxone, an injection that can reverse the effects of an opiate overdose. Since 2013, 8,000 people in Indiana have benefited from the use of the drug, either by a paramedic or a family member. In April the governor approved a law that allows a third party to get a doctor’s prescription to keep on hand just in case a friend or family member who uses drugs needs it.

One mother of a heroin addict said her son has had Narcan nine times.

Other drugs, too, can play a role in helping people recover from drug addiction.

Joan Moon, whose grandson has been addicted to drugs since 2009, found some help in a drug called Vivitrol. Injected once a month, Vivitrol can staunch cravings for opiates.

“None of us want our children to be on any more medication. They have already damaged their bodies with drugs,” she said. “But Vivitrol is the one glimmer of hope.”

Still, her story did not end happily. After a year on Vivitrol, her grandson has relapsed.

She was not alone in acknowledging that people who are addicted need help — not just to break the cycle but also for the rest of their lives. And those services, all agreed, are sorely lacking, especially for those who do not have insurance or the ability to pay out of their own pockets.

“Addiction is a lifelong barrier,” said Sandy Jeffers, executive director of Pathway to Recovery, which provides transitional housing and support to homeless people in recovery. “So if addiction is a lifelong issue, why is recovery not a lifelong issue?”

Some former addicts like Ben Gonzales, who has been sober for close to year and a half, know the lifelong challenge. Gonzales, who had multiple overdoses and car accidents before kicking his heroin habit, works at Fairbanks Hospital, which treats those with addictions.

Getting to this point was not easy, however. He spent 90 days in in-patient treatment and is still on Vivitrol, which he sees as just being part of the solution to an addiction that began after he was prescribed opiates after surgery to remove his wisdom teeth.

His main challenge? His own body, he told the task force.

"My brain is my enemy," he said. "I can trust myself, but I can't trust my disease."

Ms. Seigel also stated that the group discussed the need to improve judicial quarterly reports and that capture data from a soon-to-be-completed standard probation case plan. Lisa Thompson gave a demonstration of the abstract of judgment application in INcite. She explained that the offender database in INcite is used for presentence investigation reports, risk assessments, and the abstracts. Courts are required to complete an abstract for all felony offenders, which captures data on the sentence, modifications, revocations, and petitions for post-conviction relief. Mr. Murtaugh made a motion to require all recipients of FY 17 grant funding to complete an abstract of judgment for all felony offenders and the motion was seconded by Larry Landis. The motion passed unanimously. Larry Landis made a motion to recommend a legislative change to require courts to complete an abstract of judgment for all felony offenders and the motion was seconded by David Murtaugh. The motion passed unanimously.
- 8. Next meeting. Jane Seigel announced that the Advisory Council will meet on November 12th at 2:30 p.m. at the Indiana Judicial Center.

Great outreach to the Mayor of Fishers John. There was a front page story in the Star today about State Rep. Ziemke and her two sons who have both had addiction battles with heroin. Both boys went out of state to get treatment. This new hospital will be a great step forward on so many fronts.

Brother,
See below from Fishers mayor. I wanted you to see how local communities are dealing with lack of mental health treatment options. Relevant to our new Institute, I believe you and the Governor's team need to hear from community and agency leaders about access and mental health needs. I know the legislators are hearing from them!

Hope you had a great Thanksgiving with the family!

I wanted to take a moment and thank you both for lunch the other day. You have a bold vision for your organization and it will serve our communities well. I challenge both of you to work on the issue of mental health. Last week alone we sent six individuals to mental health hospitals because they were either going to hurt themselves or someone else due to their mental state and as I write this email my EMS staff are finishing at the scene of a suicide. I am committed to seeing this issue dealt with. The city of Fishers has been engaged in an effort to identify what we as a community can do. Attached you will find the results of our study. Below you will find a link to a video that summarizes the process we went through.

It has been a humbling and educational process for myself and the stakeholders involved. I am certain that the solution to this issue is complex and far bigger than the scope of one mayor's ability. I simply ask that you engage in this in a meaningful way to bring about a significant public good. I would be happy to continue the conversation if you are interested.

Sincerely,
Scott Fadness

A MESSAGE FROM SCOTT FADNESS

At the end of last year, I learned some concerning news about the state of mental health in our community. While many fear talking about mental health publicly because of the societal stigma attached to it, I'm compelled to start a public conversation about the mental health of our community and how we might be able to offer our support to those struggling with mental health challenges.

Our public safety officials witness firsthand the consequences of untreated mental health challenges on a daily basis. Last year Fishers Police officers conducted 157 immediate detentions on individuals that expressed a desire to hurt themselves or someone else. We must acknowledge that mental health is a real concern in our community, but acknowledgment alone is not enough.

I wanted to approach this challenge in a smart, thoughtful manner and I knew that meant a collaborative effort between several community leaders from various industries was necessary. At the beginning of this year, I assembled a mental health task force comprised of community leaders, public safety officials, Hamilton Southeastern Schools staff members, parents, non-profit organizations and Community Health Network leaders to discuss how we can raise awareness of this issue, reduce the stigma surrounding mental health challenges in our community and ensure that our residents have access to resources that will help all those affected.

The report that follows documents the progress of the task force from January to August 2015 and includes the task force's recommendations to address the mental health needs of our community.

Together we hope to provide mental health education and training for first responders and the community at large, to raise awareness of local resources and increase access to mental health services.

Yours in service,
Scott Fadness, Mayor
City of Fishers

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In 2014, after learning of 157 immediate detentions by Fishers Police Department on individuals who expressed a desire to hurt themselves or someone else, Mayor Scott Fadness recognized a need for a coordinated strategy to address mental health concerns within our community. The City of Fishers took a thoughtful, smart approach to developing an action plan with clear objectives and measurable goals.

In early 2015, Mayor Scott Fadness called on leaders from different areas of service in our community to join a mental health task force that met monthly to consider how we could pool our resources and coordinate our efforts to ensure that mental health challenges don't go untreated within our community. The formation of the task force forged a partnership between central Indiana's leading healthcare provider, Community Health Network, Hamilton Southeastern Schools and the City's public safety departments to develop a strategic action plan to address this complex community issue.

The mission of the mental health task force is to develop a community that embraces mental health treatment before crises occur, protect the welfare and safety of Fishers residents and take a systemic approach to mental health challenges in the community.

Through the process, the mental health task force identified two objectives for moving forward: 1) Improve education and training and 2) Enhance local resources and access to services.

The task force is hopeful that these actions will provide support for those who may encounter mental health challenges. An annual report will be produced to track progress of the mental health efforts in the community.

INTRODUCTION

ONE HUNDRED & FIFTY-SEVEN

One hundred and fifty-seven Fishers residents were immediately detained by the Fishers Police Department in 2014 because they expressed a desire to hurt themselves or someone else. Those individuals were taken to an immediate care facility for evaluation, but then...what?

The Fishers public safety departments have statistics on the residents that reach a critical level and contact police or emergency services for help. However, it is sobering to think about how many people may not have reached that tipping point, but continue to suffer.

Studies show that as many as one in 17 people is living with a serious mental illness like schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, major depression, or post-traumatic stress disorder. While these statistics account for about six percent of the population, when you add the number of people with anxiety disorders and/or substance abuse challenges, the numbers climb quickly. The concern is not just for our adult population, either. A 2013 Gallup Survey of Hamilton Southeastern Schools students commissioned by Youth Mentoring Initiative (YMI) revealed 37 percent of students feel stuck or hopeless, 35 percent are not engaged and 30 percent lack well-being.

Uncoordinated care and localized plans for mental health treatment can result in poor health outcomes, poor patient experience and increased costs, preventable emergency room visits, hospitalizations and duplicated services, unemployment, homelessness and incarceration in jails and prisons.

In our state, more people die by suicide than homicide. In fact, suicide is the second leading cause of death among Hoosiers ages 15-34. It is estimated that more than 4,000 Hoosiers will seek emergency care this year for injuries related to a suicide attempt.

Meanwhile, throughout the metropolitan Indianapolis area there are very few hospitals that provide robust treatment for patients experiencing an acute mental health crisis. The need for mental health services continues “Our community’s success will not only be measured by our economic efficiencies, but also in our collaborative approach to dealing with complex community issues. Mental health is a real challenge in our community, and because of long held stigmas our residents, our neighbors and our children live in quiet despair.

We can do better.”

Mayor Scott Fadness
State of the City, 2015

to out pace the availability of services. This reality has prompted first responders and community leaders to consider alternative response methods for patients with mental health related needs.

At the 2015 State of the City address Mayor Scott Fadness announced the creation of a mental health task force to evaluate the state of mental health in our community. Under the Mayor’s leadership, stakeholders from Hamilton Southeastern Schools (HSE), Fishers Police Department (FPD), Fishers Fire & Emergency Services Department (FFD), clergy and medical professionals worked together to collectively answer: If a community was to marshal its collective resources around the challenges of mental health, what could and what should be done?

The following pages detail the methodology, discussions and recommendations of the Fishers mental health task force. This document is to be used as a record of the task force’s findings, as well as an action plan to implement the recommendations.

TASK FORCE

CITY OF FISHERS

The City of Fishers' (Fishers) role is to bring community stakeholders together and facilitate a thoughtful discussion to make a meaningful impact on the mental health of our community. With members of the Fishers Police Department, Fishers Fire Department, and the executive and legislative branches, Fishers will continue to monitor the progress of the mental health task force and report findings and accomplishments to the community annually.

SECTION ONE

MISSION & MEETING RECAPS

Section one of this document details the mission of the task force and provides an in-depth recap of each monthly meeting. The purpose of each meeting, key takeaways and potential goals are clearly outlined in the chart following the monthly meeting recap. The summaries show the progression of the task force and the path that led to the final objectives and recommended actions.

MISSION

The mission of the mental health task force is to develop a community that embraces mental health treatment before crises occur, protect the welfare and safety of the Fishers residents and take a systemic approach to mental health challenges in the community.

JANUARY

MEETING ATTENDEES

The task force first convened on January 23, 2015. In the first meeting, members of the task force introduced themselves, shared the mental health challenges witnessed in their respective industries and what they hope to see come out of the task force meetings.

The first to share his experiences in our community was Major Mitch Thompson, Assistant Police Chief. Speaking on behalf of Fishers Police Department, he explained the need to improve access to resources for our residents and cited the amount of return calls Fishers Police Department receives to individuals in crisis.

It is becoming more common for us to get repeated calls for the same individual in crisis. I'd like to learn more about the resources available for those people suffering with mental health challenges in hopes that they seek help to prevent a crisis situation before the police need to get involved.

Major Mitch Thompson
Fishers Police Department

Major Thompson also expressed concern about the increased presence of heroin in the Fishers community. Fishers Police Department has seen a significant up-tick in heroin related calls, including overdoses. Often these individuals have a history of prescription medication abuse and have moved on to heroin because it is easier to find and often cheaper.

Recently, Fishers Police Department hired a Crisis Interventionist to support the departments' mental and behavioral health efforts.

Ultimately, Fishers Police Department would like the task force to discuss the underlying challenges in the community that affect the mental health of Fishers. Major Thompson explained, "Our police force protects and serves this community. Learning more about our residents' challenges will help us to be better at our jobs."

Kimble Richardson was next to share insight from his experience with Community Health Network. As the creator of the Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) training program, Richardson commented on Fishers Police Department's dedication to responding to mental health related dispatch calls in the appropriate manner.

In 2014, the Fishers Police Department brought nearly 200 individuals to Community Hospital North Crisis department for an emergency behavioral health evaluation. During the same time period, a neighboring law enforcement department transported to us only three individuals. It is important to acknowledge that this isn't because the City of Fishers has more mental health cases than other similar communities, but that their law enforcement officers are formally trained to recognize when immediate mental health and substance abuse care is needed.

Kimble Richardson
Community Health Network

Richardson also wanted to stress the importance of discussing addiction as it relates to mental health, and hopes the task force challenges the community's status quo when addressing Fishers' needs.

“Our police force protects and serves this community. Learning more about our residents' challenges will help us be better at our jobs.”

Fishers Police Department

Hamilton Southeastern Schools had three members of the student services staff at the task force meeting, including the suicide prevention coordinator for the district. During the first meeting, Assistant Superintendent of Human Resources & Student Services, Dr. Beresford described a few of the challenges they see with our youngest residents.

- Students have trouble coping with failure and the expectations in a high-performing school district, as well as peer pressure. Often these challenges are expressed via anxiety or low self-esteem.
- Students are often living in quiet despair because of conflicts at home either with their parents or between them.
- More severe mental health disorders are increasingly prevalent with more bipolar and schizophrenia instances as of late.

In addition, Hamilton Southeastern Schools would like to increase awareness of the need to continue to meet student's medical needs after they complete high school and leave home. When children are medicated throughout their lives, it is imperative that they continue to receive care once they leave the parental home. Often, either because of lack of access to care or affordability, young adults in need of services fall through the cracks of the system.

Dr. Beresford expressed an interest in joining forces with community stakeholders to limit gaps in services for students, and explained that he would like to see an action plan that spells out who should help and when it is appropriate.

Pastor Curt Walters, from Crosspoint Church, was on hand to share his experience with mental health challenges, and mentioned that the church community often works more closely with families in the immediate aftermath of a crisis. He also explained why the stigma associated with mental health can be a significant deterrent to getting proper care.

“I would love to see this task force reduce the stigma that surrounds mental health in Fishers. It is important that people feel empowered to come forward to get help for themselves or someone in their family before a crisis situation.”

Pastor Curt Walters
Crosspoint Church

Mayor Fadness explained that this group was established as an exploratory committee to help the City of Fishers improve the overall mental health of the community. The task force is expected to identify key areas that need to be addressed and provide a list of recommendations.

JANUARY 2015 SUMMARY

PURPOSE OF MEETING

- Understand deliverables for task force
- Learn what mental health challenges task force members have witnessed within their respective industries

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- There is a lack of access to follow-up care/mental health resources, as evidenced by FPD's return calls to individuals facing mental health crises
- Our strategy to address mental health within the community should include addiction resources
- Students are facing mounting pressure in school and at home; they need access to mental health resources through their school years and into young adulthood
- The societal stigma of mental health issues often prevents individuals from seeking treatment

POTENTIAL GOALS

- Increase awareness of mental health needs within the community
- Increase awareness of local resources & access to resources and services
- Work to reduce stigma of mental health issues

ACTION ITEMS FOR FEBRUARY

- Prepare to discuss the current state of mental health in the community

Dr. Syed Kahn

- It is very important to make access to information as easy as possible. With the world becoming increasingly more digital-centric, providing information and access to resources online is a smart way to empower people to get the care they need.
- Working in a collaborative way through the diagnosis and treatment process helps to make the individuals more accountable in reaching their optimal health and improved quality of life.
- Three areas to target for education and awareness include:
 1. In the home: education for parents is vital as the first line of defense against mental health disorders.
 2. At school: Work together to identify high-risk students and follow up with available resources.
 3. In society: There are several factors including economics and pressures to perform in our society. Breaking the stigma associated with mental health challenges is very important.

Dr. Jerry Sheward

- Eighteen to 20 percent of people could be diagnosed with depression at any given time and half of those individuals will not get treatment. Of those that do seek help, 80 percent will be treated by a general physician that is not specifically trained to address mental health.
- Substance abuse is a large part of the problem when discussing mental health challenges. In addition, those that suffer with mental illness are 48 to 50 percent more likely to develop a substance abuse problem.
- As the practice of medicine evolves, so does the prescription drug industry. What was being prescribed in the 1980's for mental illness and considered safe, was often addictive.
- As a society it is critically important to place non-violent offenders in treatment rather than to lock them up. Ensuring people of all shapes, sizes and socioeconomic status have the tools to get well will increase the chance of recovery.
- Workforce development in the behavioral health industry is reaching a critical level. Five to ten years from now, 25 percent of mental health specialists in the state of Indiana will be over the age of 65. What is more, the workforce pipeline is not developing enough new talent to meet the current demands.

Kimble Richardson

- We all need to be talking about breaking the stigma surrounding mental illness. There are some things that take a village and raising awareness is one of those things. We need to be reaching out to children and parents to explain what to do when they experience or see mental health needs.
- It is recommended that awareness start in elementary school using a technique called QPR, otherwise known as Question, Persuade, and Refer. QPR is three steps anyone can learn to help prevent suicide and can save lives.

Additional Comments

Additional commentary from the task force focused on how schools move the needle when it comes to mental health awareness. Tactics included:

- Change school children's outlook from "getting someone in trouble" to "trying to help."
- Do not overlook the students that are high-performing. Often there is a lot of pressure to succeed.
- Foster access to mentors via programs like Youth Mentoring Initiative or hiring onsite counselors with additional training opportunities.
- Educate staff and parents on how to confront difficult topics productively without getting defensive.

The panelists suggested that the task force look at addiction/suicide issues and consider how we can empower people and remind the community that all lives are worthwhile.

FEBRUARY 2015 SUMMARY

PURPOSE OF MEETING

- Broaden the task force's understanding of local mental health issues and challenges

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- It is vital to increase access to information and mental health resources; education and awareness is needed within schools, home, and community
- Workforce development within the behavioral health industry is critical
- Raising awareness of mental health issues and working to reduce the stigma will require a coordinated effort; we need to provide people (beginning in elementary school) with the tools to identify mental health issues and refer those struggling to local resources for help

- Increase awareness of mental health challenges
- Increase access to resources and services
- Work to reduce stigma surrounding mental health needs and treatment
- Work to grow behavioral health workforce through incentive programs

ACTION ITEMS FOR MARCH

- Prepare to discuss services available to the community

MARCH

On March 20, 2015, the task force met to identify available resources for those in need of assistance facing mental health challenges. The task force then discussed the needs they see in the community and completed a gap analysis to determine potential areas of lack in services. After discussing the needs, each member was asked: “What would help most?”

A complete listing of resources can be found on our website at www.fishers.in.us/mentalhealth.

Hamilton Southeastern Schools started the discussion with the organization’s needs:

- Improve teacher preparedness
- Increase number of providers
- Improve information sharing: written consent to contact specialty providers
- Involve Hamilton Southeastern Schools in City of Fishers safety planning
- Create campaign to change the perception of speaking-up
- Increase peer-to-peer involvement and encouragement via support groups
- * Develop a comprehensive plan to work with partners in hopes of preventing a crisis situation

PRIORITY: Hamilton Southeastern Schools participants stated a comprehensive plan to work with partners in hopes of preventing a crisis situation is a top priority.

Fishers Fire Department continued the discussion with the needs witnessed in the community from the emergency services perspective. They shared the following needs:

- Better understand how emergency management services can pivot from traditional roles to better meet the complex needs of individuals suffering with mental illness
- Increase education in the medic program to determine how to approach mental health patients
- Improve knowledge and access concerning alternative destinations for mental illness related emergency calls
- * Reduce stigma so mental health can be addressed rather than internalized

PRIORITY: Fishers Fire Department suggested that the one thing that would help the most is an awareness campaign that changes attitudes toward mental health.

As a parent that has been directly affected by mental illness in a young teen, Mike Riekhof from the Peyton Riekhof Foundation for Youth Hope shared what he sees as needs in the community:

- Encourage more interaction between experienced parents willing to guide other parents in similar circumstances
- Make greater connections with school nurses
- Increase participation in the faith-based community
- Improve and increase digital resources for teens (i.e. Friends Ask Friends App)
- Make health coverage for mental illness more affordable
- Increase number of healthcare professionals that specialize in mental illness
- * Remove stigma and inspire community to take action

PRIORITY: Riekhof agreed that the number one thing that would help most is a community awareness campaign that removes stigma and inspires the community to take action.

Curt Walters of Crosspoint Church shared the needs most regularly seen within the faith-based community.

- Increase understanding of available services
- Create a culture where it is okay to have challenges and empower people to own those issues
- * Develop a comprehensive list of resources with services and contacts

PRIORITY: Walters indicated that churches would benefit greatly from a comprehensive list of services and contacts. This could be used when members of the congregation reach out for help; the church can then help facilitate treatment.

Next, representatives from Community Health Network shared what they see as the greatest needs in our community:

- Leverage psychiatrists role in mental health for treatment, as well as consultation support, for pediatricians and primary care providers
- Increase number of licensed social workers and other behavioral health clinical professionals
- Make more complete services available. For example, the Glick Fund provided a grant for a crisis texting line (text HelpNow to 20121) as well as a phone enabled web resource for youth, parents and organizations that serve youth (HaveHope.com).
- Improve insurance coverage for mental health services
- Develop a state-wide comprehensive plan
- * Improve training to help reduce stigma and better identify those suffering

PRIORITY: According to Community Health Network personnel, the one thing that would help most is improved training. Further education can help reduce stigma and identify patients suffering in silence.

From the City of Fishers, Mayor Fadness shared his perspective on the needs of the community:

- Create an overall strategy with clear ownership of goals and purpose; without it, we have fragmented goals and resources
- Mobilize and coordinate all the resources together
- Develop systemic solutions for long-term sustainability
- * Identify clear, actionable goals for task force members to move the community forward

PRIORITY: Mayor Fadness stated that a list of clear actionable items to move the community forward is of the utmost importance.

See a complete list of resources and the gap analysis table in Appendix B.

Priorities and possible objectives for the group to explore emerged as a product of this discussion, including: a comprehensive plan with sustainable solutions and action items; an awareness campaign to change the stigma of mental illness; and a list of resources for our community.

CONTINUATION OF THE TASK FORCE

Addressing mental health in our community is more than just rhetoric. We acknowledge that mental health is an issue in our community. With suicide as the second leading cause of death among Hoosiers ages 15-34, it is clear that the need for education and training and local resources and access to services is immediate. Together we are going to run with the actions outlined in this document to address those needs and ultimately make a difference in the lives of our residents and our community at large.

The mental health task force will continue to meet quarterly to ensure implementation of the recommendations within this report, and support efforts to improve the mental health care in the community. We've outlined measurable goals not only so that we can hold each other accountable to these actions items, but we ask that you would take it upon yourselves to do the same. Your feedback as we progress is always welcomed and appreciated.

We hope that our collaborative effort in this initiative will yield a community that is healthier, happier and most of all, better equipped to handle mental health challenges before crises occur.

Annual Check-Up

An annual report will be created each year to ensure implementation and track the progress of measurable goals. This report will be shared with the public and used to evaluate further needs in the community.

APPENDIX B

Mental Health Resources

This section of the document details available resources to address mental health challenges within our community as well as areas where there are gaps in services/resources. This portion of the document can be provided as a tool for various community organizations looking to refer individuals to local mental health resources and services. This is a living document that will be housed on the City of Fishers website at www.fishers.in.us/mental health.

At the end of 2014, Mayor Scott Fadness recognized a need for a coordinated strategy to address mental health needs in Fishers before crises occur. In order to thoughtfully develop such a strategy, Mayor Fadness assembled a task force including leaders from Community Health Network and Fishers public safety departments. The task force committed to meeting monthly for several months to better understand this complex community issue and devise a plan of action to address it.

At different times during the mental health task force's monthly meetings the need for a comprehensive list of resources was brought up by members. In order for the stakeholders in the group to be engaged ambassadors for mental health awareness in the Fishers community, every member should be equipped with a complete list of resources available to the citizenry. The list can also be disseminated to the greater public as an additional resource for care.

The task force conducted a resource analysis on March 20, 2015 as part of the process to identify potential areas of lack in the Fishers' mental health system. The task force was asked to identify all known adult and youth services/resources in Fishers in the following categories:

- Prevention and early intervention

PANELIST

Jerry Sheward, M.D.

Vice President, Chief Medical Officer

Aspire Indiana

Dr. Jerry Sheward specializes in serious and persistent psychiatric disorders among adults. This expertise, combined with his special interest in behavioral healthcare service delivery systems, has made him an invaluable part of Aspire Indiana's team of experts. Born and raised in Central Indiana, Dr. Sheward is a graduate of Wabash College with a degree in chemistry from Indiana University School of Medicine. He completed his residency in psychiatry at Indiana University Medical Center in 1987. He is a diplomat of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, specializing in psychiatry and is a member of the American Board of Physician Executives.

Dr. Sheward joined BehaviorCorp (then known as Tri-County) as medical director in 1990, and later served as the center's director of clinical services and quality improvement. He is now Aspire Indiana's chief medical officer.

As CMO, Sheward supervises a team of 10 psychiatrists, two prescribing APNs, nurses, and inpatient liaison staff who provide psychiatric and medical services to Aspire's clients. In addition he has served as consultant to multiple behavioral health plans concerning service delivery, utilization management and quality improvement.

"When I was in medical school I was struck by the fact that the quality of my patients' lives was primarily defined by the state of their mental health. Some patients were able to find satisfaction, meaning and happiness in their lives despite poverty, horrible disability and sometimes terminal illnesses while others experienced such terrible despair despite the most favorable of circumstances. I believed I could to the most to alleviate suffering and improve the lives of my patients by becoming a psychiatrist."

Dear Indiana EBDM Policy Team Members –

As we are now about half way through Indiana's Phase V activities, I want to acknowledge each team member's contribution over the past several months. Since June, members have drafted the state decision point map and narrative; a data, mental health, and money map; a list of Indiana criminal justice initiatives and an EBDM dictionary. All of these accomplishments will assist us in completing our Phase V tasks and prepare Indiana for Phase VI in 2016.

Tomorrow, the state team will review the decision point map and develop criteria for selecting the state team change targets. I am unable to attend our November meeting due to a commitment in Washington D.C., but David Powell will chair the meeting in my absence. In December, we will select our change targets and develop a plan to identify opportunities for systems change informed by research.

I know that everyone's schedules are busy, but please make every effort to attend these two very important meetings. Thank you for your commitment to making A Safer, Healthier Indiana.

Dear Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council members, designees and regular attendees:

I wanted to let you know that I am cancelling Thursday's 2:30 meeting. Because you all are very busy people, I want to make sure to be good stewards of your time—and I don't believe we have any compelling agenda items for Thursday. It is still very early in the Recovery Works launch for a report, and DMHA representatives have indicated to me that they will be sending out an update on providers and the number of vouchers presented as those numbers become available. We are also still in the process of finalizing details for the next Community Corrections grant process, and will keep the Council advised of that progress.

It is my hope to reschedule this meeting for Tuesday afternoon, December 1, 2015 from 2:00-4:00 P.M. here at the 30 South Meridian Street building. Please respond to this email so that I know you are aware of the meeting cancellation, and also let me know if December 1st will work for you.

Thanks so much for your time and commitment.

Meeting Minutes
October 13, 2015

The Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council met at the Indiana Judicial Center in the 8th Floor Conference Center at 30 South Meridian Street in Indianapolis, Indiana on October 13, 2015. The Advisory Council met 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.

- 1. Members present. The following members of the Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council were present: Larry Landis, Executive Director of the Indiana Public Defender Council; Chris Naylor, designee and proxy for the Executive Director of the Indiana Prosecuting Attorneys Council; Terry Cook, designee and proxy for the Director of the Division of Mental Health and Addiction; Julie Lanham, designee and proxy of the Commissioner of the Indiana Department of Correction; David Murtaugh, Executive Director of the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute; Chris Cunningham, President of the Indiana Association of Community Corrections Act Counties; Linda Brady, President of the Probation Officer's Professional Association of Indiana; Jerry Harbstreit, President of the Indiana Sheriffs Association; and Jane Seigel, Executive Director of the Indiana Judicial Center and Council Chair.
- 2. Guests present. The following guests also attended the meeting: Aaron Garner and Deb Braun from the Indiana Department of Correction; Dave Heath and Bill Watson from the Indiana Association of Community Corrections Act Counties; Christine Kerl from the Probation Officers Professional Association of Indiana; Bill Wilson from the Indiana Sheriffs Association; John Hill from the Office of Governor Pence; Hilary Alderete from the Indiana State Budget Agency; Sara Cozad and Stephanie Spoolstra from the Division of Mental Health and Addiction; Steve McCaffrey from Mental Health America Indiana; Matthew Brooks from the Indiana Council of Community Mental Health Centers; Krista Rivera from the Indiana Senate; Marilyn Odendahl from The Indiana Lawyer; Kory George and Adam McQueen from Wayne County Probation; Cindy McCoy from Grant County Court Services; Nedra Brock Fleetwood and Scott Wedgwood from Lawrence County Probation; and Angie Krieger and Javier Zaragoza from Allen County Community Corrections.
- 3. Staff assistance. Jennifer Bauer, Mary Kay Hudson, and Michelle Goodman provided staff assistance to the Advisory Council.
- 4. Approval of minutes. The minutes from the September 25, 2015 meeting were unanimously approved.

5. DOC Population Report. Aaron Garner reported that the October population report was distributed to the Advisory Council members via email. He highlighted that the number of admissions was trending up and attributed this trend to a community corrections increase. He also stated that 1006 admissions are still moving slowly, with only 35% coming in to DOC for new 1006 crimes.
6. DOC report on grant process. Julie Lanham reported that DOC community corrections staff reviewed the 60 community supervision grant applications and made preliminary funding recommendations. Ms. Lanham distributed copies of the funding summary, the scoring matrix, the collaboration plan scoring sheet and grids with funding details. She stated the DOC welcomes feedback from the Council members. Deb Braun reported that DOC staff identified requests for supplanting, overtime/raises and office items as automatic disqualifiers. Each grant was graded, with a possible total score of 25 points. Ms. Braun stated that DOC recommends funding for 41 counties. Jane Seigel stated that her inclination is to give the Council members a few days to absorb the information related to the funding recommendations and then reconvene for a vote on October 20th. Stephanie Spoolstra stated that DMHA would review the applications for potential overlap with the Recovery Works voucher program. David Murtaugh made a motion to delay voting on the DOC recommendations until October 20th to give Council members an opportunity to review the information and send questions to DOC. Larry Landis seconded the motion. The Council unanimously approved the motion.
7. Report from DMHA on Recovery Works status. Sara Cozad reported that DMHA conducted a webinar on October 5th for criminal justice partners. She stated that the purpose of the webinar was to explain the Recovery Works voucher program, the funding priorities, and eligibility requirements. The webinar was limited to 100 participants and was recorded because interest was greater than capacity. Ms. Cozad also reported that DMHA is still targeting November 1st to begin the treatment voucher process. The online voucher system will not be ready until mid-December, so DMHA will manually process paper vouchers until January 1st. Ms. Cozad further reported that DMHA is creating a Recovery Works website and email account.
8. Grant application subcommittee. Jane Seigel reported that she has created a grant application subcommittee to review the grant process and suggest improvements to the FY 17 DOC grant application. Volunteers for the subcommittee are Linda Brady, Chris Cunningham, Sara Cozad, DOC staff and Judicial Center staff. Ms. Seigel asked for suggestions for revisions from all Council members.
9. Other business. Jane Seigel led a discussion on data collection and asked the members to consider how the Advisory Council can avoid duplicating data collection efforts of the Evidence-Based Decision Making Initiative. David Murtaugh suggested starting with the EBDM data group and building on for the Advisory Council. Jane Seigel stated that she will schedule a meeting with the EBDM data group to discuss the approach to Advisory Council data reporting.

- 10. Next meeting. Jane Seigel announced that the Advisory Council will meet next on October 20th at 2:30 p.m. and November 12th at 2 p.m. at the Indiana Judicial Center.

John,

I wanted to give you an update on my research. I've spoken to a couple organizations who are willing to help communicate the findings from the drug task force. I also have voicemails and emails into multiple other organizations and I am working on setting meetings.

National Alliance of Mental Illness and Mental Health America Indiana have both said they would be willing to send out information in their publications as well as social media campaigns about what we are doing and about the stigma of drug use.

Ben Evans from FSSA said he would provide information in the publications he is using to the faith based organizations as well as including a representative from the task force as his meetings.

I also had an idea. At DCS, we leveraged a list from PLA of behavior service professionals about the openings that we had as an agency. I am reaching out to PLA to see if they would be willing allow us to use that list to give updates about the task force to this professionals. I am sure it won't be a problem to get that list.

FYI - I just received the email below from Don Kelso at the Rural Health Association. Mr. Kelso received an inquiry from the Maine Rural Health Research Center who is conducting a two part study of rural opiate use.

The first part involves the analysis of data from SAMHSA's National Survey on Drug Use and Health.

The second part involves interviews with key state level and rural stakeholders to understand how states are dealing with opiate abuse in rural communities and to describe the interventions that work in rural communities.

They hope to interview 5-7 people in each of these four states (Washington, North Carolina, Vermont, and Indiana).

They would like to interview one stakeholder in each of the following categories:

State mental health/substance abuse agency

State Prescription Drug Monitoring Program

Law enforcement

Treatment services (focusing on rural services)

State rural health association/Office of Rural Health

Representatives from rural program/models targeting opiate use

Thank you,

Hello Tyler Ann, I didn't realize I would need your help so quickly. Please see the attachments and email below. John Gale is a well respected researcher from Maine. I have sit in on some of his presentations at the National Rural Health Association. I remember you saying you that you was aware and had contacts with the Governor's recent task force on this topic. John recommends the 5 or 6 people they want to do a phone interview with. I will be one of them but was wondering if you would be the person that could share this email with the right folks on the task force or anyone else that you are comfortable with?

Please let me know what you think. John would like for me to let him know who the contact folks will be before the end of next week.

Thanks

Don

Subject: Rural Opiates Project

Don,

I wanted to follow up on my call from earlier today. As mentioned, we are conducting a two part study of rural opiate use. The first part involves the analysis of data from SAMHSA's National Survey on Drug Use and Health. The second part involves interviews with key state level and rural stakeholders to understand how states are dealing with opiate abuse in rural communities and to describe the interventions that work in rural communities. We hope to interview 5-7 people in each of the four states (Washington, North Carolina, Vermont, and Indiana), We would like to interview one stakeholder in each of the following categories:

State mental health/substance abuse agency
State Prescription Drug Monitoring Program
Law enforcement

Treatment services (focusing on rural services)
State rural health association/Office of Rural Health
Representatives from rural program/models targeting opiate use.

In doing some research on the issue in Indiana, I saw that two task forces on prescription drug prevention and on drug treatment have been created (see the attached documents). I suspect that some of our stakeholders may come from this list.

I would welcome your thought on who we should interview. As I caught up with Cindy, she also told me that you and the IRHA are involved in these efforts. I would like to include you in our list of interviews.

I have attached a brief project description to give you an idea of what we are studying.

Thanks,

John

PROJECT #3: SUMMARY OVERVIEW

- 1. Project Title: Catastrophic Consequences: The Rise of Opioid Abuse in Rural Communities
- 2. Expected Completion Date: 8/31/2015
- 3. Research Center Name: Maine Rural Health Research Center
- 4. Principal Investigator: John Gale, M.S.
- 5. Contact Person: Jennifer Lenardson, M.H.S.; 207-228-8399
- 6. Funding Organization: Office of Rural Health Policy
- 7. Date Funded: 9/1/2014
- 8. Description: This project will analyze national data on the prevalence of opioid in rural and urban settings as well as describe state and local efforts to promote prevention and access to treatment.

Detailed Summary: Heroin use has grown significantly in recent years, particularly among those reporting nonmedical use of opioid pain relievers before initiating heroin. Past research has indicated that opioid pain reliever use is higher among specific rural populations than urban, including adolescents¹ and young adults.² Recent news articles have highlighted growing opiate problems across the United States in states such as Maine, Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Vermont, Washington, and Wisconsin. Higher prevalence rates of non-medical use of opioid pain relievers among rural populations and higher rates of fatal drug overdoses suggest the potential for growth in rural heroin use and related illegal activities, arrests, use of emergency services, and overdose deaths.

The proposed project will address prevalence, treatment, and prevention of heroin and illegal use of pain relievers in rural and urban communities. We will conduct quantitative analyses of data from the National Survey of Drug Use and Health (NSDUH) as well as key informant interviews with officials in four to six states to understand the challenges and promising practices in monitoring opiate prescribing and diversion, developing prevention interventions, and developing an opioid prevention and treatment infrastructure in rural communities. Key products will include a policy brief with presentation of results and abstracts submitted to annual meetings of the National Rural Health Association and the National Association for Rural Mental Health.

RESEARCH DESCRIPTION

Title: Catastrophic Consequences: The Rise of Opioid Abuse in Rural Communities
(Topics of Concentration: Access and Behavioral Health)

Research Description and Policy Relevance: Heroin use has grown significantly in recent years, particularly among those reporting nonmedical use of opioid pain relievers before initiating heroin.^{3,4} Heroin and pharmaceutical opioid users are at high risk for overdose-related death,⁵ long-term health impacts, and illegal activities. Past research has indicated that opioid pain reliever use is higher among specific rural populations than urban, including adolescents¹ and young adults² nationally and drug users in Kentucky.⁶ In a February 7, 2014 article in US News and World Report on heroin, officials from the National Institute on Drug Abuse and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention described the growing shift in heroin use from urban to rural areas.⁷ Another article in the New England Journal of Medicine on heroin and opioid use described, “a striking shift in the prevalence of fatal drug overdoses from urban to rural counties.”⁸ Recent news articles have highlighted growing opiate problems across the United States in states such as Maine, Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Vermont, Washington, and Wisconsin. Higher prevalence rates of non-medical use of opioid pain relievers among rural populations and higher rates of fatal drug overdoses suggest the potential for growth in rural heroin use and related illegal activities, arrests, use of emergency services, and overdose deaths.

Complicating this evidence of drug users “graduating” from prescription opiates to heroin, is the dilemma facing physicians, some of whom have confessed that that they feel like drug dealers.⁹ While pharmaceutical manufacturers continue to develop ever more powerful pain relievers, claiming these drugs have minimal potential for abuse, the problem of abuse of these same drugs continues to spread.¹⁰ To varying degrees, and with varying degrees of success, states have responded to both the growing prevalence of opiate addiction and the growing problem of patients re-selling prescribed opiates.

Addressing opioid use can be challenging from a state perspective with many substance abuse professionals suggesting that success in controlling prescription pain medication abuse fuels an increase in the use of heroin.^{11,12} While it is true that many opioid users turn to heroin as their access to prescription pain medications is restricted, it is also true that some users, particularly those who are uninsured or without adequate prescription coverage, turn to heroin as a substantially cheaper substitute for prescription opioids.^{13,14} As a result, it is necessary for state policymakers to proceed on several fronts to address the current opioid crisis.

Approach: This project will combine quantitative and qualitative approaches, using data from the 2008-13 National Survey of Drug Use and Health (NSDUH) and key informant interviews of state officials and providers. Sponsored by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, the NSDUH provides annual measures of prevalence and correlates of drug use in the United States. Variables of interest include heroin and non-medical pain reliever use by age at first use as well as lifetime, annual, and past-month usage; dependence and abuse; treatment history and perceived need for treatment; perceived risk of using drugs and availability of drugs; problems resulting from the use of drugs; driving under the influence; and illegal activities and arrest records.

We propose to supplement this quantitative analysis of opioid prevalence rates with qualitative interviews with state-level key informants in four to six states to understand the challenges and promising practices in monitoring opiate prescribing and diversion, developing prevention interventions, and developing an opioid prevention and treatment infrastructure in rural communities. To inform our choice of states and key informants we will recruit a panel of experts on opiate abuse selected from federal agencies, policy centers and professional organizations and convene one or two conference calls to get their suggestions.

Geographic Coverage: The NSDUH public-use file provides nationally representative data for all U.S. states, with geo-coding at the MSA/non-MSA level. To eliminate the possibility of using the data to identify survey respondents, SAMHSA removes specific geographic variables (see below for further details) as well as specific identifying information such as date of birth, name, address, and the link between respondents in the same household.

Hypotheses, Design, and Analysis: We will address prevalence of opioid abuse in rural and urban areas, promising approaches and barriers to prevention and treatment. This study will examine the following research questions:

1. What is the prevalence of non-medical use of opioid pain relievers and heroin in rural and urban areas? What socio-demographic and economic characteristics are associated with use?
2. What promising practices are being implemented by states to address prevention by addressing appropriate prescribing, diversion and monitoring, particularly for rural populations?
3. What promising practices are being implemented by states to improve access to treatment for opiate addiction for rural residents?
4. What are the primary barriers to developing opioid prevention and treatment infrastructure in rural communities? How can these challenges be overcome?

Quantitative Analysis

Dependent Variables: To evaluate the prevalence of opioid abuse, our dependent variables will include heroin and non-medical pain reliever dependence and abuse in past year and past month. Variables of interest include heroin and non-medical pain reliever use by age at first use as well as lifetime, annual, and past-month usage; dependence and abuse; treatment history and perceived need for treatment; perceived risk of using drugs and availability of drugs; problems resulting from the use of drugs; driving under the influence; and illegal activities and arrest record.

Independent Variables: The primary independent variable is rural or urban residence. Beginning with 2008, the NSDUH includes a metropolitan/non-metropolitan variable based on the U.S. Office of Management and Budget (OMB)'s designation. MSAs will be identified as urban areas, and non-MSAs as rural. Demographic information includes gender, race, age, ethnicity, marital status, educational level, job status, military service, health status, current household composition, income, and health care coverage.

Analyses: At the bivariate level, we will use chi-square tests to compare the rural/urban prevalence of opioid dependence and abuse and to identify rural/urban differences on covariates. At the multivariate level, we will conduct unadjusted logistic regression analyses of interactions to determine whether rural/urban differences on dependent measures vary across levels of gender, age, geographic region, and ethnicity. We will also construct adjusted logistic regression models of main effects, in which dependent measures are regressed on all independent variables and covariates. These analyses will allow us to determine whether bivariate-level rural/urban differences in prevalence or service use are attributable to any of the demographic factors and indices of health care access included in the model. To correct for bias associated with the complex survey methods used in the NSDUH, we will use probability weighting and Taylor series linearization techniques available in SAS.

Data Sources: The primary data set for this analysis will be the public-use file of National Survey of Drug Use and Health (NSDUH). The NSDUH recruits approximately 56,000 participants each year. To assure stable estimates for subpopulations, we will link six years of data: 2008-2013.

SAMHSA has also begun to provide access to the full analytic NSDUH data set through its “Data Portal” to authorized researchers for approved research projects. The Data Portal provides secure remote access to confidential data from SAMHSA’s Center for Behavioral Health Statistics and Quality. Currently, 2004 to 2012 NSDUH data are available through the Data Portal. Use of the full analytic file would provide access to a greater range of geographic variables including the Economic Research Services’ Rural-Urban Continuum Codes. SAMHSA’s next call for research applications is planned for fall, 2014.¹⁵ We have reviewed the application materials and Data Portal Confidentiality Procedures Manual. Upon approval of this project, we will complete the application and prepare the proposal for submission to SAMHSA for consideration. SAMHSA will use the following primary and secondary criteria to evaluate research proposals:

- The behavioral health impact of the proposed project and its potential contribution and alignment with Department of Health & Human Services and SAMHSA missions (primary);
- How well the research is aligned with the purpose for which the data were collected (primary);
- Whether the data requested is suitable for the proposed research project given data limitations (available sample size or survey content) (primary);
- Available resources needed by CBHSQ to prepare the data file and the cost of site inspection (secondary); and
- The experience and capabilities of the research team (secondary).¹⁶

Qualitative Analysis

We will supplement our quantitative analysis of opioid prevalence rates with qualitative interviews with state-level key informants in four to six states to understand the challenges and promising practices in monitoring opiate prescribing and diversion, developing prevention interventions, and developing an opioid prevention and treatment infrastructure in rural communities. Given the inter-relationships between prescription and illegal opioid use, we will focus on states with a substantial opioid problems in rural communities such as Maine, Vermont, West Virginia, Ohio, Washington, and others. Using semi-structured interview protocols, we will interview approximately four to six key stakeholders in each state including state government officials, elected officials, substance abuse professionals, and law enforcement officials to understand the range of state interventions to control rural opioid use and their impact on prescription and illicit opioid use.

Key stakeholder interviews will be conducted using semi-structured interview protocols developed by the study team with support of an expert panel as described below. All interviews will be transcribed and analyzed for key themes. Interview transcripts will be shared with key informants for review and comment. Themes will be organized and summarized across the participating states and categories of key stakeholders.

To inform our choice of states and key informants we will recruit a panel of experts on opiate abuse selected from federal agencies, policy centers and professional organizations and convene one or two conference calls to get their suggestions. We will also use this panel to assist in framing interview questions and protocols and interpreting quantitative and qualitative findings.

Human Subjects Research: We expect that NSDUH portion of the project will qualify for exemption from IRB approval under Category 4 of 45 CFR 46.101(b)(4), because the NSDUH is a de-identified, publicly available, secondary data set. The qualitative component of the project will require application to the USM IRB. If access to SAMHSA's Data Portal is approved, we will update our IRB submissions as appropriate. Although little risk is anticipated for any participant or their organizations, we will submit our study design and interview protocols to the University of Southern Maine's IRB for approval.

Staff Qualifications, Staff Loading Chart, and Timetable: John Gale, M.S. will serve as the principal investigator, responsible for the integrity and timely completion of the project. Jennifer Lenardson, M.H.S., will be the project director, responsible for day-to-day project activities, conducting the data analysis, and contributing to the literature review and writing of final products. Lindsey Smith, Ph.D., will provide quantitative oversight. Anush Hansen and Karen Pearson will participate in the qualitative interviews and the literature review. The staff loading chart and time table are presented below.

Products and Their Dissemination: We will produce a policy brief summarizing our key findings and describing our results in detail. We will submit abstracts for presentation at the annual meetings of the National Rural Health Association (NRHA) and the National Association of Rural Mental Health (NARMH). We will provide copies of our brief to NARMH, the National Organization of State Offices of Rural Health, and the Health Resources and Services Administration Information Center.

Ms. Braun reported that DOC is reviewing the grant applications and will work with staff from the Indiana Judicial Center to make funding recommendations to the Advisory Council. Jane Seigel led the Advisory Council in a lengthy discussion of priorities in making funding awards. The Advisory Council decided that collaboration, increasing capacity, readiness, use of EBP, and target population should all be considerations in the award process. She also reported that treatment in jails will be covered with a prior authorization for 21 days before release, for reincarceration or for reentry.
8. Council Procedural Matters. Jane Seigel distributed the draft voting procedures and reported that members are not required to leave the room when the member’s grant is discussed based on the public nature of the Advisory Council meetings. Dave Powell made a motion to approve the voting procedures and Chris Cunningham seconded the motion. The Advisory Council unanimously approved the voting procedures.
9. Preliminary Annual Report. Jane Seigel distributed copies of the draft annual report and reported that it must be submitted to the Legislative Council, Governor Pence and Chief Justice Rush before October 1st. John Hill stated that he can receive the report on behalf of the governor.

10. Website. Jane Seigel reported that the Judicial Center is working with in.gov to create a website for the Advisory Council.

11. Next meeting. Jane Seigel announced that the Advisory Council is scheduled to meet next on October 13th at 10 a.m. at the Indiana Judicial Center.

Today I had an introduction meeting with Steve McCaffrey of Mental Health America. Mr. McCaffrey wanted to discuss the Drug Task Force and recommendations pertaining to treatment and workforce development that, per Mental Health America, the Governor should consider for swift action. I asked Mr. McCaffrey to summarize his comments. I have included his email below for your review.

I also received an email from the IN State Nurses Association on recommendations for the Drug Task Force pertaining to the mental health workforce in Indiana. I will send those comments for your review in a separate email.

Thank you,

Hi Tyler—

It was so nice to get the chance to speak with you today and talk about some ideas.

Per your request, I have provided you with a quick summary of some of the low hanging fruit that we discussed today:

Workforce Development:

Because behavioral health services were not readily reimbursable before the Affordable Care Act and HIP 2.0, too few professionals entered the workforce. Now with the passage of ACA and HIP 2.0 reimbursement, there is a tremendous workforce shortage due to both the high need as well as pent-up demand. Low hanging fruit could include:

1. Provide funding for the Loan Forgiveness program created by HEA 1360 and administered by DMHA for behavioral health professionals. DMHA began the program with start-up funds from DMHA, AG, and DOH. The funding needs to be increased to meet the appropriate need and made ongoing. Grants are given for one year of a loan amount for each year the graduate works in the public behavioral health system in Indiana. DMHA could provide the amount of dollars needed based on the appropriate applications not funded. I believe in the first year, approximately $600,000 was made available to assist 60 applicants (That is a rough estimate and Kevin would have the exact numbers).
2. Loan forgiveness addresses the long-term need for education, but not the short-term need we have today. We already have a healthcare workforce, but they have little or no expertise in mental health and addictive disorders and are uncomfortable treating these patients—and rightfully so. Mental health and substance Abuse training for primary care physicians, nurse practitioners, and mental health counselors would enable our existing workforce to meet the need. This could be accomplished through continuing ed, certifications, or other training options. An uptick in reimbursement for professionals with a mental health or addiction certification would create a market and encourage providers to obtain the training.
3. We do have a workforce in addiction counseling that is not being maximized. Indiana passed a licensure statute for addiction counselors several years ago and while the masters level license (Licensed Clinical Addiction Counselor—LCAC) is reimbursed through the Medicaid Rehab Option, that has not been finalized for Medicaid in general (clinic option). As a result, these professionals cannot be used by providers to the full extent possible.
4. Similarly, the trend in behavioral health includes the utilization of peer specialists. Research demonstrates that these individuals have more positive outcomes and are reimbursed at a reduced cost. Medicaid reimburses peer specialists for mental health currently and while SAMSHA provided a grant to train recovery coaches in addiction, Medicaid does not similarly provide reimbursement--causing a barrier for anyone considering the training.

Treatment:

1. There is no recovery without detox, but we have insufficient detox services in Indiana. This is something that would require additional and more robust services statewide, but there is low hanging fruit with regard to inpatient detox. Medicaid reimburses for inpatient detox, but it is limited by the Medical Necessity requirement. Essentially, risk of life is the test for medical necessity. Changing the definition to something like “critical to the success of an abstinence based treatment plan” would make inpatient detox available to get people clean—which is of course the goal.
2. Successful outcomes for addiction treatment are greatly enhanced when you have available all the tools in the toolbox and the ability to utilize what is needed in an integrated way. A critical tool that must be accessible and used appropriately is Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT). MAT is EBP and now promoted heavily by SAMSHA with grants to the states. Vivitrol is covered by FFS Medicaid without barriers, but the MCEs require fail-first requirements as a way to save money in the short-run. The barriers include a fail-first on oral naltrexone, which is often-times unsuccessful for opioid addiction and one MCE requires a fail first on suboxone—an opioid maintenance medication. Of course it makes little sense to detox someone only to put them back on an opioid as opposed to the relapse prevention medication (Vivitrol).

3. Of course none of our efforts can be effective if individuals are not eligible for HIP 2.0. There is still a need for assistance with eligibility submissions. One thought would be to permit CMHC reimbursement for eligibility determinations much like they receive for assessments. It is my understanding that state funding would be required, but it might be an appropriate investment to maximize access to services.

Obviously, there are other areas in which the state could move forward, but I hope this adequately summarizes what we discussed today as low hanging fruit.

Let me know if I can assist you further in any way.

In last year's legislative session the Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council (JRAC) was created to oversee distribution of funds to community corrections, probation and for mental health/addiction. Three of our agencies are on the JRAC (DOC, CJI, and Division of Mental Health & Addiction). Even though not officially part of the Council, State Budget Agency staff Hillary Alderete and Ron Sobecki, and from the Governor's Office Allison and I have been participating in the meetings. JRAC is required to submit an annual report to the Governor. It is attached.

Even though the JRAC was only created effective July 1st, good progress is being made in developing grant guidance and grant solicitations. Funding will be approved in the October meeting. The availability of funds increases next year and the grant solicitation for next year's funds will go out at the end of this calendar year so grants will be approved for July 1, 2016.

1006 Grant Application Highlights

- 60 applications submitted
- $17.4 million in total funds requested ($5 million available)
- Community corrections—$13.5 M, probation—$3.4 M, court recidivism reduction—$535,000, prosecutor—$28,000
- 70 counties represented in application requests

- 4. Welcome & Introductions. Chief Justice Loretta Rush welcomed everyone to the inaugural meeting of the Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council and thanked the members for meeting on the first day that the Advisory Council officially exists by statute. She remarked that the meeting was an historic occasion and that the work of the group will have an important impact on the criminal justice system. Jane Seigel led the members and guests in introductions.
- 5. Summary of Organizational Meeting. Jane Seigel provided a summary of the organizational meeting held on June 17, 2015. She highlighted the importance of member attendance and encouraged members to bring designees to the meetings. Ms. Seigel reported that the members at the organizational meeting reviewed the Advisory Council's statutory duties under HEA 1006, discussed member expectations, established two work groups (overview of funding and recidivism), and discussed the grant process envisioned by the Department of Correction and the voucher process envisioned by the Division of Mental Health and Addiction.

- 6. Review DOC Grant Amendment Application Instructions. The Department of Correction distributed copies of the grant application instructions. The Advisory Council members discussed making the following revisions to the document: change the purpose of the grant to include all moderate and high risk felony offenders and include Autism Spectrum Disorder; add supervision and the statutory citation to program targets; clarify that previous awards are part of consideration in making awards, add that the grant awards may become part of the county's base award from DOC; add that the total for grant awards is $5 million and awards may be reduced based upon the number of applications; change the project award period start date to November 1; add a reference to the DMHA funding for certified treatment services; add application procedures for counties that do not have a community corrections advisory board; add "funded through county funds" in the explanation of supplanting in funding guidelines; change the target population, change bullet #3 and #4 to include probation and community corrections in #6 of funding guidelines. Jane Seigel asked that DOC make the changes as soon as possible so that the Advisory Council members can review the document one more time before it is released next week. The Department of Correction agreed to send copies of the grant amendment application documents to the Indiana Judicial Center and the Prosecuting Attorneys Council so they can send to judges, chief probation officers and prosecutors.
- 7. Review DOC Grant Amendment Application. The Department of Correction distributed copies of the grant application. The Advisory Council members discussed making conforming changes from the application instructions. Julie Lanham explained that grant applicants will use the budget section to make the funding request.
- 8. Discuss County Collaboration Plan Template. Jane Seigel reported that the collaboration plan template was developed by DOC and the Judicial Center. She explained the collaboration plan will be required as part of the grant amendment application process. The members discussed that counties can apply for year two of the funding cycle if they cannot complete the plan by the grant amendment due date.
- 9. Update from DMHA on forensic treatment services fund. Kevin Moore reported that DMHA is still developing the process for distributing the forensic treatment funds and looking at rates it will pay providers. He stated that DMHA plans to create an operations manual and offer trainings to treatment providers. Mr. Moore also reported that DMHA has identified three additional positions that it will need to implement the voucher system.

Stephanie Spoolstra distributed handouts to the Advisory Council members. She stated that vouchers will be limited to providers trained to deliver services to forensic populations and DMHA plans to provide regional trainings in motivational interviewing for a forensic population. Ms. Spoolstra explained the handout that shows the process once a treatment referral is made by a criminal justice entity and highlighted that felons referred to treatment will have individual treatment plans. Ms. Spoolstra also stated that the forensic treatment services funds will follow the individual and there will be an individual treatment cap of $2500 per person. She also stated that most people will qualify for insurance, Medicaid or HIP 2.0 before they reach the cap.

Sara Cozad reported that DMHA is seeking input from the Advisory Council on five questions. She stated that question #1 is on the preferred referral process—DMHA is considering whether referral agencies will refer clients to a designated assessor (following the Access to Recovery Model) or refer directly to a treatment provider for assessment. She said DMHA is leaning toward the referral directly to the provider for assessment and wants the opinion of the Advisory Council. The Advisory Council members stated that they are in agreement with DMHA's preference. Ms. Cozad stated that question #2 is about treatment providers requesting IRAS results from the referral source. The Advisory Council agreed that this would be a good idea. Ms. Cozad stated that question #3 is about barriers to sharing court documents with treatment providers. The Advisory Council discussed that sharing court documents would be helpful and there may be barriers to sharing some documents. The Advisory Council members agreed to discuss this issue further at the next meeting. Ms. Cozad stated question #4 is about whether there is data to determine treatment providers that community supervision agencies refer to most frequently. The Advisory Council members discussed that Drug Courts and Alcohol and Drug programs do not collect this data and suggested looking at the mapping done by the Children's Commission. Ms. Cozad stated that question #5 is about ensuring there is an equitable allocation of funds among the providers/referral sources. The Advisory Council members recommended that DMHA place caps on the total amount of funding available by quarter and then analyze the quarterly distribution by provider to determine if the funding should be allocated differently. John Hill stated that he has a map that shows overdose deaths in each county and offered to share it with the Advisory Council. The Advisory Council members also discussed using CHINS maps related to heroin use and the possibility of designating high priority areas.

10. Overview of Funding Opportunities. Jane Seigel requested that the Advisory Council members review the overview of funding opportunities document and provide feedback by July 8th.

11. Future meeting dates. Jane Seigel announced that the Advisory Council is scheduled to meet on the following dates: July 15 at 11 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Judicial Center; August 5; August 19; and September 15. The time and location of the August and September meetings is to be determined.

Julie Lanham reported that DOC plans to conduct technical assistance training sessions on the following dates: July 30 at New Castle, July 31 in Knox County, August 10 in Wabash County, August 11 in Elkhart County, and August 13 in Porter County. Aaron Garner distributed the DOC monthly population report and stated that the report is required by statute. He gave an overview of the report and highlighted that most new admissions still fall under the old criminal code (only 8% have a 1006 crime). Randy Koester reported that DOC submits a similar report to the State Budget Agency and will consider a trend report at the end of the year.

- 6. DMHA Update. Kevin Moore presented information on the Healthy Indiana Plan (HIP 2.0) to the Council members. He explained the eligibility criteria and reported that 70% of enrollees are in the HIP Plus plan. Mr. Moore also stated that DMHA expects 400-500,000 people to enroll in HIP. The Council members engaged in a lengthy conversation on who can pay for services to incarcerated persons. DMHA stated that their interpretation of HEA 1006 is that they are limited to paying for services provided to eligible individuals in a community setting and cannot pay for services for incarcerated persons. The Council members discussed the mental health treatment needs of persons sent to jail and whether a court order for the treatment could trigger the voucher. DMHA stated they would discuss the jail option with their legal counsel and report back at the next meeting. Hilary Alderete suggested development of a “cheat sheet” on who can pay for treatment based on where the person is located.

Future Policy Discussion Items. The Council discussed the following as future policy discussion items: definition of recidivism (subgroup volunteers are Devon McDonald, Mary Kay Hudson, Chris Cunningham, Julie Lanham, Stephanie Spoolstra, David Powell, and Aaron Garner); the real need for funding of mental health services and how to give feedback to the General Assembly (legislative subgroup volunteers are Steve McCaffrey, Larry Landis, Dave Heath, and Linda Brady); data collection (subgroup volunteers are Court Technology, Aaron Garner, Devon McDonald, Kevin Moore, Troy Hatfield and Tom Rhodes); and future roll-out of funding.

reported that DOC recently conducted six regional technical assistance training sessions on the grant application process. She stated that the trainings were well-attended and that most questions related to reporting requirements. Julie Lanham reported that the funding for the first round of grants should go out by November 1st and that the second round of grant applications will be due by December 31st. David Powell reported that he was contacted by the prosecutors in Marshall and Koskiusko Counties because they are confused by the grant application process. The Advisory Council discussed the need for a triage team to meet with Marshall, Koskiusko and the other counties that do not have community corrections programs.

- 6. DMHA Update. Kevin Moore reported that DMHA's vendor has an issue with the technology for the vouchers that will move the availability of the system back to November 1st. DMHA will conduct training for providers in October on the provider manual and the voucher process. Sara Cozad reported that DMHA hired three new staff members to support the forensic treatment program, that DMHA will complete the provider manual by September 11th, and will conduct a webinar for criminal justice partners on September 5th. Ms. Cozad also reported that DMHA is developing rates for services and plans to review and approve provider applications as they are received. Mr. Moore added that DMHA will identify gaps in treatment coverage as the applications come in and will contact community mental health centers about filling the gaps. Mr. Moore also stated that because transportation is an issue in rural areas, providing services by telehealth may be an option to fill service gaps. In addition, Mr. Moore stated that DMHA will put together a chart that shows what services are covered by HIP or Medicaid. Stephanie Spoolstra stated that persons in work-release would be eligible for voucher services if the services are provided outside the walls of the jail or facility.
- 7. Recidivism Committee Report. Mary Kay Hudson reported that the Recidivism Committee met last week and had a lengthy discussion on how to report recidivism. She state that this is complicated and will take some time for the committee to work it out. Ms. Hudson also reported that the committee will not be able to report on state-level success of programs and may need to seek clarification from the General Assembly on this issue.
- 8. Preliminary Annual Report. Jane Seigel reported that the Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council is required by statute to make an annual report to the General Assembly by October 1st. She stated that she plans to submit minutes from the meetings and details on the DOC applications and timelines for distribution of grant funds. Ms. Seigel stated that she would like to have the first report ready by September 25th. Larry Landis suggested a follow-up report at the beginning of the year to report how the grant funds were distributed. Ms. Seigel suggested that the Legislative Committee review the statute for potential amendments.

- 9. Council Procedural Matters. Jane Seigel reported that the Advisory Council needs to come up with a voting process. She distributed a handout with proposed voting procedures and explained that it is borrowed from the process used by the Indiana Criminal Justice Institutes Board of Directors. Devon McDonald explained that the ICJI voting process requires a voting member to abstain from voting on his agency's grant application and to step out of the room for discussion by the subcommittee. The Advisory Council members discussed the proposed procedures and requested that a #5 be added to require the member to leave the room during review of his agency's application and not participate in discussion.
- 10. Future Agenda Items. Jane Seigel announced that agenda items for future meetings will include reports from subcommittees, reports from DOC and DMHA, review of grant applications, and education on evidence-based practices.

- 5. DOC Population Report. Jane Seigel reported that Aaron Garner distributed the July population report to the Advisory Council members via email. She stated that there was nothing of note to report and that Mr. Garner will give a full report at the October meeting.
- 6. DOC report on grant process. Deb Braun reported that DOC received 60 grant applications requesting $17.4 million. Ms. Braun stated that the requests consisted of 59 community corrections requests for $13.5 million, 37 probation requests for $3.4 million, 6 court recidivism reduction requests for $535,000 and 1 prosecutor diversion request for $28,000 and were mostly for expansion of programs and collaborative projects between community corrections and probation. She also stated that DOC plans to contact applicants for clarification on unclear objectives. Ms. Braun reported that DOC is reviewing the grant applications and will work with staff from the Indiana Judicial Center to make funding recommendations to the Advisory Council. Jane Seigel led the Advisory Council in a lengthy discussion of priorities in making funding awards. The Advisory Council decided that collaboration, increasing capacity, readiness, use of EBP, and target population should all be considerations in the award process. The Advisory Council also discussed how to allocate funds and decided that funding a small number of applicants rather than all applicants has the best chance of successful outcomes. The Advisory Council requested that DOC and IJC staff make recommendations for funding at the next meeting. Ms. Seigel announced that she will create a subcommittee to review the grant process and suggest improvements for FY 17 grant applications.

7. DMHA Report. Kevin Moore reported that DMHA is still targeting November 1st to begin the treatment voucher process. He also reported that DMHA has branded the forensic treatment program as “Recovery Works”. Sara Cozad reported that DMHA has started hiring staff for Recovery Works and that the manual has been review by the legal department. She also reported that the first webinar for treatment providers was on September 21st. The webinar generated a lot of interest from providers and several have already submitted applications. DMHA will conduct the first webinar for criminal justice partners on October 5th and Ms. Cozad asked Advisory Council members to inform their peers of the date. Ms. Cozad distributed a timeline of events and a list of proposed definitions. She also reported that treatment in jails will be covered with a prior authorization for 21 days before release, for reincarceration, or for reentry.
8. Council Procedural Matters. Jane Seigel distributed the draft voting procedures and reported that members are not required to leave the room when the member’s grant is discussed based on the public nature of the Advisory Council meetings. Dave Powell made a motion to approve the voting procedures and Chris Cunningham seconded the motion. The Advisory Council unanimously approved the voting procedures.
9. Preliminary Annual Report. Jane Seigel distributed copies of the draft annual report and reported that it must be submitted to the Legislative Council, Governor Pence and Chief Justice Rush before October 1st. She stated that the minutes from this meeting will be attached to the report. Sara Cozad stated that she will send a new DMHA timeline for the report. John Hill stated that he can receive the report on behalf of the governor.

10. Website. Jane Seigel reported that the Judicial Center is working with in.gov to create a website for the Advisory Council.

11. Next meeting. Jane Seigel announced that the Advisory Council is scheduled to meet next on October 13th at 10 a.m. at the Indiana Judicial Center.

- 4. Welcome & Introductions. Chief Justice Loretta Rush welcomed everyone to the inaugural meeting of the Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council and thanked the members for meeting on the first day that the Advisory Council officially exists by statute. She remarked that the meeting was an historic occasion and that the work of the group will have an important impact on the criminal justice system. Jane Seigel led the members and guests in introductions.
- 5. Summary of Organizational Meeting. Jane Seigel provided a summary of the organizational meeting held on June 17, 2015. She highlighted the importance of member attendance and encouraged members to bring designees to the meetings. Ms. Seigel reported that the members at the organizational meeting reviewed the Advisory Council's statutory duties under HEA 1006, discussed member expectations, established two work groups (overview of funding and recidivism), and discussed the grant process envisioned by the Department of Correction and the voucher process envisioned by the Division of Mental Health and Addiction.

- 6. Review DOC Grant Amendment Application Instructions. The Department of Correction distributed copies of the grant application instructions. The Advisory Council members discussed making the following revisions to the document: change the purpose of the grant to include all moderate and high risk felony offenders and include Autism Spectrum Disorder; add supervision and the statutory citation to program targets; clarify that previous awards are part of consideration in making awards, add that the grant awards may become part of the county's base award from DOC; add that the total for grant awards is $5 million and awards may be reduced based upon the number of applications; change the project award period start date to November 1; add a reference to the DMHA funding for certified treatment services; add application procedures for counties that do not have a community corrections advisory board; add "funded through county funds" in the explanation of supplanting in funding guidelines; change the target population, change bullet #3 and #4 to include probation and community corrections in #6 of funding guidelines. Jane Seigel asked that DOC make the changes as soon as possible so that the Advisory Council members can review the document one more time before it is released next week. The Department of Correction agreed to send copies of the grant amendment application documents to the Indiana Judicial Center and the Prosecuting Attorneys Council so they can send to judges, chief probation officers and prosecutors.
- 7. Review DOC Grant Amendment Application. The Department of Correction distributed copies of the grant application. The Advisory Council members discussed making conforming changes from the application instructions. Julie Lanham explained that grant applicants will use the budget section to make the funding request.
- 8. Discuss County Collaboration Plan Template. Jane Seigel reported that the collaboration plan template was developed by DOC and the Judicial Center. She explained the collaboration plan will be required as part of the grant amendment application process. The members discussed that counties can apply for year two of the funding cycle if they cannot complete the plan by the grant amendment due date.
- 9. Update from DMHA on forensic treatment services fund. Kevin Moore reported that DMHA is still developing the process for distributing the forensic treatment funds and looking at rates it will pay providers. He stated that DMHA plans to create an operations manual and offer trainings to treatment providers. Mr. Moore also reported that DMHA has identified three additional positions that it will need to implement the voucher system.

Stephanie Spoolstra distributed handouts to the Advisory Council members. She stated that vouchers will be limited to providers trained to deliver services to forensic populations and DMHA plans to provide regional trainings in motivational interviewing for a forensic population. Ms. Spoolstra explained the handout that shows the process once a treatment referral is made by a criminal justice entity and highlighted that felons referred to treatment will have individual treatment plans. Ms. Spoolstra also stated that the forensic treatment services funds will follow the individual and there will be an individual treatment cap of $2500 per person. She also stated that most people will qualify for insurance, Medicaid or HIP 2.0 before they reach the cap.

Sara Cozad reported that DMHA is seeking input from the Advisory Council on five questions. She stated that question #1 is on the preferred referral process—DMHA is considering whether referral agencies will refer clients to a designated assessor (following the Access to Recovery Model) or refer directly to a treatment provider for assessment. She said DMHA is leaning toward the referral directly to the provider for assessment and wants the opinion of the Advisory Council. The Advisory Council members stated that they are in agreement with DMHA's preference. Ms. Cozad stated that question #2 is about treatment providers requesting IRAS results from the referral source. The Advisory Council agreed that this would be a good idea. Ms. Cozad stated that question #3 is about barriers to sharing court documents with treatment providers. The Advisory Council discussed that sharing court documents would be helpful and there may be barriers to sharing some documents. The Advisory Council members agreed to discuss this issue further at the next meeting. Ms. Cozad stated question #4 is about whether there is data to determine treatment providers that community supervision agencies refer to most frequently. The Advisory Council members discussed that Drug Courts and Alcohol and Drug programs do not collect this data and suggested looking at the mapping done by the Children's Commission. Ms. Cozad stated that question #5 is about ensuring there is an equitable allocation of funds among the providers/referral sources. The Advisory Council members recommended that DMHA place caps on the total amount of funding available by quarter and then analyze the quarterly distribution by provider to determine if the funding should be allocated differently. John Hill stated that he has a map that shows overdose deaths in each county and offered to share it with the Advisory Council. The Advisory Council members also discussed using CHINS maps related to heroin use and the possibility of designating high priority areas.

10. Overview of Funding Opportunities. Jane Seigel requested that the Advisory Council members review the overview of funding opportunities document and provide feedback by July 8th.

11. Future meeting dates. Jane Seigel announced that the Advisory Council is scheduled to meet on the following dates: July 15 at 11 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Judicial Center; August 5; August 19; and September 15. The time and location of the August and September meetings is to be determined.

Mr. Moore added that DMHA will identify gaps in treatment coverage as the applications come in and will contact community mental health centers about filling the gaps. Mr. Moore also stated that because transportation is an issue in rural areas, providing services by telehealth may be an option to fill service gaps. In addition, Mr. Moore stated that DMHA will put together a chart that shows what services are covered by HIP or Medicaid. Stephanie Spoolstra stated that persons in work-release would be eligible for voucher services if the services are provided outside the walls of the jail or facility.

She state that this is complicated and will take some time for the committee to work it out. She stated that she plans to submit minutes from the meetings and details on the DOC applications and timelines for distribution of grant funds. Ms. Seigel stated that she would like to have the first report ready by September 25th. Larry Landis suggested a follow-up report at the beginning of the year to report how the grant funds were distributed. Ms. Seigel suggested that the Legislative Committee review the statute for potential amendments.

- 9. Council Procedural Matters. Jane Seigel reported that the Advisory Council needs to come up with a voting process. She distributed a handout with proposed voting procedures and explained that it is borrowed from the process used by the Indiana Criminal Justice Institutes Board of Directors. The Advisory Council members discussed the proposed procedures and requested that a #5 be added to require the member to leave the room during review of his agency's application and not participate in discussion.

Subject: EBDM Mapping Session II

When: Monday, August 31, 2015 9:00 AM-4:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).

Where: Indiana Judicial Center - 9th floor - room 9002

Good afternoon!

On August 31, the state team will continue the criminal justice decision point mapping exercise conducted at the June kickoff meeting and the August 14 meeting.

The mapping session will be broken down into a morning session and an afternoon session (with lunch on your own in between).

- The morning session (9 am – 12 pm) will cover the following decision points: sentencing decisions, institutional intervention decisions, institutional release/parole release decisions, and reentry planning decisions
- The afternoon session (1 pm – 4 pm) will cover the following decision points: Probation and parole intervention decisions, community treatment interventions, violation response decisions, and discharge from criminal justice system decisions

The objectives for each decision point include:

- Identify terms that need to be defined at each stage
- Identify the data currently collected and what data we want to be collected
- Statutes, rules, and policies at the state level that govern this decision point
- What decisions are made, who makes them, and what do they base the decisions upon
- What should the state team be doing in this area?

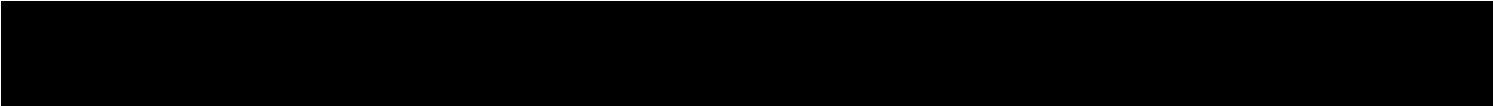

All team members are encouraged to attend, but we especially need in attendance subject matter experts in the above areas. If these decision points are within your area of expertise (law enforcement, prosecutors, defense counsel, judicial officers, DOC, community corrections, treatment, probation), please plan to attend the entire meeting or send a designee who can respond to the decision point objectives.

Please note that the discussion points for this session may change based upon the decision points covered at the August 14 mapping session. I will update this meeting notice to reflect any changes in the agenda. If necessary, the team will convene for a third mapping session to complete the process.

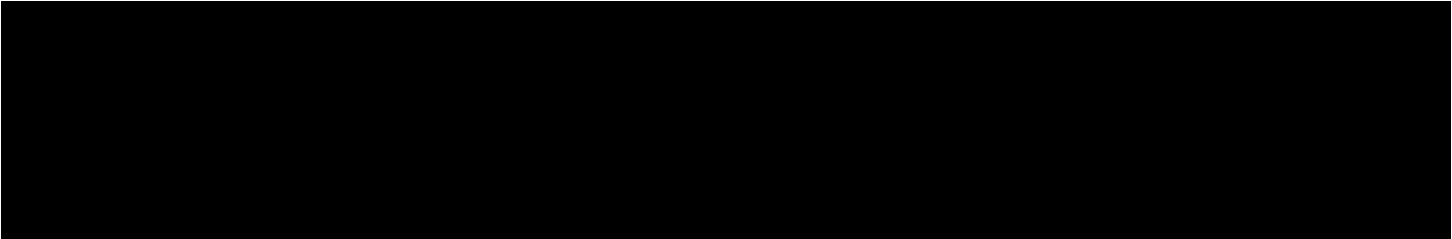

I hope to see you on August 31!

Meeting Minutes

The Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council met at the Indiana Judicial Center in the 8th Floor Conference Center at 30 South Meridian Street in Indianapolis, Indiana on July 15, 2015. The Advisory Council met 11:00 a.m.-2:00 p.m.

- 1. Members present. The following members of the Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council were present: Larry Landis, Executive Director of the Indiana Public Defender Council; Jim Oliver, designee of the Executive Director of the Indiana Prosecuting Attorneys Council; Kevin Moore, Director of the Division of Mental Health and Addiction; Randy Koester, designee of the Commissioner of the Indiana Department of Correction; Devon McDonald, Interim Executive Director of the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute; Chris Cunningham, President of the Indiana Association of Community Corrections Act Counties; Linda Brady, President of the Probation Officer's Professional Association of Indiana; Bill Wilson, designee of the President of the Indiana Sheriffs Association; and Jane Seigel, Executive Director of the Indiana Judicial Center and Council Chair.
- 2. Guests present. The following guests also attended the meeting: Julie Lanham and Aaron Garner from the Indiana Department of Correction; Bill Watson from the Indiana Association of Community Corrections Act Counties; Hilary Alderete from the Indiana State Budget Agency; Allison Karns from the Office of Governor Mike Pence; Sara Cozad and Stephanie Spoolstra from the Division of Mental Health and Addiction; and Steve McCaffrey from Mental Health America Indiana.
- 3. Staff assistance. Jennifer Bauer and Michelle Goodman provided staff assistance to the Advisory Council.
- 4. Approval of minutes. The minutes from the July 1, 2015 meeting were unanimously approved. Jane Seigel announced that the minutes will be posted to the Judicial Center's website.
- 5. DOC Update. Jane Seigel congratulated DOC for distributing the grant amendment documents. Ms. Seigel reported that she has received many questions about help sessions for the application. Julie Lanham reported that DOC plans to conduct technical assistance training sessions on the following dates: July 30 at New Castle, July 31 in Knox County, August 10 in Wabash County, August 11 in Elkhart County, and August 13 in Porter County. Aaron Garner distributed the DOC monthly population report and stated that the report is required by statute. He gave an overview of the report and highlighted that most new admissions still fall under the old criminal code (only 8% have a 1006 crime). Randy Koester reported that DOC submits a similar report to the State Budget Agency and will consider a trend report at the end of the year.

- 6. Update from DMHA . Kevin Moore presented information on the Healthy Indiana Plan (HIP 2.0) to the Council members. He explained the eligibility criteria and reported that 70% of enrollees are in the HIP Plus plan. Mr. Moore also explained that persons who qualify as “medically frail” qualify for Medicaid and that the term has a fixed definition. Mr. Moore also stated that DMHA expects 400-500,000 people to enroll in HIP. The Council members engaged in a lengthy conversation on who can pay for services to incarcerated persons. DMHA stated that their interpretation of HEA 1006 is that they are limited to paying for services provided to eligible individuals in a community setting and cannot pay for services for incarcerated persons. The Council members discussed the mental health treatment needs of persons sent to jail and whether a court order for the treatment could trigger the voucher. DMHA stated they would discuss the jail option with their legal counsel and report back at the next meeting. Hilary Alderete suggested development of a “cheat sheet” on who can pay for treatment based on where the person is located.
- 7. Future Policy Discussion Items. The Council discussed the following as future policy discussion items: definition of recidivism (subgroup volunteers are Devin McDonald, Mary Kay Hudson, Chris Cunningham, Julie Lanham, Stephanie Spoolstra, David Powell, and Aaron Garner); the real need for funding of mental health services and how to give feedback to the General Assembly (legislative subgroup volunteers are Steve McCaffrey, Larry Landis, Dave Heath, and Linda Brady); data collection (subgroup volunteers are Court Technology, Aaron Garner, Devin McDonald, Kevin Moore, Troy Hatfield and Tom Rhodes); and future roll-out of funding.
- 8. Future Education Opportunities. The Council discussed the following as future education opportunities: treatment programs, foundations of evidence-based practices, and outcome evaluations/performance measures.
- 9. Next meeting dates. Jane Seigel announced that the Advisory Council is scheduled to meet on the following dates: August 19 at 1:30-3:30 p.m. and September 15 at 10 a.m.-3 p.m., with locations to be determined.

Mimi Carter reported that she is coordinating an EBDM session in which DOC representatives will report on their state activities. The session will include highlights from each EBDM state and how EBDM efforts can enhance other state efforts, such as Justice Reinvestment initiatives.

Please note that since the team's July 20 meeting, ACA has canceled this workshop session.

National Association of Pretrial Services Agencies – August 16-19, 2015, JW Marriott

Mimi Carter reported she is coordinating the EBDM opening plenary at the National Association of Pretrial Service Agencies conference in Indianapolis (August 16-19, 2015, JW Marriott). Members discussed having state team members representing the judicial branch, prosecution, and defense counsel. Mimi Carter stated that the session will discuss Indiana's activities to date and how EBDM may assist in furthering Indiana's pretrial release initiatives. The session will also include representatives from Phase II EBDM sites.

Judicial Conference Annual Meeting – September 9-11, 2015, Indiana Convention Center

Indiana Mapping Discussion... Arrest Decision Point

State Team Mapping Notes – Arrest Decisions

Law enforcement- call for service or observe

Dispatch – regional for example – may be funded by legislature.

Integrated Public Safety Commission – information from Sonya on efforts to develop statewide system, promulgates some rules- Kellie at IPSIC administers a JAG grant for their initiatives. It is a state agency.

Some counties have county dispatch, town dispatch that are not coordinated

No statewide data on dispatch calls

Is Marion County trying to get a system so they can track calls by person / location. To track mental health or gang information. Current tracking of this information is project based. Example right now is they could track narcan dispensing.

Mimi- if you were starting over on this piece, what would you want to see happen from a statewide perspective. Sonya – a statewide CAD system. Steve- autism, homeland security info, narcan, etc. Steve – helps the officer know what they are going into. This information now goes into case notes at the direction of local law enforcement directives.

Cindy- what are the data points we want to know across all locals? What do we want to collect/know statewide.

Steve- What Marion county wanted sounds great and what we want. Heard about in a hearing. Thought they wanted $15M.

Mimi- How important is this to what we are doing? Derek- without this we do have access to statewide arrest data. There is nothing at this point to provide officers information if we are trying to use screening tools and EBP. Steve – if you care about CIT, this is the information that would lead you in the right direction. Thinks we could piggy back on other initiatives. Steve C. – this system could query other systems, would not have to have it all. Those other data system could be better, such as IDACS.

Reactions to calls and street contact is informed by a combination of state and local policies. Input from judges, prosecutors, etc, on who they want in their jail.

State policies that dictate actions: whether it is a crime, level of crime. It may depend on if it is dangerous behavior – not necessarily a crime, like driving without head lights on. State policies / laws have decriminalized a lot of things recently. State controls content of LEA generally.

State law- criminal procedure- appellate issues are all guided at the state level. There is strict case law on when you can arrest for a misd and when for a felony. State police dictated by state policies, but may also be subject to local policies. DNR, excise, port authorities, university police, also have arrest powers. Parole officers influence arrest decisions.

As we think about creating coherent policy around the state, what does this suggest to you? if you were in charge of redesign, does change need to happen at the local level (discretion) or state level in policy?

Many things boil down to discretion, but from the state level we can change people's way of thinking locally by changing penalties for drug crimes, etc. Provide LE tools to make decisions about arrest – like using a risk assessment.

In what ways can the state support effective arrest and non- arrest decisions- RANKED as IMPORTANT -) Policies around penalties and consequences.

-) Collecting and analyzing data
-) Requiring specific reporting data
-) Providing evidence based info and tools (e.g. CIT and many others) including info around when best to apply these tools -) Provide training opportunities on all of the above. The state controls basic curriculum on the LEA.

Possible Strategy : How do we position the JRAC to be a key state policy advisory group? ALL ARE COMFORTABLE WITH THIS.

Broke for lunch at 12:10. Back at 12:55.

Arrest – from a philosophical view, what do we want to happen at the arrest point?

Andrew – only arrested if they present a clear threat to public safety

Michelle – make a triage decision regarding options: first assess then ignore, cite, treat/divert, summons, arrest

Cindy - Interaction not reinforce criminal thinking (Mimi reframes to interaction reinforces prosocial attitudes and behaviors.

Sara – officers seek consultation as needed.

Mimi – reorder to assess, triage, consult, reinforce prosocial, arrest

Steve C. – too narrow- may not present a public safety threat, may need to arrest.

Discussed that officers need to manage offense and perception of others. Modified – to arrest people who jeopardize peace and public safety.

Discussed – Brett Clark – ID is a custodial arrest the way they count it in Hendricks County, non custodial arrest is the same as a summons. IGNORE = Take no Action, Warning

Again discussed important to define terminology, i.e. arrest v. summons and then determining local variation in practice and terminology.

Re: CMS Announces New Service Delivery Opportunities for Individuals with a Substance Use Disorder

Today, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) announced new opportunities for states to design service delivery systems for Medicaid beneficiaries with a substance use disorder (SUD); including a new opportunity for demonstration projects approved under section 1115 of the Social Security Act (Act) to ensure that a continuum of care is available to individuals with SUD. This initiative is part of CMS' continued commitment to support state efforts to reform systems of care for individuals with SUD, including enhanced availability of short-term acute care and recovery supports for individuals with SUD, improved care delivery, integrated behavioral and physical care, increased provider capacity and raised quality standards. Today's announcement complements the significant progress many states have made in achieving better outcomes for individuals with a SUD and the recently introduced Medicaid Innovation Accelerator Program that supports participating states in improving their SUD delivery system.

CMS is offering a new opportunity for Medicaid section 1115 demonstration projects to test Medicaid coverage of a full SUD treatment service array in the context of overall SUD service delivery system transformation, provided participating states meet specific requirements. CMS recognizes that existing statutory payment exclusions for services provided to individuals who reside in specific settings may challenge states' abilities to offer a full continuum of care and effectively treat individuals with SUD. As part of this initiative, states may receive federal financial participation (FFP) for costs not otherwise matchable, such as services delivered to targeted populations, in limited geographic areas, or in settings, such as an Institution for Mental Diseases (IMD), that are not otherwise covered under the Medicaid program.

The attached guidance to State Medicaid Directors details the new demonstration opportunity, outlines our expectations of a transformed SUD service delivery system and explains how to submit an application for such a demonstration project.

Re: New Service Delivery Opportunities for Individuals with a Substance Use Disorder

Dear State Medicaid Director:

The purpose of this letter is to inform states of opportunities to design service delivery systems for individuals with substance use disorder (SUD), including a new opportunity for demonstration projects approved under section 1115 of the Social Security Act (Act) to ensure that a continuum of care is available to individuals with SUD. There are numerous federal authorities offering states the flexibility to implement system reforms that improve care, enhance treatment and offer recovery supports for SUD. Many states have made significant progress in achieving better outcomes for individuals with SUD through traditional Medicaid authorities. In addition, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) recently introduced the Medicaid Innovation Accelerator Program (IAP) for SUD to support participating states in improving their SUD delivery system. However, a few states may also want to consider proposing a section 1115 demonstration project in this context to undertake or complement broader SUD delivery system transformation efforts.

Section 1115 demonstration projects allow states to test innovative policy and delivery approaches that promote the objectives of the Medicaid program. States may receive federal financial participation (FFP) for costs not otherwise matchable, such as services delivered to targeted populations, in limited geographic areas, or in settings that are not otherwise covered under the Medicaid program. CMS recognizes the statutory payment exclusions for services provided to individuals who reside in specific settings may challenge states' abilities to offer a full continuum of care and effectively treat individuals with SUDs.¹ CMS supports state efforts to reform systems of care for individuals with SUD, such as by enhancing the availability of short-term acute care and recovery supports for individuals with SUD, improving care delivery, integrating behavioral and physical care, increasing provider capacity and raising quality standards. As stated, CMS is offering a new opportunity for Medicaid demonstration projects authorized under section 1115 to test Medicaid coverage of a full SUD treatment service array in the context of overall SUD service delivery system transformation, provided participating states meet specific requirements outlined below. This letter details the new demonstration opportunity, outlines our expectations of a transformed SUD service delivery system and explains how to submit an application for such a demonstration project.

Background

Medicaid is playing an increasingly important role as a payer for services provided to individuals with SUD in the United States. An estimated 12 percent of adult Medicaid beneficiaries ages 18-64 have an SUD.² In addition, an estimated 15 percent of uninsured individuals who could be newly eligible for Medicaid coverage in the New Adult Group have an SUD.³ CMS is committed to helping states effectively serve these individuals and introduce benefit, practice and payment reforms through the technical assistance and coverage initiatives described below.

States have compelling reasons to provide Medicaid coverage for the identification and treatment of SUD, many of which are given urgency by the national opioid epidemic. Untreated substance use disorders are associated with increased risks for a variety of mental and physical conditions that are costly. In 2009, health insurance payers spent $24 billion to treat SUD, of which Medicaid accounted for 21 percent of expenditures.⁴ Two of the top ten reasons for Medicaid 30-day hospital readmissions are SUD-related.⁵ Individuals with SUD and co-morbid medical conditions account for high Medicaid costs, such that $3.3 billion was expended in one year on behalf of 575,000 beneficiaries with SUD as a secondary diagnosis.⁶ Beyond health care risk, the economic costs associated with SUD are significant. States and the federal government spend billions every year on the collateral impact associated with SUD, including criminal justice, public assistance and lost productivity costs.⁷ Alarming, the rate of fatal drug overdose in the U.S. has quadrupled between 1999 and 2010.⁸ Drug overdose has become the leading cause of injury death, causing more deaths than traffic crashes.⁹ Other problems also relate to opioid prescribing including opioid exposed pregnancies, drugged driving, and increases in Hepatitis C and in some circumstances HIV from prescription opioid injection.

As states expand Medicaid coverage to millions of new beneficiaries that may have been previously uninsured, states are also expanding access to behavioral health services including covering these services in Alternative Benefit Plans as required by the Affordable Care Act. CMS has received a number of requests from states and stakeholders interested in enhancing care for individuals with SUD. Many requests center on short-term acute treatment services, including detoxification, intensive outpatient programs, and residential treatment services. However, there are other important service modalities and approaches vital to effectively treating SUD that we encourage states to provide, including screening and intervention services in a broad range of settings, integration with primary care, medication assisted treatment and recovery supports services such as peer recovery supports and recovery coaches. Providing these services will help achieve better health outcomes among individuals with SUD, helping them to lead healthier and longer lives.

Many states have already achieved notable success in improved care and lower costs for SUD services through benefit, practice and payment reform. For instance:

- Massachusetts found that monthly Medicaid expenditures were significantly less for beneficiaries receiving SUD treatment compared to diagnosed but untreated beneficiaries. Treatment included ambulatory detoxification and medication-assisted treatment services.¹⁰
- Washington found that Screening, Brief Intervention and Referral to Treatment (SBIRT) services significantly reduced healthcare costs among Medicaid beneficiaries, resulting in savings of $250 per member per month associated with inpatient hospitalization from emergency department admissions.¹¹
- In addition, Washington tackled SUD and emergency department (ED) usage by adopting seven best practices. As a result, ED visits decreased by 9.9 percent; the number of people with frequent ED use dropped by 10.7 percent; and the number of visits resulting in narcotic prescription dropped by 24 percent. The state attributed savings of about $34 million.¹²
- For individuals in managed care with alcohol dependence, total healthcare costs were 30 percent less for individuals receiving medication-assisted treatment than for individuals not receiving medication-assisted treatment.¹³
- Medical costs for Medicaid patients in California decreased by one-third over three years following engagement in medication-assisted treatment. This includes reduced expenditures in all types of health care settings, including hospitals, emergency departments and outpatient clinics.¹⁴

CMS supports states' important efforts to improve care for individuals with SUD. Over the past several years, CMS has provided states with information and technical assistance to enhance coverage for behavioral health conditions. In July 2014, CMS released a joint Informational Bulletin in partnership with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the National Institute of Health and the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) describing best practices, state-based initiatives and useful resources to help ensure proper delivery of medication assisted treatment (MAT) for SUD.¹⁵ In January 2015, CMS released a joint Informational Bulletin in partnership with SAMHSA promoting behavioral health coverage opportunities for youth with SUD.¹⁶

While progress has been made, states report challenges in achieving better care for the SUD population. States cite a lack of data analytics to accurately identify prevalence and need in the Medicaid population, too few endorsed metrics for quality measurement, a lack of resources to collect and evaluate data, variation in provider qualifications, difficulties in integrating primary and substance use disorder care, and federal payment prohibitions as barriers to providing a comprehensive benefit package and delivery system.

To address these challenges, CMS recently launched the Medicaid Innovation Accelerator Program. The Innovation Accelerator Program supports state efforts to accelerate Medicaid innovations by offering technical assistance and expert resources to states engaged in Medicaid system redesign efforts. Based on our work with states and stakeholders, CMS identified SUD as the first area of focus for the Innovation Accelerator Program. As part of a strategy to improve the care and health outcomes and reduce costs for individuals with a SUD, CMS has begun engaging states to leverage IAP resources to introduce system reforms that better identify individuals with a SUD, expand coverage for effective SUD treatment, and enhance SUD practices to effectively treat beneficiaries.

Participation in the Innovation Accelerator Program is not a requirement for introducing SUD system reforms through the Medicaid authorities discussed in this letter. However, states participating in the Innovation Accelerator Program may request and receive technical assistance to identify and address the transformational activities set forth in this letter. For more information regarding Innovation Accelerator Program opportunities for substance use disorder, please visit <http://medicaid.gov/state-resource-center/innovation-accelerator-program/reducing-substance-use-disorders/reducing-substance-use-disorders.html>. Interested states should email MedicaidIAP@cms.hhs.gov. We encourage states to leverage the Innovation Accelerator Program's supports in areas where they currently do not meet the expectations for a transformed system as described below.

Goals for the Section 1115 Demonstration Initiative

To complement the work to date, CMS is proposing an opportunity to allow states embarking on broad and deep system transformations in the area of SUD to pursue 1115 demonstrations to improve the care and outcomes for individuals with SUD. This new initiative would be available to states that are developing comprehensive strategies to ensure a full continuum of services, focusing greater attention to integration efforts with primary care and mental health treatment, and working to deliver services that are considered promising practices or have fidelity to evidence-based models consistent with industry standards. In addition, we seek to support states that are interested in developing new payment mechanisms and performance quality initiatives. As states take the necessary steps to design and implement major transformations to systems of care for individuals with SUD, this section 1115 demonstration initiative can support these efforts by addressing some of the barriers to providing effective care to individuals. Below, CMS sets forth the goals and expectations pursuant to this new section 1115 demonstration opportunity.

The aim of this initiative is to enable states that are pursuing significant delivery system transformation efforts in the area of SUD to better identify individuals with an SUD in the Medicaid population, increase access to care for these individuals, increase provider capacity, to deliver effective treatments for SUD, and use quality metrics to evaluate the success of these interventions. The specific goals of the initiative are to:

- Promote strategies to identify individuals with substance use issues or disorders.
- Enhance clinical practices and promote clinical guidelines and decision-making tools for serving youth and adults with SUD.
- Build aftercare and recovery support services, such as recovery coaching.
- Coordinate SUD treatment with primary care and long-term care.
- Coordinate with other sources of local, state and federal funds for an efficient use of resources consistent with program objectives.
- Encourage increased use of quality and outcome measures to inform benefit design and payment models.
- Identify strategies to address prescription and illicit opioid addiction, consistent with national efforts to curb this epidemic.

Reforms

CMS expects that states interested in pursuing a section 1115 demonstration in this area will promote both systemic and practice reforms in their efforts to develop a continuum of care that effectively treats the physical, behavioral and mental dimensions of SUD. Examples of systemic changes include:

- Promoting a definition of substance use disorders as a primary, chronic disease requiring long-term treatment to achieve recovery with relapse potential.
- Aligning Medicaid benefit packages, provider requirements, reimbursement, utilization review processes, medical necessity criteria, and quality indicators with Medicare and commercial plans.

- Introducing a comprehensive continuum of care based on industry standard patient placement criteria, including withdrawal management, short-term residential treatment, intensive outpatient treatment, medication assisted treatment and aftercare supports for long-term recovery such as transportation, employment, housing, and community and peer support services.
- Adding coverage of evidence-based and promising practices shown to effectively treat youth and adults for SUD that are not available through traditional Medicaid 1905(a) authority.
- Partnering with drug courts and juvenile justice systems to ensure referrals to SUD treatment are medically appropriate and effectively managed.
- Proposing payment models to support the goals of this project, such as shared savings, and managed care.¹⁷
- Collecting and reporting data to internal and external evaluators, including CMS, to assess the impact of the proposed changes.

Examples of practice changes include:

- Enhancing strategies for primary care and specialty practitioners to better identify and treat individuals with SUD in primary care through Screening, Brief Intervention and Referral to Treatment (SBIRT).
- Developing effective care coordination models to link individuals identified with SUD to appropriate providers.
- Improving efforts to enhance coordination models between SUD providers, primary care-including FQHC's, corrections systems, schools and long-term services and supports.
- Enhancing provider competencies to deliver SUD services with fidelity to industry standard models, such as the American Society for Addiction Medicine (ASAM) Criteria.
- Ensuring accreditation for residential and other SUD providers.
- Improving care transitions when individuals receive a course of treatment with various levels of care from different providers.
- Developing networks to provide long-term recovery services and supports to individuals with SUD following acute treatment regimens.
- Enhancing provider, plan, county and state capacity to secure, maintain, and utilize 42 CFR Part 2 compliant consent to disclose and/or re-disclose records on substance abuse treatment for the purposes of care coordination, population health management, research and evaluation.
- Increasing provider adoption of Office of the National Coordinator-certified health information technology products, allowing for interoperable health information exchange.

Introducing a comprehensive continuum of care will require states to ensure access to inpatient and short-term residential levels of care to provide SUD treatment and support recovery. CMS recognizes that in some instances these levels of care are offered in facilities defined as institutions for mental diseases (IMD) at 42 CFR 435.1010. While services provided to individuals residing in IMDs are excluded as medical assistance under a state plan, states can request authority for federal financial participation (FFP) for these expenditures if their proposal for a section 1115 demonstration project meets the programmatic expectations described below.

Expectations for a Transformed System

In addition to the standard requirements for an 1115 demonstration, states submitting proposals through this initiative must meet and will be subject to program requirements specific to SUD that will be incorporated into the Standard Terms and Conditions (STCs) of the waiver. These SUD-specific program requirements will reflect the following expectations, which we believe are hallmarks of a transformed system of care for individuals with SUD. The expectations to be incorporated into a state's state plan, Alternative Benefit Plan (ABP), 1915 waivers, or 1115 demonstration proposal and resulting STCs include:

Comprehensive Evidence-based Benefit Design

States will be asked to develop a substance use disorder benefit that guarantees a full continuum of evidence-based best practices designed to address the immediate and long-term physical, mental and SUD care needs of the individual. This includes better use of evidence based practices in the SUD field, including SBIRT, withdrawal management, MAT, care coordination, and long-term recovery supports and services. This can include short-term institutional services, including short-term inpatient and short-term residential SUD services for individuals in IMDs which supplement and coordinate with, but do not supplant, community-based services and supports.

Appropriate Standards of Care

States will be asked to use established standards of care in their design of the SUD benefit package, incorporating industry-standard benchmarks for defining medical necessity criteria, covered services and provider qualifications. For example, the ASAM Criteria is a nationally accepted set of treatment criteria for SUD care. States should use the ASAM Criteria as they develop a residential or inpatient SUD service continuum, and are encouraged to adopt the ASAM Criteria for other treatment modalities and levels of care as well.

In order to receive approval for a section 1115 demonstration under this opportunity, states must implement a process to assess and demonstrate that residential providers meet ASAM Criteria prior to participating in the Medicaid program under the demonstration and rendering services to beneficiaries. In addition, the assessment for all SUD services, level of care and length of stay recommendations must be performed by an independent third party that has the necessary competencies to use ASAM Patient Placement Criteria. Specifically, an entity other than the rendering provider will use the ASAM Criteria to perform a multidimensional assessment of beneficiaries, place beneficiaries at appropriate levels of care, and make recommendations for length of service.

States seeking to transform their SUD systems are encouraged to develop additional strategies adopted by health systems to ensure quality and consistent practices. One of the paths toward this goal may be accreditation of their providers. Currently, some SUD providers are accredited by national organizations (e.g. the Joint Commission and the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities).

Strong Network Development Plan

States will be asked to develop a network development and resource plan to ensure there is a sufficient network of knowledgeable providers in each of the levels of care recognized by ASAM and recovery support services. In addition, the state should have the resources to ensure that providers have the ability to deliver services consistent with the ASAM Criteria and provide evidence based SUD practices. The network should be sufficiently robust so that access can be assured in the event that some providers stop participating in Medicaid, are suspended or terminated.

Care Coordination Design

Coordination of care design is integral to SUD delivery reform. This entails developing processes to ensure seamless transitions and information sharing between levels and settings of care (withdrawal management, short-term inpatient, short-term residential, partial hospitalization, outpatient, post-discharge, recovery services and supports), as well as a collaboration between types of health care (primary, mental health , pharmacological, and long-term supports and services). CMS encourages states to test how to best achieve care transitions across the care continuum, including aftercare and recovery support services CMS encourages states to support electronic health information exchange, including the use of ONC-certified health IT products, to improve care coordination consistent with federal health privacy (HIPAA) and confidentiality (42 CFR Part 2) requirements.

Integration of Physical Health and SUD

State should have a clear approach for coordinating physical health and behavioral health services which could include the use of:

- Section 2703 health homes
- Integrated care models
- Accountable care organizations
- Primary care medical homes

States must specify a timeframe for integrating physical and behavioral health care for the population of individuals with SUD or a subpopulation, including committing to an approach within twelve months after 1115 SUD demonstration approval, producing a concept design within eighteen months after demonstration approval, and implementing within two years after demonstration approval.

Program Integrity Safeguards

As states strengthen their SUD benefit package, expand their Medicaid eligibility criteria and receive enhanced FMAP levels for expansion populations, the Medicaid program faces greater levels of risk of fraud and abuse. To be effective stewards of taxpayers' dollars, CMS and states must ensure there are rigorous program integrity protocols in place to safeguard against fraudulent billing. At a minimum, this should include conducting risk-based screening of all newly enrolling providers, as well as revalidating existing providers (including ordering and referring practitioners) pursuant to provider screening rules at 42 CFR Part 455 Subpart E and accompanying guidance, ensuring SUD providers have entered into Medicaid provider agreements pursuant to 42 CFR 431.107, and ensuring that there is a process the state has put into place to address billing and other compliance issues.

Benefit Management

The provision of more clinically intensive services (including short-term inpatient and short-term residential treatment) must be managed with regular utilization review processes to ensure that these services are medically necessary. For example, these can include prior authorization, targeted post-payment claims review and billing system edits to deny claims beyond a time span, among others. States are encouraged to use capitated and managed fee-for-service approaches for their benefit management strategy. States that propose to introduce financial or treatment limitations must demonstrate compliance with the Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act (MHPAEA).

Community Integration

In January 2014, CMS issued regulations regarding our Home and Community Based Services programs.¹⁸ Those regulations set forth requirements regarding person-centered planning and the characteristics of home and community based settings. States should include how they will incorporate these requirements in their service planning and service delivery efforts, including adherence to the settings requirements, where applicable.

Strategies to Address Prescription Drug Abuse

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has classified prescription drug abuse as an epidemic. In 2011 the Administration published its Prescription Drug Abuse Prevention Plan, which outlined four pillars, education, monitoring, safe storage and disposal, and enforcement.¹⁹ These were geared towards preventing non-medical prescription drug use and the consequences of the opioid epidemic and augmented the interagency efforts outlined in the National Drug Control Strategy concerning supply and demand reduction and consequence prevention. While there has been a marked decrease in the use of some illegal drugs like cocaine, data from the National Survey on Drug Use and Health show that nearly one-third of people aged 12 and over whom used drugs for the first time in 2009 began by using a prescription drug non-medically.²⁰ From 1999 to 2013, the rate for drug poisoning deaths involving opioid analgesics nearly quadrupled.²¹

There are a variety of strategies that states and payers have put into place to address prescription drug abuse. These include issuing prescribing guidelines, introducing claims edits for equivalent opioid and concomitant benzodiazepine prescriptions, utilizing Prescription Drug Monitoring Programs (PDMPs), and supporting Electronic Prescribing of Controlled Substances (EPCS). CMS encourages states to promote and improve the use of PDMPs and to encourage adoption of EPCS. We are requesting that states develop and implement proven strategies to address prescription drug abuse at the state, plan, patient, pharmacy and provider level.

Strategies to Address Opioid Use Disorder

The abuse of and addiction to opioids is a serious and challenging public health problem. While the rate for drug-poisoning death involving opioid analgesics has leveled in the most recent years, the rate for deaths involving heroin nearly tripled between 2010 and 2013.²²

On March 26, 2015, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services announced a targeted initiative to decrease opioid overdoses, decrease overall overdose mortality, and decrease the prevalence of opioid use disorder. The Secretary's initiative targets three priority areas to combat opioid abuse:

- Opioid prescribing practices to reduce opioid use disorders and overdose
- Expanded use and distribution of naloxone
- Expansion of MAT to reduce opioid use disorders and overdose.

These three interventions align with the goal of this 1115 demonstration opportunity and reflect the expectations of a transformed system of care for individuals with SUD outlined in this letter. As described above, states should develop and issue opioid prescribing guidelines in concert with other interventions to address prescription drug abuse. States should expand the coverage of and access to naloxone in Medicaid, and should work in partnership with relevant social services and law enforcement agencies to design and deploy naloxone distribution strategies. States should also consider developing a robust benefit package and enhance clinical practices for MAT and other services to treat opioid addiction.

Services for Adolescents and Youth with an SUD

States will ensure that benefits are covered, services are available and access is timely for the youth and adolescent population with SUD. Pursuant to the Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnostic and Treatment (EPSDT) benefit, states are required to provide all 1905(a) coverable, appropriate, and medically necessary services needed to correct and ameliorate health conditions for Medicaid beneficiaries under the age of 21. Please visit <http://www.medicaid.gov/Federal-Policy-Guidance/Downloads/CIB-01-26-2015.pdf> for more information on Medicaid coverage for behavioral health services for youth with SUD.

Reporting of Quality Measures

A critical component of evaluating the efforts that states undertake to transform care for individuals with SUD will rely on a state's ability to track quality measures. States will be required to report certain current quality measures as part of this demonstration project.

Specifically, states will be required to report the relevant quality measures from the Medicaid Adult and Children's Core Sets for individuals with SUD, including the Initiation and Engagement of Alcohol and Other Drug Dependence Treatment (NQF #0004).²³ States submitting proposals under this opportunity will also be required to report the SUB-3 Alcohol and Other Drug Use Disorder Treatment Provided or Offered at Discharge and the SUB-3a Alcohol and Other Drug Use Disorder Treatment at Discharge (NQF #1664) measures. States are encouraged to use the Follow-up after Discharge from the Emergency Department for Mental Health or Alcohol or Other Drug Dependence (NQF #2605) measure in their evaluation design. States are also encouraged to include the Pharmacy Quality Alliance opioid performance measures in their design for evaluating efforts to reduce prescription opioid drug abuse.²⁴

CMS is interested in evaluating the effectiveness of the services delivered through this demonstration initiative in terms of health outcomes, health care costs and service utilization. To that end, we ask that states to assess the impact of providing SUD services on:

- Readmission rates to the same level of care or higher;
- Emergency department utilization; and
- Inpatient hospital utilization.

Proposals should also include a framework to evaluate successful care transitions to outpatient care, including hand-offs between levels of care within the SUD care continuum as well as linkages with primary care upon discharge. For example, states may consider adapting and modifying the Timely Transmission of Transition Record (NQF #0648) or Transition Record With Specified Elements Received by Discharged Patients (NQF #0647) measures for appropriate application to SUD services.

States may also propose other quality or process measures they currently use or may be asked to use measures that become available for this population. The data collected and reported by states participating in this demonstrative initiative will contribute to setting an initial baseline and establishing a national benchmark for these vital behavioral health services.

Collaboration With Single State Agency for Substance Abuse

Achieving the goals of this system transformation initiative will take the combined efforts of stakeholders across the health care system. The state Medicaid agency will need to apply for changes to the approved state plan or for demonstration projects to implement this initiative. In doing so, state Medicaid agencies should coordinate with the state's substance use disorder authority on the concept design for the system transformation. These authorities can provide valuable data sets, such as block grant encounter information, which may inform the concept design and may be integral to data analytics and evaluation strategies. As a condition for approval of any demonstration authority to implement this initiative, state Medicaid agencies are required to collaborate and coordinate funding with the state substance use disorder authority in their efforts to transform their SUD system. State Medicaid agencies should also work and partner with relevant local, state and federal social services agencies to ensure the overall welfare of beneficiaries is provided for so they are positioned to respond to treatment successfully.

Medicaid Authorities Including Section 1115 Demonstrations

Many traditional (non-demonstration) Medicaid authorities provide states the flexibilities necessary to implement desired coverage and delivery reforms. These include options for coverage under section 1905(a) of the Act and Alternative Benefit Plan authorities under section 1937 of the Act, health home programs with enhanced federal matching for the first 8 quarters under section 1945 of the Act, managed care options under sections 1915(b) and 1932 of the Act, and coverage of home and community-based services under sections 1915(c), (i) and (k) of the Act. States seeking to transform their SUD systems may consider these other authorities in lieu of or in addition to 1115 demonstration projects. Please visit <http://www.medicaid.gov/medicaid-chip-program-information/by-topics/benefits/downloads/pathways-2-9-15.pdf> for more information on pursuing SUD system transformation efforts through these and other pathways.

Section 1115 demonstrations may be designed to provide more effective treatment of SUD by extending coverage for services in inpatient and/or residential settings that are within the definition of IMDs at 42 CFR 435.1010. To the extent that a demonstration initiative is consistent with the expectations for a transformed SUD treatment system, CMS would specifically allow FFP for costs not otherwise matchable to provide coverage for services furnished to individuals residing in IMDs for short-term acute SUD treatment. Short-term acute SUD treatment may occur in inpatient settings and/or residential settings.

Inpatient services are described by the ASAM Criteria as occurring in Level 4.0 settings, which are medically managed services. Inpatient services are provided, monitored and observed by licensed physician and nursing staff when the acute biomedical, emotional, behavioral and cognitive problems are so severe that they require inpatient treatment or primary medical and nursing care. For short-term inpatient treatment for individuals with SUD in settings that meet the definition of an IMD, stays have been proposed to be limited to fifteen (15) days.

Residential services are provided in in ASAM Level 3.1, 3.3, 3.5 and 3.7 settings, which are clinically managed and medically monitored services typically provided in freestanding, appropriately licensed facilities or residential treatment facilities without acute medical care capacity. For short-term residential SUD treatment in settings that meet the definition of an IMD, stays will be limited to an average length of stay of thirty (30) days.

CMS remains committed to the underlying rationale of ensuring integrated and community-based care provided in right settings, so such inpatient and residential care should supplement and coordinate with community-based care and be clinically appropriate. CMS encourages states continue to maintain its current funding commitment and levels to a continuum of community services consistent with SAMHSA's maintenance of effort requirements for its Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment Block Grant, regardless of increased federal contributions. This SUD initiative should not reduce or divert state spending on mental and substance use disorder service as a result of available federal funding for services in IMDs.

In addition to promoting the objectives of the Medicaid program and improving care for low-income individuals, section 1115 demonstrations must be budget neutral. This means that the proposed demonstration cannot cost the federal government more than it would absent the demonstration. CMS will work closely with states in their efforts to determine the feasibility of their budget neutrality model while they are developing their conceptual demonstration project design.

Submission Process for Section 1115 Demonstration Projects

States should follow the usual process for submitting 1115 demonstration projects proposals. CMS requests that the proposal address each of the expectations set forth in this guidance. Generally, states must provide at least the information listed below:

- A demonstration program description, and goals and objectives that will be implemented under the demonstration project.
- The description of the proposed health care delivery system and benefit coverage.
- An estimate of the expected increase or decrease in annual aggregate expenditures by population group impacted by the demonstration. If available, include historic data for these populations.
- An estimate of historic coverage and enrollment data (as appropriate), and estimated projections expected over the term of the demonstration, for each category of beneficiary whose health care coverage is impacted by the demonstration.
- Other demonstration program features that require flexibilities within the Medicaid and CHIP programs.
- The types of waivers and expenditure authorities that the State believes to be necessary to authorize the demonstration.
- The research hypothesis or hypotheses that are related to the demonstration's proposed changes, goals, and objectives, a plan for testing the hypotheses in the context of an evaluation, and, if a quantitative evaluation design is feasible, the identification of appropriate evaluation indicators.

Section 1115 demonstration applications may be submitted electronically to 1115DemoRequests@cms.hhs.gov or by mail to:

Public Input

The Affordable Care Act required the Secretary to set forth transparency and public notice procedures for experimental, pilot, and demonstration projects approved under section 1115 of the Social Security Act that increase the public availability of information about Medicaid and CHIP demonstration applications and approved demonstration projects and promote public input as states develop and the federal government reviews these demonstrations. CMS issued a final regulation on February 27, 2012, outlining the new regulatory requirements for initial section 1115 demonstration applications and extension requests, public notice procedures, and reporting and evaluation requirements. The rule can be found at <http://www.gpo.gov/fdsys/pkg/FR-2012-02-27/pdf/2012-4354.pdf>.

The high rates of alcohol and substance use disorder, mental health disorders, suicide and behavior-related chronic diseases in American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) communities are well documented. AI/ANs are significantly more likely to report past-year alcohol and substance use disorders than any other race.²⁵ As required by the transparency regulations cited above, states with Indian tribes and Indian health providers must consult with the tribes and solicit advice from the Indian health providers to assure access to these services is available and meets the unique and cultural needs of AI/AN individuals. In addition, states must solicit advice from the Indian health providers in the state as required by 1902(a)(73) of the Social Security Act. We encourage states to work collaboratively with the Indian health providers in the state to assure inclusion of providers that have the expertise to address the unique cultural needs of AI/AN.

We hope this information will be helpful. Questions regarding this guidance may be directed to Mr. John O'Brien, Senior Policy Advisor, Disabled and Elderly Health Program Group (John.O'Brien3@cms.hhs.gov), or Mr. Eliot Fishman, Director, State Demonstrations Group (Eliot.Fishman@cms.hhs.gov). We look forward to continuing our work together.

Sincerely

Subject: State Board of Accounts Bulletin

Importance: High

Good morning,

This week, a bulletin from the State Board of Accounts was posted on their website. I have included the link:

http://www.in.gov/sboa/files/cob2015_396.pdf. The County Drug Free Fund is addressed in the bulletin. Over the past several months some challenges have occurred regarding the fund and disbursement of the dollars. This has led to conversations between the LCCs, county auditors and, at times, the SBoA. As a result, the SBoA has provided some direction to their auditors.

I had the opportunity to meet and discuss the clarifications with SBoA. Moving forward, you may be asked by the county auditor to complete the following:

1. Provide a copy of any paid position contracts. This request may be made to ensure the auditor knows exactly how much any paid positions should receive over the course of the year. This will also assist the counties with their IRS audits. We have had some IRS audits, and not been able to provide contracts for services. The result has been a payment of taxes for some paid positions. IF, you are paid based on an agreement with the LCC, you should have a contract. Please refer to IRS Guidelines or your accountant for assistance.
2. When submitting claims for grant payments, you may be asked to provide a copy of the signed grant agreement, in whole or the signature page. Everyone should have a grant agreement. If you do not, please contact me right away and I will send you samples from other counties.
3. LCCs may no longer be able to withdraw the administrative funds at one time. If this change is made within your county, please be sure to work with the auditor to cover your expenses in a timely manner. It may require attaching some sort of purchase order or other type of documentation to the claim.
4. The auditor may ask you to work with the county commissioners to outline your duties as the LCC. This request may be made in order to show the LCC's responsibilities for the CCP and ensure the grants are distributed in accordance with the statute. This request may be made in order to ensure responsibility for the appropriate disbursement of funds along with accountability the funds are being utilized to support the CCP.

I did note an error in the bulletin and I sent it to SBoA. The bulletin states the County Commissioners and Governor's Commission approve the plan. However, the statute actually states:

IC 5-2-11-5

"Commission" defined; allocation of funds; approval of plan by commission

Sec. 5. (a) As used in this section, "commission" means the commission for a drug free Indiana established by IC 5-2-6-16.

(b) Subject to subsections (c) and (d), a county fiscal body shall annually appropriate from the fund amounts allocated by the county legislative body for the use of persons, organizations, agencies, and political subdivisions to carry out recommended actions contained in a comprehensive drug free communities plan submitted by the local coordinating council and approved by the commission as follows:"

I have attached a copy of the statute should you need to review it again with the LCC or the auditor. All in all, what is being requested is a paper trail to ensure there is no mis-appropriation of county drug free funds.

As always, please let me know if you have any questions.

Thank you,

Congressman expands field; Delph decision comes in September

By BRIAN A. HOWEY

BLOOMINGTON – For Todd Young, his race for the U.S. Senate is all about protecting Americans. “That’s why I’m running,” he said in his bare-bones campaign headquarters just south of downtown. “I want to keep Americans safe and secure. That’s the most sacred mission of government.”

He enters the Republican Senate race with much peril facing his potential constituents. A week before, the FBI staved off several ISIS-conspired terror attacks on the homeland over the Fourth of July weekend. Americans learned last week that more than 20 million people had their files hacked by Chinese operatives in the Department of Personnel Management, opening them to blackmail. And he became a Senate candidate less than a month after nine people were massacred at a church Bible study group in South Carolina.

What Rep. Young hopes sets him apart from the Senate field that includes U.S. Rep. Marlin Stutzman, Eric Holcomb and possibly State Sen. Mike Delph is his brand of “responsible” conservatism. To some, that’s code after Stutzman attempted to shut down the U.S. government a couple of years ago, and Delph has had several episodes on Twitter that brought him sanctions from his Republican Senate leadership. “We need a responsible conservative voice who can win a general election,” Young said, citing “my conviction on the need to focus on more job creation and increased wages.”

Gregg-Pence money war

INDIANAPOLIS – Raise your hand if you were forecasting that John Gregg would out-raise Gov. Mike Pence in the first half of the year.

That was territory that Howey Politics Indiana hadn’t ventured in, nor are we aware of any other punditry, foreign or domestic, that would have guessed that when it was all tallied up, Gregg would report $1.76 million compared to Gov. Pence’s take of $1.63 million for the first six months of 2015.

In a year that has already featured some surprising developments, Sen. Dan Coats’ retirement, the RFRA fiasco and the April Howey Politics Indiana poll that saw Pence's approval and job performance take a historic dive, this development is an important turn of events.

Going into this cycle, Gregg had a reputation as a poor fundraiser. So anemic, in fact, that his first quarter 2012 report of $580,000 prompted many observers and fellow Democrats to believe he had no chance. When the dust settled after Pence eked out a 2.7% victory over Gregg, Pence out-raised the Democrat $14.8 million to $6.4 million.

The Richard Mourdock "God intends rape" blunder in the October 2012 debate against Joe Donnelly brought a mixed response from Pence, who first demanded an apology from the Senate nominee, and then a defense of his fellow ticket mate. It nearly cost Pence the election.

In order for Gregg to be viable in 2016, he had to shake the money monkey off his back. He spent much of May and June dialing for dollars and convinced big labor to invest early in this campaign. When the Mike Pence for Indiana campaign reported just $1.63 million, Gregg was ecstatic. "This is a huge deal," Gregg said. "It's not often that a challenger outraises an incumbent governor, especially when they are in a tough primary with two strong opponents. It's a sign of the strength of our campaign and the depth of support we have earned. And, it's a reflection of the simple fact that Hoosiers' are tired of being embarrassed by Mike Pence's radical ideology and mismanagement of state government."

Gregg told HPI on Monday, "These figures show, once again, that Hoosiers are tired of being embarassed by Mike Pence. They want a leader. They want a governor who will bring us together to move Indiana forward. That's what I have done throughout my entire career and that's what I will do as Indiana's next chief executive. I am gratified by the support I've received from hard working Hoosiers all across the state and look forward to continuing to build a campaign to bring common sense back to the governor's office."

The Mike Pence for Indiana

campaign spokesman Robert Vane called Pence's money numbers "strong for us, both in money raised, and the fact that over 90% of our totals came from Indiana and over 90% was under $100. That's widespread, grassroots support here in Indiana. There is no depression or disappointment here."

Vane points to Pence's $4.2 million cash on hand, more than $2.4 million than Gregg. "What's unexpected is for a governor candidate from Indiana raising over 70% of his money in Washington, D.C.," Vane said. "That's unexpected."

Just days after the Indiana Economic Development Corporation ended the $2 million Porter Novelli contract that was supposed to help mitigate the damage from the RFRA debacle, the Pence administration's take was the solid job creation numbers essentially meant an end to the crisis. "I think that the IEDC made the right decision to discontinue the contract," said Pence. "I supported the decision very strongly. What we're doing today to market the Hoosier state is working."

Speculation on the Porter Novelli contract centers on how the $2 million expenditure would have improved Indiana's RFRA-damaged image on a national, let alone global stage. The contract seemed to come under the category of "don't just stand there, do something." The problem for the Pence administration is that anything associated with the Porter Novelli contract would have revived the RFRA story, and that's something the Pence reelection doesn't need. In a fish-or-cut-bait scenario, the decision was to cut.

In mid-June, Bellwether Pollster Christine Matthews did a second Indiana poll following a survey she did for Howey Politics Indiana in April. Asked about the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, 37% said the controversial law would have no impact, 40% said it would have a negative impact on Indiana's economy and 9% said it would have a positive impact. On Gov. Pence's handling of RFRA, 46% said it was an "embarrassment" and that he doesn't deserve a second term, while 41% said he deserves another term. Pence's job approval stood at 46/46% approve/disapprove. On favorable/unfavorables, Pence stands at 34/43%, while Democrat Glenda Ritz at 29/13% and Gregg at 20/9%.

Asked if Gov. Pence deserves reelection, 32% favored a second term for the Republican and 54% wanted a new person.

The mid-year financial numbers stand to revive the question of whether Pence is still feeling the fallout from RFRA and whether he can ultimately survive.

So the spin is on. The unions seem willing to invest in Gregg, believing he has a decent chance. Republicans will argue that Pence still maintains a big money lead, one that could grow significantly if the Republican Governors Association invests the reported $5 million that Tennessee Gov. Bill Haslam was supposed to deliver on June 18 at the Indiana Republican spring dinner.

Add $5 million to Pence's total and he essentially has a $7 million advantage. Vane was asked about the $5 million in RGA money and he said, "I can't speak for the RGA, but they have made it clear they are going to be very helpful as needed. But I can't confirm or deny it."

The flip side there is that the Democratic Governors Association, which reneged on late support for Gregg in the 2012 homestretch, will almost certainly be reassessing and coming to the conclusion that Indiana could be a pickup for the party. Either way, a competitive gubernatorial race is underway here in Indiana. ❖

"responsible conservatism," is that code that sets him apart from Stutzman and Delph? "I'll let others decide that point of contrast," Young said. "I'll tell you what I mean. Responsible leadership means making unpopular decisions and then going back and explaining those decisions to constituents."

His working example brought him quickly back to the security realm. In the summer of 2014, ISIS began killing U.S. journalists and humanitarians such as Peter Abdul Kassig. "That made us feel very angry," Young explained. "The President failed to put together a policy to confront this broad threat."

President Obama's response was to train and arm 5,400 Syrians to confront ISIS in that civil war-torn nation. Last week, Defense Secretary Ashton Carter acknowledged the U.S. had spent $250 million to train 60 Syrians. Young's initial opposition to the Obama plan brought "a fair amount of criticism here in the district," but insisted, "We needed a better strategy than embracing the administration's check-the-box plan."

How would a Sen. Young confront ISIS, which he acknowledges is "evil"?

"I think it's outside the competence of any one country or any group of countries to put the Middle East back together again," he began. "But we can contain and start rolling it back incrementally. Roll back the real estate they control and reduce the franchises. It undermines the argument that they are a caliphate. If the U.S. is rolling ISIS back, that contrasts with Allah's will."

Young would increase the number of U.S. special forces in the region, have the U.S. Air Force fly more sorties, loosen the rules of engagement, and seek to "take out more high value targets" and arm the Kurds with heavier weaponry. In making these points, Young points to his background at the U.S. Naval Academy, his service in the U.S. Marine Corps, and his understanding that the "civilized world has only one hyper power, one super power, and it is the United States."

"In the end the United States is the convening power. We have the economic leverage, we certainly have the military might. We have a way to change the balance of power. But that is not to say we should do it alone."

We need to smartly and effectively stay engaged. If we pivot to Asia without filling forces, vacuums will occur" that will empower "dictators, autocrats and mad men."

"I want to emphasize that's why I'm running," Young said. "I want to keep Americans safe and secure."

What about the hacking sanctioned by the Chinese government? Young declined to go so far as to say the Chinese hacking of Anthem and DPM is an "act of war" but described it as "a new threat."

"This is an impossible question to answer if you have a level of humility," he said. He described the hacking as an action that "brings about not only the ability to steal property and steal one's labor, but it can lead to access to security codes and information. It could allow the Chinese to manipulate our critical infrastructure and blackmail U.S. personnel."

Is it too naive to say the U.S. should create a "Manhattan Project" to provide cyber security? Young pointed to the Naval Academy's new cyber security center, which is charged with protecting U.S. military assets. "First you need to decide how much money is needed to keep America safe and secure. I don't believe we've been doing that in recent years. That's why I'm running." And then, Young said, "You need to spend it."

Young has called for the repeal and replacement of Obamacare. Reminded of Karl Rove's call for Republicans running in 2016 to present a plan for replacement, Young says he backs refundable tax credits to allow consumers to buy their own plans, institute malpractice reform, allow small businesses to pool together to leverage more negotiation power with large insurance companies and hospitals, and allow consumers to purchase health plans across state lines. It is standard fare for congressional Republicans, who have joined Young in voting more than 50 times to repeal the law. He points to his own efforts to repeal the medical device tax, and restore the 40-hour work week.

Nearing the end of the conversation, the standard HPI question, "Anything you want to add that we didn't ask?" brought out the response, "Did I tell you I'm pro life and pro gun?" he said, smiling.

his campaign headquarters, Paul Helmke, 1998 Republican Senate nominee and current Indiana University visiting lecturer, had written an op-ed piece for the Fort Wayne Journal Gazette citing a "moment of momentum" following the Charleston Mother Emanuel Church Bible study massacre to reform gun laws. The U.S. Constitution provides the 2nd Amendment, but it also calls for "domestic tranquility." How would a Sen. Young address what are now becoming routine atrocities in U.S. movie theaters, schools,

"It starts by recognizing these situations, as a conservative," Young began. "Criminals will get guns. We need to address mental illness and the sharing of sensitive mental health (records). I don't know of any strong 2nd Amendment advocate who would disagree with that assessment. Any one with a mental illness should not be purchasing weapons. There needs to be more done on that issue. But that is not the primary message of my campaign."

Young pointed out he has lived in dangerous cities such as Chicago and Washington. "Guns often keep neighborhoods safe," he said.

Since 2010, Young has been a fundraising machine. He raised $1 million to win a Republican primary against former congressman Mike Sodrel, then upset U.S. Rep. Baron Hill, reloading his campaign coffers with another million. He begins the Senate race with $2 million cash on hand, more than the two other declared candidates combined.

What's your money pitch, HPI asked. Could he walk us through the basic pitch when he's dialing for dollars?

"My father is a salesman," Young responded. "My father used to say, 'Son, you have to sell a product people want to buy. That's the first rule of sales.' My responsible conservative leadership, based on safety and security appeals to people. Any successes we've had raising money, is what I've stood for."

He cited his work in London with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. "My formulation is pretty simple. I've always had great respect for Margaret Thatcher, who said, 'Win the argument, win the war.'"

In his 2010 race against Rep. Hill, who could be his opponent in the 2016 general election, Young said, "I won the argument and I won the vote. I earned their trust."

On a potential rematch with Hill, Young responded, "I've been told that Baron Hill is likely to be their nominee. I feel quite confident as we step into this primary race, I wouldn't be running, not just viable, but the most viable choice to be the nominee, to make sure Republicans hold on to this seat. Control of the U.S. Senate may hang in the balance. It's never been more important."

As for speculation that he will compete with Holcomb for the so-called "Daniels wing" of the party while Stutzman might have to fend off Sen. Delph for the Tea Party wing support, Young shook off such talk. He's running based on his own confidence and ability, and it doesn't really matter who's in, or who's out.

Young enters via video

Young enters the race without a clear frontrunner, for one of the first modern Senate races in Indiana with no heir apparent, though the Bloomington Republican begins with a clear money advantage.

In an email and video released to supporters and constituents Sunday afternoon, the emerging candidate began with a bio: "Life in Indiana. It's about family, values, and hard work. This is where Todd Young grew up. The son of a small business owner and a nurse, they taught him that if you worked hard and dream big, anything is possible. From a very early age, Todd had this innate sense of right and wrong. He aimed for excellence in everything he attempted or did. He really is driven. That drive earned Todd Young an appointment to the Naval Academy and a commission as an officer in the Marines."

Daniel DeWitt, who served in the Marines with Young, said, "In the Marines, Todd set the standard for courage, judgment, and integrity. These are things you just can't teach."

Young says in the video, "Everything in my life I owe to God, my family, the Naval Academy, and the Marine Corps. And the best way I can think of to give back is to ensure that every Hoosier family enjoys a better future. That's why I'm running for U.S. Senate."

Young joins a field that includes fellow U.S. Rep. Marlin Stutzman and former Republican chairman Eric Holcomb. State Sens. Jim Merritt of Indianapolis and Mike Delph of Carmel are also weighing bids, though sources close to Merritt have told Howey Politics Indiana that if Young joins the field, he won't seek the nomination.

Young, R-Bloomington, has had a meteoric political career that has placed him on the influential House Ways & Means Committee. In 2010, he won a razor-thin 9th CD nomination by defeating former congressman Mike Sodrel and Travis Hankins. That November, Young upset Hill 52-42%. Two years later, Young defeated Shelli Yoder 55-44%, and his margin grew to 63-33% when he defeated former Democratic Seymour mayor Bill Bailey.

With Hill the only declared Democratic Senate candidate, a rematch with Young is possible.

In addition to his Navy and Marine Corps service, Young earned an MBA from the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business, and later attended the University of London's Institute of United States studies. He earned his law degree from Indiana University. He has worked at the Heritage Foundation and was later a legislative assistant to U.S. Sen. Dick Lugar on energy policy.

Delph decision by September

State Sen. Mike Delph is planning to visit Northwest Indiana the weekend of Aug. 2, at the invitation of Pastor Ron Johnson of Living Stones Church in Crown Point (Doug Ross, NWI Times).

"They've invited me up there because of my strong stance on religious liberty and my strong support of family values," Delph said Thursday. Delph's support of family values is real, not just a talking point. When Delph was in Washington, D.C., to line up support for his potential Senate bid, he said, one of his daughters called every night and said, "Daddy, I miss you, I miss you."

That's got to tug at anyone's heartstrings. "You have the tension between the service and the sacrifice," Delph said.

He wants to run; that's obvious. Delph's reason for not declaring his candidacy, beyond his family's veto power, is that he has more freedom to line up financial support as an undeclared candidate. "This new era of super PACs makes traditional campaign financing thinking ... it turns them on their heads," Delph said. He's right. Declared candidates can't coordinate efforts with the super PACs. But undeclared candidates can start their own PAC or line up support right up until the moment they announce they're running for office.

So how long will Delph remain poised on that diving board? He promises a decision by the end of September. The later it gets, the colder that water is going to become. ❖

Waltz in for 9th CD; Zoeller, Houchin, Mayfield mull runs

By BRIAN A. HOWEY

INDIANAPOLIS – Just hours after U.S. Rep. Todd Young jumped into the 2016 U.S. Senate race, State Sen.

Brent Waltz announced an expected bid for the 9th CD.

"I'm in 100%," Waltz told Howey Politics Indiana. "There will be a formal announcement on Thursday."

Waltz is one of a handful of Republicans looking to succeed Young, who declared for the Senate race on Sunday. Attorney General Greg Zoeller, State Sen. Erin Houchin of Salem and State Rep. Peggy Mayfield of Martinsville have all expressed interest.

Zoeller told Howey Politics Indiana on Monday that he has been seriously weighing a bid. "Todd Young has been a very effective congressman for the people of Indiana's 9th District where I was born and raised," Zoeller said. "His decision to pursue the open United States Senate seat leaves an important role during a period of great economic development. It's no secret that I have been discussing running for this seat with many supporters in the district and have received encouragement, but it's more appropriate to allow Congressman Young to make his public announcement Saturday before announcing my own plan."

Sen. Houchin, who was elected to her seat last November, has traveled to Washington to discuss the 9th CD, though she has not made any campaign plans public.

Mayfield is "seriously considering" the race, said Mike Gentry of the House Republican Campaign Committee. Gentry said that Mayfield is on vacation and out of the state this week.

As he did when he upset powerful Senate Finance Chairman Larry Borst in 2004, Waltz came equipped with an election scenario that he believes puts him in the drivers seat. It is a campaign he has spent the last three months planning, including trips to Washington. He has hired Mark Collins as a media and organizational consultant, noting that Collins played key roles in the upset defeats of Sens. Borst, Robert Garton in 2006 and Steve Johnson in 2002. Waltz's 36-vote upset of Borst was one of the biggest upsets in modern General Assembly history.

Waltz observes that Zoeller has never run in a Republican primary, having won two attorney general nominations via the Indiana Republican Convention. However, Zoeller won an upset convention nomination in 2008 after Gov. Mitch Daniels had endorsed Valparaiso Mayor Jon Costas. He is a popular attorney general.

Waltz breaks down the 9th CD in three tiers, noting that his home of Johnson County includes 23% of the district. The second tier includes Clark, Floyd, Morgan and Monroe with 7 to 9% of the district each. The third tier includes the other eight counties, including Lawrence and Jackson.

"If I win Johnson and one other in the second tier, the other person would have to run the table in the other eight in the third tier," said Waltz, a former president of the Johnson County Council. Waltz believes he can run strongly in neighboring Morgan County (if Mayfield doesn't run) and Lawrence, noting that his table at the Republican spring dinner included several of his Lawrence County allies. He also believes that while Zoeller will be strong in Floyd County, he has the ability to run close in Clark.

"If I can break even in Clark, I win the primary," Waltz said.

As for Democrats, State Rep. Terry Goodin has been talking about potential races outside the Indiana House and former Seymour mayor Bill Bailey, who lost to Young last fall, may take a look, as could Monroe County Councilwoman Shelli Yoder, who lost to Young in 2012. ❖

Governor, Senate campaign strategies vary in early stages

By BRIAN A. HOWEY

BLOOMINGTON – It's very, very early in the 2016 campaign cycle, but we're witnessing some significant contrasts in both the U.S. Senate and Indiana governor's races.

In the Senate race, U.S. Rep. Todd Young exhibited a trademark we've seen since 2010, when he won a three-way primary that included former congressman Mike Sodrel, then essentially reloaded and raised another $1 million to upset U.S. Rep. Baron Hill. Young is a money-raising machine, preparing to post $1,024,908 for the second quarter. His two main opponents, U.S. Rep.

Marlin Stutzman, will come in at $600,000 for the quarter, and Eric Holcomb, will post $200,000.

Holcomb is emphasizing what can be called coalition building. While Young and Stutzman are bound to Washington and their duties in their districts, Holcomb has adopted several strategies similar to Gov. Mitch Daniels' 2003-04 initial campaign for governor. In that race, Daniels co-opted the Milan Miracle sports theme, formally opened his campaign outside of Butler University's Hinkle Fieldhouse, and took RV1 on a tour where he visited hundreds of cities and towns throughout the state. Many of these places hadn't seen a real gubernatorial candidate in decades. When HPI traveled on the final journey of RV1 late in Daniels' second term to a visit in Milan and a stop at the Reservation Restaurant, he wondered if any future candidate would adopt his strategy of a signature traveling symbol while reaching out to folks in small and large towns.

He can look no further than his former aide Holcomb, who has the freedom to criss-cross the state in a Toyota Tundra pickup truck (made in Princeton, Ind.) and his signature of having locals escort him to the iconic basketball gyms across the state, where he duly sinks jumpers. Along the way, Holcomb is picking up endorsements of dozens of mayors, state legislators, party and community leaders. In the lead up to the release of his second-quarter financing report, he announced adding seven state legislators, eight mayors, nine local elected officials, nine Republican Party leaders and three community leaders.

He told Howey Politic Indiana that while his $200,000 haul is lower than that of Stutzman and Young, once the latter entered the field, a number of Republicans he's had conversations with will make formal decisions on whom to support and he expects more money to flow in his direction. "Out of respect, they don't want to make that decision until the field is set," Holcomb said.

Young has emphasized the "historic perspective" in his unprecedented achievement of raising $1 million in a quarter in the year before the actual cycle. Young's dialing for dollars acumen rates with two other prodigious Hoosier U.S. Senate fundraisers, Republican Sen. Dick Lugar and Democrat Sen. Evan Bayh. In other off-year cycles, Lugar ranked second with $973,853 in the 2011 April quarterly and fourth with $911,584 in the 2011 July quarterly. Bayh posted $946,298 in the 2003 July quarterly, and $863,704 in the 2003 April quarterly.

It's worth noting that for Senate races in Indiana, the most a non-incumbent reported raising in an off-year quarter was Joe Donnelly, who raised just $453,122 on his 2011 July Quarterly report. Donnelly represented the 2nd CD at the time, but won the U.S. Senate race in 2012, defeating Republican Indiana Treasurer Richard Mourdock in a U.S. Senate race that drew a combined $50 million between the two nominees, Lugar, who lost to Mourdock in the primary, and more than $30 million from super PACs. Of the $1,024,908 raised by Young, $722,558 (70.50%) came from individuals. Of that $722,558, $554,904 (76.80%) came from individual Hoosiers. Of that $554,904, $303,769 (54.74%) came from Hoosiers outside of Young's 9th Congressional District.

Stutzman ended the quarter almost exactly in the middle between Young and Holcomb. In doing so, he announced that Wesley Scott will join the campaign as finance director.

conspicuous monkey off his back. His 2012 campaign was underfunded and once that observation became commonplace, the Democratic Governors Association did not contribute what had been expected. Gregg's loss to Gov. Mike Pence by less than 3% was one of the great missed opportunities of the 2012 cycle.

"Preliminary numbers are in: We raised more than $1.7M with more than $1.8M cash on hand!! Big numbers for our first 60 days," Gregg tweeted out to supporters on July 1. "Thanks to all who contributed."

Gregg began the cycle with $130,000, well behind Gov. Mike Pence's $3.5 million. But he raised $440,000 in large donations in May and June. Democrat Supt. Glenda Ritz had no large donations and State Sen. Karen Tallian shifted $20,000 from her state senate campaign to her gubernatorial. Gregg's unsuccessful campaign against Gov. Pence in 2012 was hamstrung by poor fundraising, particularly in the first quarter of the 2012 cycle, when he raised around $580,000. "We have actually raised more in 60 days than in all of 2011," Gregg said Wednesday (IndyStar). "I think it shows the depth of our support across the state. I learned the last time around, when I got outspent 2 1/2 times to one, that you need to be on television to get your message out."

In contrast, Ritz and Tallian are taking what can be described as a laid-back approach on the money front. Neither has announced finance directors and other than Tallian's $20,000 transfer from her Senate campaign, neither reported large donations. Neither candidate to date has announced other campaign staff, this after both announced their intentions more than six weeks ago.

Ritz seems to be banking on the network of teachers, educators, their families and friends in a grassroots campaign that ultimately allowed her to upset Republican Supt. Tony Bennett. The Ritz modus operandi seems to rely on that grassroots base that helped propel her to 1.5 million votes in 2012. There is some credence to this, as the Bellwether Poll released on behalf of Bill Oesterle in June had the superintendent tied with Gov. Pence at 42%, while the incumbent trailed Gregg by 1%.

Governor: Pence presses Gregg, Ritz on EPA

The Indiana Republican Party is maneuvering to make proposed environmental regulations that would require the state to reduce greenhouse gas emissions from power plants a campaign issue in the 2016 governor's race (Schneider, Evansville Courier & Press). The day after Gov. Pence blasted the forthcoming federal regulations, state GOP Chairman Jeff Cardwell released a statement asking where Democratic candidates John Gregg and Glenda Ritz stood on the issue. Cardwell argued "hardworking Hoosiers deserve answers." It's one of the first issues out of the gate for the party following Pence announcing his reelection bid last month. "Energy policy should promote the safe, environmentally responsible stewardship of our natural resources with the goal of reliable, affordable energy. Your approach to energy policy places environmental concerns above all others," Pence wrote to Obama.

Pence's Democratic opponents were critical of his response. In speaking with the Courier & Press last week, Gregg, who is making another bid for governor after narrowly losing to Pence in 2012, said the state needs to focus on clean coal technology. Gregg, who previously worked as a land agent for Peabody Coal and a governmental affairs representative for Amax Coal, spoke of his background in the industry. He recalled Hoosiers from his hometown of Sandborn who worked at mines. "We need to balance those good-paying jobs. We need to balance those concerns with that and the environment. We need to take a hard look at this," Gregg said. Gregg declined to comment on the emissions standards until they're released, which is expected in August. But he said more discussion needs to occur as the state waits to see how the proposed rules evolve and the final product comes out, rather than talk of lawsuits.

"It's that quick reaction that I think gets (Pence) into a lot of problems," Gregg said. Ritz couldn't be reached for comment through her campaign as of Thursday. State Sen. Karen Tallian, who also is running in the Democratic primary for governor, said the federal government is giving the state flexibility to develop its own plan. She said state leaders should get stakeholders at the table to draw one up. "There is a whole range of options and energy policy is something that needs a longterm, thoughtful solution with a lot of people," Tallian said, "and not just short term, 'I'm not going to cooperate with the Democratic administration.'"

U.S. Senate: Club For Growth begins endorsement process

Club For Growth has begun the process of making an Indiana Senate endorsement. "The Club works through a rigorous process when considering an endorsement," Club President David McIntosh told Howey Politics Indiana's Mark Schoeff Jr. on Monday. "We have been in the midst of that process for the Indiana Senate race. We like what we've seen from Congressman Stutzman, and he is clearly a pro-growth Member of Congress. But, we want to complete our due diligence and we want to see if others officially enter the race."

U.S. Rep. Marlin Stutzman was endorsed by the national group Citizens United. "I urge all conservative Hoosier voters to rally around Marlin Stutzman for U.S. Senate," Citizens United President David N. Bossie said in a press release. "During his tenure in the U.S. House, Congressman Stutzman has refused to give into a Washington establishment that is all too eager to manage the failed status quo and ignore our nation's most pressing problems. I know Marlin Stutzman will continue his fight for common sense conservative reforms in the U.S. Senate and stay true to his values. Hoosiers deserve a conserva-

As for Holcomb, here is the endorsement list he released earlier this month: State Reps. Bob Cherry, Cindy Kirchhofer, Sharon Negele, John Price and Greg Steuerwald, and State Sens. Pete Miller and Mike Crider. Mayors include Andy Cook of Westfield, Steve Croyle of Winchester, John Ditslear of Noblesville, Chris McBarnes of Frankfort, Joe McGuinness of Franklin, Mark Myers of Greenwood, Jeff Papa of Zionsville and Wayne Seybold of Marion. Republican party endorsements came from Fountain County Chairman Daniel Askren, Putnam County Chairman Gerry Ensor, Johnson County Chairwoman Sandi Huddleston, Hendricks County Chairman Mike O'Brien, 5th CD Chairman Kyle Hupfer, 7th CD Chairman Tom John, former Indiana Vice Chairwoman Jean Ann Harcourt, former 6th CD Chairwoman Susie Lightle, and former Indiana Treasurer Marge O'Laughlin. Locally elected officials include Hancock Commissioner Brad Armstrong, Johnson Commissioner Brian Baird, Hendricks Sheriff Brett Clark, Johnson Sheriff Doug Cox, Indianapolis Councilman Jose Evans, Howard Commissioner Paul Wyman, Morgan Council President Ryan Goodwin, Monrovia Councilman Philip Fowler and Putnam Sheriff Scott Stockton. Community leaders endorsing Holcomb include Olgen Williams and Greg Wilson of Indianapolis, and Noblesville council candidate Chris Jensen. (Howey Politics Indiana)

3rd CD: Galloway loans her campaign $50k

Pam Galloway has largely self-funded the start of her 3rd District congressional campaign, according to her second-quarter campaign finance report (Fort Wayne Journal Gazette). Galloway, a former Wisconsin state senator and retired physician who lives in Warsaw, has raised $51,424 in her bid to succeed GOP Rep. Marlin Stutzman in the U.S. House -- $50,000 of it in the form of two $25,000 loans she made to her campaign, and the remainder in contributions from other people. Her report, filed with the Federal Election Commission, shows she has spent nearly $20,200 with Brand Innovation Group of Fort Wayne for campaign materials and digital advertising. She had about $25,700 in cash on hand at the end of the quarter.

A poll released last week had State Sen. Liz Brown leading State Sen. Jim Banks 34-11%, while Scott Wise had 5% and Pam Galloway at 3%. The poll, conducted by Mark It Red's Mike Gentry, noted that Brown had 65% awareness across the district and her fav/unfavs were 35/9%. In Allen County, the Fort Wayne Republican polled 51%, Banks had 6%, Wise 5% and Galloway at 2%. Brown campaign manager Joshua Kelley said, "This poll shows voters are pleased with Liz's conservative track record in the Indiana Senate and on the Fort Wayne City Council. Washington needs strong voices willing to defend our family values and fight for jobs. Liz is ready to do that on day one." The poll of 400 likely Republican primary election voters was conducted June 29 and 30. A pollster for Banks would not comment on the record about the

Mayors

Harrison won't run in Indianapolis

United Methodist Rev. Charles Harrison will not mount an independent mayor bid in Indianapolis, sources have told Howey Politics Indiana. A more detailed announcement is coming later this morning, Evansville: Democratic Evansville mayoral candidate Gail Riecken has scotched plans to hold a fundraiser at Memorial Baptist Church Tuesday, leaving the event strictly a public forum (Evansville Courier & Press). The planned political fundraiser in a church facility would not have jeopardized Memorial Baptist or any church's tax-exempt status under the circumstances outlined by Memorial and Riecken's campaign, according to an expert at Notre Dame Law School. The day's main event had been billed by Riecken's campaign as a "forum on leadership in government and business" featuring Gary Mayor Karen Freeman-Wilson and Nan Whaley, mayor of Dayton, Ohio. The two Democratic mayors would also "headline a fundraiser for (Riecken's) campaign" at Memorial Baptist, the campaign announced.

Rev. Charles Harrison has decided not to run as an independent in Indianapolis.

General Assembly

Steele won't seek reelection

Retiring from the General Assembly after the 2016 session is the right decision, Sen. Brent Steele said Tuesday (Lewis, Bloomington Herald-Times). "There are only three ways to go ('get beat, die in office or retire'), and the first two don't appeal to me." On Tuesday, the Bedford Republican referred several times to his family and his grandchildren, saying he wanted to devote more time to them during the next several years. "We sort of have a shelf life built into us," said Steele, who will celebrate his 68th birthday next month. "I want to be able to practice law and enjoy my grandchildren while I will have time to play hard with them. ... You've got a window of opportunity to play with your grandchildren, and I'm going to take it." For his part, State Rep. Eric Koch referred to Steele as "a mentor and a friend." "If he makes a commitment, he follows through," Koch said. "He's well-liked and respected by members of both parties." Koch would be one Republican poised to run for Steele's Senate seat. ❖

How not to change policy in Indiana

By BRIAN A. HOWEY

NASHVILLE, Ind. – For several weeks leading into July 1, it was the bright shiny object for the Indiana news media, this stagecraft known as the “First Church of Cannabis.”

The entertainer/journalist Abdul-Hakim Shabazz told us the “Cannabis church is no joke” and warned us to “underestimate” the church “at your own peril.” The cannabis church was Abdul’s blog brainchild that was adopted by serial punk promoter Bill Levin, who conducted his July 1 religious ceremony sans marijuana due to threats of arrest from Indianapolis law enforcement. So much for taking a stand in the best tradition of civil disobedience. The “church” instead opted for a lawsuit.

The joke was supposed to be on Gov. Mike Pence, who signed the Religious Freedom Restoration Act that ignited a national embarrassment last March. The opening was supposedly the RFRA law that would protect the sacramental use of the demon weed in a church setting.

Lost in all the hyperbole are the very real policy issues. Almost half of the United States have passed laws legalizing some form of marijuana use, including Michigan and Illinois (where the legislature voted for decriminalization in May). Cities like Chicago and Washington, D.C., have decriminalized use.

Here in Indiana, criminal code reforms just now kicking in have the potential of shifting incarceration costs from the state to 92 counties. Part of the equation is the 15,000 or so criminal marijuana charges filed annually and associated costs cited by researchers in the $150 million range.

While Hoosier legislators are clinging to long-held positions on marijuana, the general public has emphatically shifted. In a 2012 Howey/DePauw Indiana Battleground Poll, we asked the question, “Do you favor or oppose making possession of a small amount of marijuana an infraction rather than a crime?” The response was 54 percent agreed and 37 percent opposed.

Last April in the Howey Politics Indiana Poll, we asked the question a different way: “Twenty-three states and the District of Columbia have legalized marijuana use in some form. In Indiana, it’s not legal for any use. Which of the following do you support?” The responses were: 24 percent, legalize for recreational and medicinal use; 31 percent, legalize for medicinal use only; 13 percent, decriminalize marijuana possession of any amount to be a fine as opposed to jail time; and 28 percent said to keep Indiana laws the way they are.

Another way to look at it is that 68 percent approve of some type of marijuana law reform, 28 percent support the status quo and 4 percent had no opinion.

So there is wide support for a policy change in Indiana, just as there was for a lottery three decades ago. When legislators finally caught up in 1988 after a decade of opposition, the lottery passed a statewide referendum with 64 percent of the vote.

The response from marijuana proponents was essentially to mock the governor over the RFRA debacle, and create a “church” that a majority of the members of the Indiana General Assembly will find offensive to their own religious beliefs. It created a situation where Indianapolis authorities threatened a crackdown, and it alienated a wide swath of people in the neighborhood where the “church” is located.

If you want to create a textbook example of how not to bring about policy change, our entertainer/journalist, the “High Priest Levin,” and the Indiana NORML chapter (which described the new church as “very amazing, full of irony and wonder”) have probably set back any notion of reform by years.

Oh, wow, man.

Lacking in Indiana are the types of marijuana advocacy groups which approach the issue with an array of data, professional lobbyists to make their case in the Statehouse, gaining credibility with legislators, the governor and ultimately voters. The New Approach Oregon organization successfully raised more than $1 million, launched a sophisticated campaign with videos and use of social media, forged endorsements from prominent Oregonians and won a statewide referendum with 56 percent (the same percentage in Washington and 55 percent in Colorado).

The policy opening here would have been an effort to decriminalize possession of small amounts of marijuana, with natural allies coming in from an overwhelming number of Republican county councilmen and women (about 80 percent of county officials in Indiana are Republican) who are grappling with ever-rising criminal justice, probation, jail overcrowding, HIV and Hep C outbreaks, treatment and law enforcement costs. These are the Hoosiers who forge county budgets, and transcend party ideology to the hard truths of social trend lines. Taxed legal marijuana is a potential revenue source to deal with an array of problems.

With 20 medicinal states and three, Colorado, Oregon and Washington, where recreational use is legal, legislators and public servants across the nation now have living laboratories on the impacts of legalization. Wise

Hoosier policy makers should be watching and learning what's working, and what isn't.

The no-brainer is decriminalization in Indiana, which should become a conservative cause that will save taxpayer dollars while keeping thousands of Hoosiers from having criminal records.

In places like Oregon and Washington, the face of the movement was prominent citizens, professional lobbyists, sophisticated media, and a successful outreach to voters. In the Hoosier State, it's amateur hour with colorful and entertaining characters springing right out of "Alice in Wonderland." ❖

Scott Co. Sheriff seeks addiction treatment protocols for jail

CNHI Statehouse Bureau

INDIANAPOLIS – A drug-fueled outbreak of HIV convinced Scott County Sheriff Dan McClain of the need to take on addiction - even if it means the uncommon practice of medicating prisoners in his jail.

McClain is working with state and local officials to bring a costly medication called Vivitrol into the county jail in hopes of keeping offenders, particularly those already infected with HIV, from relapsing once they are released.

Vivitrol is an injectable form of the drug naltrexone. Addiction specialists say it blocks cravings for heroin and other opiates, such as those found in the prescription painkiller at the center of the Scott County outbreak.

Vivitrol is already used in court-ordered programs, as an alternative to locking up heroin users, in 27 of Indiana's 92 counties. Scott County would be first to administer it to prisoners before an addict is released.

"We have people who are serious about kicking their drug habit when they're in our jail, but they don't stay that way when they're back on the streets," McClain said. "This is the first step to helping them stay clean."

An outbreak of HIV, detected late last year in the small city of Austin, hit 170 cases by June. Almost all were tied to intravenous drug users sharing contaminated needles to inject the painkiller Opana.

Approved in injectable form in 2010 by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, Vivitrol has won guarded praise from addiction specialists. Unlike the commonly used methadone, which mimics the effects of opiates, it blocks cravings for the opiate high.

But it's expensive, which has limited its use in

Some private insurers cover part of the cost. Many don't.

A breakthrough for Scott County came with the help of state Public Health Commissioner Jerome Adams, who helped convince the drug's manufacturer, Alkermes, to launch a pilot program in the jail, providing the first doses at little cost. The company has done the same in at least 40 jails around the nation.

A typical Vivitrol regimen, with the drug administered every four weeks, lasts 8 to 12 months. So state public health officials have agreed to let taxpayers pick up part of the cost.

They're working with McClain to enroll prisoners coming out of jail into the Healthy Indiana Plan 2.0, the state's Medicaid program. The plan will pick up the bulk of the cost, reducing prices for those enrolled in the program to just a few dollars.

Earlier this year, Rep. Wendy McNamara, R-Mount Vernon, pushed to give local judges more authority to use Vivitrol as part of court-ordered programs, but lawmakers balked at its cost.

McNamara sees it as long-term investment. "If they can stay out of jail, the state benefits because we're not having to pay to incarcerate someone," she said.

Scott County prosecutor Jason Mounts is cautiously hopeful. "Our goal isn't to lock up all the drug addicts in our county," he said. "It's to get more of them into treatment and back into society as productive citizens."

He is working with local judges to set up protocols for court-ordered use of Vivitrol as part of a larger treatment program that includes counseling and support. They're encouraged by other courts, such as Hamilton County's, that now use Vivitrol as a sentencing alternative.

"It's not a miracle drug, but it curbs the craving enough that they can focus on their counseling and treatment," said Hamilton County Deputy Prosecutor Amy Summerfield. "It gives them time to spend on underlying issues, rather than deal with cravings on front burner all the time."

The jail piece is seen as key. If McClain succeeds in resolving the cost issue, other counties may follow suit.

Penny Rader, a Boone County probation officer who oversees addicts in court-ordered drug treatment programs, said Vivitrol can only be given to someone who's gone through detoxification, which can take 5 to 10 days.

"That's been our biggest stumbling block," Rader said. "Going through detox is very, very difficult. Some people are just unwilling to go through it."

McClain agrees but says prisoners "detox in our jail whether they want to or not."

It may be September before the Vivitrol program gets underway in Scott County.

McClain said he knows it won't be a panacea for the problem that has ravaged his community.

"We didn't get here overnight," he said. "And it will take a long time and a lot of work to get ourselves back to where we need to be." ❖

Mayor Copeland lands 500 jobs for E. Chicago

By RICH JAMES

MERRILLVILLE – There was a time when East Chicago was one of the most industrialized towns in the nation. And, it certainly was one of the most political.

Throughout most of those glory years, Robert A. Pastrick was the city's mayor. In fact, Time magazine at the time called East Chicago one of the last political fiefdoms in America.

But life changed as Pastrick was defeated and his successor, George Pabey, ultimately was sent to prison. And during the middle of Pastrick's reign, the steel industry that was at the core of the city's industrialization, declined rapidly with one of its major steel mills, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, actually closing for a while. Subsidiary industries across East Chicago either closed or moved to other parts of the country or to foreign nations.

Mayor Anthony Copeland, a former city firefighter, replaced Pabey and was renominated during the May primary after surviving a challenge from longtime city Clerk Mary Morris Leonard. The voters seemed to like what Copeland is doing as businesses were popping up around the town.

Copeland pulled the city out of debt, by eliminating scores of political jobs, and began developing the Lake Michigan shoreline with the help of the Northwest Indiana Regional Development Authority.

East Chicago, it seemed, was on the way back. And then came this week's announcement that the Copeland administration was on the verge of reaping a major dividend.

Word is that a manufacturer in one of Chicago's western suburbs was planning to relocate to East Chicago.

The firm, whose name is being withheld until all agreements are reached, will employ about 510 workers at an average salary of $55,000 a year. The jobs are skilled and Ivy Tech already is gearing up to provide the training. The unidentified company will invest about $50 million in an existing building and land.

The building has a rich history as it once was used to produce tanks for wars. In more recent years it was used to building railroad cars. News of the industry comes at a time when things are difficult for the steel industry, which remains the heart of East Chicago.

ArcelorMittal took over Inland Steel Co., which is the largest in Indiana, and U.S. Steel acquired LTV Steel, a finishing company. Besides the daily impact of foreign steel being dumped in America, ArcelorMittal said a week ago that the possibility exists that it may close one of its hot strip rolling mills.

ArcelorMittal said its hot strip mills are operating at 70 percent of capacity and flat carbon product imports have increased 70 percent since 2013.

The steel giant operates hot strip mills in Riverdale, Ill., Burns Harbor, and two in East Chicago, as well as one in Cleveland. The company said it doesn't make sense to keep them all open, but didn't hint at which one may be closed.

Even if East Chicago should lose the employment of one of its hot strip mills, the arrival of 510 manufacturing jobs has Copeland smiling. ❖

Stark differences between Democrat, GOP prez candidates

By LEE HAMILTON

BLOOMINGTON – The stark differences in priorities between the Republicans and Democrats running for president suggests there will be a huge gulf between the parties, with no agreement on how to bridge it.

The presidential election is 16 months away, but already we're smack in the middle of the usual media scrum of campaign coverage, prognostication, and strategizing by many of us who have nothing much to do with the real campaigns. I've been following the rhetoric of both parties, and there are a few points that stand out enough to tell us something about what we have to look forward to.

To begin, the country is not in a sunny mood. The website Real Clear Politics keeps a running average of various polls, and its average of questions asking what Americans think of the country's direction shows some 62 percent believe we're headed in the wrong direction. That's not an all-time high — the figure was up in the 80s in the weeks before the 2008 election, and stood at 76.5 percent in October of 2011 — but it suggests that the electorate is in a wary mood. There is a sense that America is adrift, that we don't quite know how to deal with the forces of globalization, technological change, economic uncertainty, or terrorism. Americans are looking for a leader who can restore confidence.

The economy in particular weighs on ordinary Americans' minds. There's widespread agreement that the growing economy has done very little to help people of ordinary income, not just in recent years, but really for the past generation. Americans may feel better about the economy now than they did a few years ago, but that hasn't lessened their long-term anxiety that it's harder than ever to get ahead, and certainly harder than it was in their parents' generation.

Still, the improving economy may be responsible for one interesting aspect of the campaign: Republicans thus far have made national security a centerpiece issue, perhaps responding to polling that shows that Republican voters consider it a key factor in deciding among the plethora of GOP candidates. This emphasis could change with world events, but right now candidates are pressing the argument that President Obama is not tough enough when it comes to foreign policy; they don't think highly of his leadership in the world, and in particular want to see more of a military buildup. It's a little less clear what they want to do with that military power.

Of course, national security and terrorism aren't the only issues that figure prominently in the Republicans' array of issues. So do the budget deficit, cutting taxes, and, as always, pulling back on the reach of government. They want to eliminate Obamacare as well as to cut Medicaid, move Medicare to a voucher system, repeal the estate tax, cut domestic programs, roll back financial reform and efforts to limit greenhouse gas emissions, and eliminate further consumer protections.

For the Democrats, meanwhile, addressing income inequality, maintaining Social Security and other entitlements, improving the country's decaying infrastructure, job creation, college costs, immigration and energy reform, and climate change all loom large. They want to preserve Obamacare, move forward on climate change, retain taxes on high-income earners, and preserve the financial reforms of the last decade.

The stark differences in priorities between Republicans and Democrats will probably be exacerbated by the primaries. Despite agreement on the general sense of unease among the population at large, just reciting the parties' rhetorical positions suggests there will be a huge gulf between the parties, with no agreement on how to bridge it. The campaign will be characterized by heavy emphasis on the impact of money on the process, and by record-breaking spending by the candidates.

So with no incumbent president, a large number of candidates, no clear favorite, and major differences in outlook on which issues to address and how to address them, this will be in the grand American political tradition a lively, contentious, long, expensive, maybe even pivotal election. Who gets to answer the biggest questions we face, the appropriate U.S. role in the world, what the reach and purpose of government should be, which path will best secure Americans' prosperity and world peace, is up for grabs. We've got an interesting election ahead as a nation. I'm looking forward to it. I hope you are, too. ❖

When a Republican ruled South Bend

By JACK COLWELL

SOUTH BEND – The last Republican mayor of South Bend was Lloyd M. Allen, elected in 1963 and re-elected in 1967, both times by landslides. Allen won by close to 16,000 votes in '63, a record, after an accidental Democratic mayor wouldn't spend to fix chuckhole-infested streets and the Democratic Party was split, East Side vs. West Side.

In those days of powerful political organizations, Democratic leaders slated a mayoral candidate, Paul Krueper, the East Side favorite, in a mayoral nomination race with Eugene Pajakowski, supported in West Side precincts then with massive Polish-American voter strength. Krueper won the nomination. James Carroll, then The Tribune political writer, described the primary battle as "one of the meanest in Democratic history."

Enter Allen. He won big in the Republican primary, where there was a large turnout.

Allen, an attorney, was elected four years earlier as city judge, a judgeship no longer in existence, defeating a Democratic incumbent accused of questionable conduct and opposed by prominent lawyers in his own party. Carroll wrote that Allen "looks like a combination of Ichabod Crane and Abraham Lincoln." He was a bit gangly, yet distinguished in appearance. He had a deep voice and way with words, though not quite Lincolnesque. He was 44 when elected.

Allen went to the West Side, campaigning in places where Republican candidates had feared to tread. He hit the pavement, or what was left of the crumbling, chuckhole-filled pavement, denouncing the Democratic administration's neglect of streets and promising an extensive repaving program.

While Democrats have won 11 mayoral elections since Allen left office, and are virtually certain to continue that streak this fall to 12 elections and 48 years, Republicans put up more substantial opposition back then. A Republican won the office in 1951 and came very close in 1955.

The Democrat elected in 1955 and then reelected in 1959 was Edward "Babe" Voorde, father of present City Clerk John Voorde. Babe Voorde was a popular party leader. But Democrats lost their leader when the mayor was killed in an auto accident in 1960. Accidental Mayor Frank Bruggner, filling the vacancy left by Voorde's death, didn't really want the job and sought to be a frugal caretaker, holding down costs and taxes but letting the streets crumble.

Allen lunched a street resealing program and other ambitious efforts, despite the demise of Studebaker automotive production coming just before he assumed office. He responded to complaints about spending and taxes, including criticism by Republican Council Member Janet Allen, by saying citizens were willing to pay for needed improvements when they could see the results.

Allen's approach was endorsed by the voters when he won another big victory for re-election in 1967, that time defeating Pajakowski. He was a driving force for a new county-city building and a self-described "passionate annexationist," once seeking annexation of Notre Dame.

He was personable, convivial. And he liked a drink, often more than one. He once jumped into a pond at a popular restaurant, the "Wooden Keg." But personal matters, so scrutinized now, were unreported then, if not interfering with official duties, whether engaged in by a mayor or a president.

As Allen left office after declining to seek a third term, a Tribune editorial observed: "When Lloyd M. Allen retires as mayor at the end of this month, South Bend will have a physical reminder of his eight-year term. Not a monument, or a statue, but nearly 400 miles of improved streets. Indeed, the Allen administration can claim fairly to have brought South Bend out of its monumental chuckhole."

Janet Allen was the Republican nominee in 1971, stressing the more conservative spending approach she sought in battles with the mayor over projects and budgets. In a talk shortly after leaving office, Lloyd Allen said of the other Allen: "Our relationship began eight years ago on a note of hostility and steadily deteriorated thereafter." Republicans were split, moderate vs. conservative, in 1971. Democrat Jerry Miller was elected mayor. A Democrat has been in the office ever since. ❖

Weakly weekly wages worries Hoosiers

By MORTON MARCUS

INDIANAPOLIS – There is a lot of talk about flat wages. It's not just talk, it's a fact. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Indiana Department of Workforce Development, average weekly wages in 42 of Indiana's 92 counties were lower (after adjustment for inflation) in 2014 than in 2008.

Statewide the problem is much worse than in the nation. Indiana's real average weekly wages rose only 0.7 percent in those six years; nationally the increase was 2.6 percent. It's not that we fell from a great height; in 2008 our wages were 15.6 percent below those of the U.S. By 2014, we had continued to slip downhill in a fog of self-deceit to 17.2 percent below the nation.

Who took the worst of the hit? You need look no further than your local government employees. Statewide, public safety workers, teachers, librarians, and others who work for us and live in our neighborhoods saw their real wages drop 2.8 percent. At the same time, local government workers across the nation realized a decline of 0.8 percent.

Within Indiana we had great differences in real gains and loss. I cannot explain many of them and will have to depend on your editor to fill-in the gaps in my knowledge.

Why did Sullivan County see an increase in average weekly earnings (after adjustment for inflation) of 22.9 percent to lead the state between 2008 and 2014? What high paying jobs were gained or low paying jobs lost?

Was it a near collapse of the local casino that caused Ohio County to have its real wages fall 24.3 percent?

How did it happen that Greene County had a decline of 10.9 percent, but its neighbor, Owen County, had a growth of 8.2 percent?

Over those six years, 2008 to 2014, the top three counties did not change rank in wages paid to workers, but their experiences were quite different. Martin County (with the Crane research facility) had the highest weekly wages at $1,256 in 2014, after enjoying a 4.1 percent real increase. Posey County (with the port and the GE plant) came in second with a $994 average, despite realizing a 3.1 percent decline. Third place was occupied by highly diversified Marion County where the average weekly wage in 2014 was $985, up a slight 0.7 percent.

At the bottom in average weekly wages paid in 2008 was trinket heaven Brown County, only to be replaced in 2014 by Ohio County. Crawford County was in the bottom three in each of those years, while Starke County moved up from 90th to 88th, leap frogging over Parke County.

What's the difference between the top and the bottom of these counties? Martin, Posey and Marion counties are producing for a larger world. Brown, Ohio and Crawford, Starke and Parke sell commodities and not sufficiently differentiated services.

If you want to make more money, you have to do something others are willing to pay for handsomely. ❖

Paul Helmke, Fort Wayne Journal Gazette: It is clear that the president and many others are frustrated by our failure to take action to reduce gun violence in this country. But I believe that something not only can, but will, be done. Who would have thought earlier this year that the South Carolina Legislature would vote to take down the Confederate battle flag? Who would have thought earlier this year that the Indiana legislature would add any language to any bill listing sexual orientation as something entitled to some specific protections? Yes, even slow-moving legislative bodies sometime recognize the need to make changes that once seemed impossible. Since the shock and anger over the news of the gun-riddled first-graders at Sandy Hook, six states have taken action to expand background checks to most gun sales. The state of Washington took this step through a referendum last year, and Oregon expanded its background checks to Internet gun sales this year. While the national Brady Law requiring federally licensed gun dealers to do background checks has stopped 2.4 million prohibited purchases since 1998, and takes only a few minutes for buyers with "clean" records, it does not apply to "private" sales which can take place at highly attended gun shows, swap meets, yard sales or in numerous other settings. It is estimated that 40 percent of all gun purchases are done without any background check. States requiring background checks on nearly all gun sales have seen that checks help reduce the level of gun violence. A bipartisan bill pending in the House (H.R.1217) would improve the existing Brady Law by requiring background checks for nearly all gun purchases. Such a law is clearly allowed by the Second Amendment and could make some difference in reducing gun violence. All candidates for office in the upcoming elections need to be asked where they stand on legislation like this. If they are opposed, they need to explain why and then be asked what their proposals are to reduce gun violence. We can't allow our elected officials and candidates to get away with simplistic dodges like "I support the 2nd Amendment". ❖

John Krull, Evansville Courier & Press: By coincidence, I was at a national convention of newspaper columnists just a few days before Gov. Mike Pence announced Indiana had canceled its deal with an out-of-state public relations firm hired to repair the state's battered image. The state had hired Porter Novelli to clean up the mess left by Pence's maladroitness handling of the needless debate over the Religious Freedom Restoration Act — a mean-spirited "solution" in desperate search of a problem if there ever was one. "Given the record-setting pace of job creation by businesses across Indiana, Gov. Pence supports the decision by the IEDC (Indiana Economic Development Commission) to conclude the contract with Porter Novelli and continue current efforts to promote the advantages of doing business and creating jobs in our state," said Kara Brooks, Pence's press secretary. That statement demonstrates once again that denial isn't just a river in Africa. The way to dump embarrassing news overboard is by releasing a statement just before the weekend starts — and it's even better if you can throw garbage over the rail when people are racing away for a holiday weekend. The news that Indiana had severed ties with Porter Novelli came right as Americans prepared to celebrate the Fourth of July. Belated as it was, the governor made the right decision for the wrong reasons to get rid of Porter Novelli. The problem with agreeing to drop $2 million on an out-of-state public relations firm was that it both was too much and too little. Spending that much money on damage control was bound to generate criticism of state officials — the governor included — who have preached austerity at different times to everyone from school teachers to police officers to victims of domestic violence. And the reality is that no amount of money was likely to do what Pence wanted done. Communications professionals can't sell a message that doesn't exist. ❖

Lesley Weidenbener, Statehouse

File: The U.S. Supreme Court has cleared the way for states to use independent redistricting commissions to draw maps for legislative districts. That's particularly timely in Indiana, where lawmakers are about to study whether to move the redistricting process to such a commission. It's a move advocated by good-government type groups. The idea has even gained surprising support among Indiana lawmakers, even Republicans who currently have all the power they need to draw the lines in ways that benefit them. But House Speaker Brian Bosma, R-Indianapolis, has been pushing for an independent commission to take over the job and he advocated this summer's study to learn more. "In my experience an independent redistricting has the potential to take the partisanship out of it," he said. "I'm very interested in seeing whether that has been the experience in the state that has done them." About a dozen states give "first and final authority" for legislative redistricting to a group other than the legislature, according to the National Conference of State Legislatures. That means lawmakers have no say in how the maps are drawn. Instead the job goes to a non-elected organization. The U.S. Supreme Court said a redistricting commission in Arizona is constitutional. In that case, the commission was created by voters through an initiative process. The court said disallowing the commission would "run up against the Constitution's animating principle that the people themselves are the originating source of all the powers of government." But that raises a question: In a state like Indiana, without a ballot initiative process, would an independent commission actually honor the idea that the "the people themselves are the originating source of all the powers of government?" ❖

Iran nuke accord reached

VIENNA — Iran and a group of six nations led by the United States reached a historic accord on Tuesday to significantly limit Tehran's nuclear ability for more than a decade in return for lifting international oil and financial sanctions, Western diplomats said (New York Times). The deal culminates 20 months of negotiations on an agreement that President Obama had long sought as the biggest diplomatic achievement of his presidency. Whether it portends a new relationship between the United States and Iran — after decades of coups, hostage-taking, terrorism and sanctions — remains a bigger question. President Obama is essentially betting that once sanctions have been lifted, Iran's leaders will have no choice but to use much of the new money to better the lives of their citizens. In 18 consecutive days of talks here, American officials said, the United States secured major restrictions on the amount of nuclear fuel that Iran can keep in its stockpile for the next 15 years. It will require Iran to reduce its current stockpile of low enriched uranium by 98 percent, most likely by shipping much of it to Russia. That measure, combined with a two-thirds reduction in the number of centrifuges spinning at Iran's primary enrichment center at Natanz, would extend to a year the amount of time it would take Iran to make enough material for a bomb should it abandon the accord and race for a weapon — what officials call "breakout time."

Coats skeptical of Iran deal

WASHINGTON — Senator Dan Coats (R-Ind.) is wary of the nuclear agreement between Iran and a group of six leading nations, including the United States today. "This deal intends to slow down Iran's march to nuclear weapons capability, but even the White House concedes that this agreement will not permanently stop Iran's nuclear ambitions," Coats said. Congress must determine what this deal does buy us and at what cost. I will carefully review the details, but I admit profound skepticism. The intentions of the Iranian regime have been revealed by decades of murderous aggression and lying deceit. This violence is the proven record of our negotiating partner, and all of Iran's commitments must be evaluated in that light. If this proposed deal fails in any important respect, Congress must reject it. We then can enact more vigorous sanctions to persuade the Iranian leaders to reconsider their positions or persuade the Iranian people to reconsider their leaders."

Detente settles in for Ritz, SBOE

INDIANAPOLIS — Six weeks after a reboot of the State Board of Education, a detente between board members and state school superintendent Glenda Ritz is holding (Berman, WIBC). Five of the board's 10 appointed members came aboard last month, under a law transferring two board appointments to legislative leaders, and allowing Governor Pence to decide whether to keep or jettison the rest. The first two meetings with the new lineup have had none of the acrimony that were a regular feature of the preceding two years, as Ritz, the only Democrat holding state office in Indiana, repeatedly clashed with a bipartisan board appointed by Republican governors. Ritz says she expects the good feeling to continue. She says she can't speculate on whether the newfound calm reflects the membership change, a desire to start over, or something else, but says turning over half the board's roster can't help but alter the dynamics. But Ritz says she still believes the superintendent should continue to automatically serve as board chairman. The same law which shook up the board's membership also calls for the board to elect its chairman, starting in 2017.

Walker kicks off prez campaign

WAUKESHA, Wis. — Scott Walker officially announced his bid for the presidency on Monday, launching his campaign from some of the most reliably Republican turf in America and the site of the Wisconsin governor's most unlikely victory (Politico). Suburban Milwaukee's Waukesha County is where Walker celebrated the 2012 recall victory that propelled him to national prominence. It was a bruising battle that added to an impressive streak over more than two decades in which Walker appeared on a ballot 14 times, and failed just twice. That record is at the heart of his pitch to Republican voters. "My record shows that I know how to fight and win. Now, more than ever, we need a president who will fight and win for America," Walker said, his sleeves rolled up. Walker emphasized he is not a creature of Washington.

Indiana facing teacher shortage

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana schools are coming up short on one very crucial part of the mix (StateImpact). We've reported before about shortages of substitute teachers around the state — and not surprisingly, the group of Hoosier educators as a whole is also on the decline. The number of licenses the state issued to first year teachers in 2013-14 dropped by more than 60 percent from the 2009-10 school year. According to the most recent data available from the Indiana Department of Education, the state issued 6,174 licenses to first-time teachers in the 2013-14 school year. In 2009-10, that number sat at 16,578. That means the number of initial licenses issued has dropped by 63 percent. It's important to note that teachers need separate licenses to teach individual subjects, so this doesn't mean the number of teachers has dropped by the same.

- 3. Staff assistance. Mary Kay Hudson, Jennifer Bauer and Michelle Goodman provided staff assistance to the Advisory Council.
- 4. Welcome & Introductions. Chief Justice Loretta Rush welcomed everyone to the inaugural meeting of the Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council and thanked the members for meeting on the first day that the Advisory Council officially exists by statute. She remarked that the meeting was an historic occasion and that the work of the group will have an important impact on the criminal justice system. Jane Seigel led the members and guests in introductions.
- 5. Summary of Organizational Meeting. Jane Seigel provided a summary of the organizational meeting held on June 17, 2015. She highlighted the importance of member attendance and encouraged members to bring designees to the meetings. Ms. Seigel reported that the members at the organizational meeting reviewed the Advisory Council's statutory duties under HEA 1006, discussed member expectations, established two work groups (overview of funding and recidivism), and discussed the grant process envisioned by the Department of Correction and the voucher process envisioned by the Division of Mental Health and Addiction.

- 6. Review DOC Grant Amendment Application Instructions. The Department of Correction distributed copies of the grant application instructions. The Advisory Council members discussed making the following revisions to the document: change the purpose of the grant to include all moderate and high risk felony offenders and include Autism Spectrum Disorder; add supervision and the statutory citation to program targets; clarify that previous awards are part of consideration in making awards, add that the grant awards may become part of the county's base award from DOC; add that the total for grant awards is $5 million and awards may be reduced based upon the number of applications; change the project award period start date to November 1; add a reference to the DMHA funding for certified treatment services; add application procedures for counties that do not have a community corrections advisory board; add "funded through county funds" in the explanation of supplanting in funding guidelines; change the target population, change bullet #3 and #4 to include probation and community corrections in #6 of funding guidelines. Jane Seigel asked that DOC make the changes as soon as possible so that the Advisory Council members can review the document one more time before it is released next week. The Department of Correction agreed to send copies of the grant amendment application documents to the Indiana Judicial Center and the Prosecuting Attorneys Council so they can send to judges, chief probation officers and prosecutors.
- 7. Review DOC Grant Amendment Application. The Department of Correction distributed copies of the grant application. The Advisory Council members discussed making conforming changes from the application instructions. Julie Lanham explained that grant applicants will use the budget section to make the funding request.
- 8. Discuss County Collaboration Plan Template. Jane Seigel reported that the collaboration plan template was developed by DOC and the Judicial Center. She explained the collaboration plan will be required as part of the grant amendment application process. The members discussed that counties can apply for year two of the funding cycle if they cannot complete the plan by the grant amendment due date.
- 9. Update from DMHA on forensic treatment services fund. Kevin Moore reported that DMHA is still developing the process for distributing the forensic treatment funds and looking at rates it will pay providers. He stated that DMHA plans to create an operations manual and offer trainings to treatment providers. Mr. Moore also reported that DMHA has identified three additional positions that it will need to implement the voucher system.

Stephanie Spoolstra distributed handouts to the Advisory Council members. She stated that vouchers will be limited to providers trained to deliver services to forensic populations and DMHA plans to provide regional trainings in motivational interviewing for a forensic population. Ms. Spoolstra explained the handout that shows the process once a treatment referral is made by a criminal justice entity and highlighted that felons referred to treatment will have individual treatment plans. Ms. Spoolstra also stated that the forensic treatment services funds will follow the individual and there will be an individual treatment cap of $2500 per person. She also stated that most people will qualify for insurance, Medicaid or HIP 2.0 before they reach the cap.

Sara Cozad reported that DMHA is seeking input from the Advisory Council on five questions. She stated that question #1 is on the preferred referral process—DMHA is considering whether referral agencies will refer clients to a designated assessor (following the Access to Recovery Model) or refer directly to a treatment provider for assessment. She said DMHA is leaning toward the referral directly to the provider for assessment and wants the opinion of the Advisory Council. The Advisory Council members stated that they are in agreement with DMHA's preference. Ms. Cozad stated that question #2 is about treatment providers requesting IRAS results from the referral source. The Advisory Council agreed that this would be a good idea. Ms. Cozad stated that question #3 is about barriers to sharing court documents with treatment providers. The Advisory Council discussed that sharing court documents would be helpful and there may be barriers to sharing some documents. The Advisory Council members agreed to discuss this issue further at the next meeting. Ms. Cozad stated question #4 is about whether there is data to determine treatment providers that community supervision agencies refer to most frequently. The Advisory Council members discussed that Drug Courts and Alcohol and Drug programs do not collect this data and suggested looking at the mapping done by the Children's Commission. Ms. Cozad stated that question #5 is about ensuring there is an equitable allocation of funds among the providers/referral sources. The Advisory Council members recommended that DMHA place caps on the total amount of funding available by quarter and then analyze the quarterly distribution by provider to determine if the funding should be allocated differently. John Hill stated that he has a map that shows overdose deaths in each county and offered to share it with the Advisory Council. The Advisory Council members also discussed using CHINS maps related to heroin use and the possibility of designating high priority areas.

10. Overview of Funding Opportunities. Jane Seigel requested that the Advisory Council members review the overview of funding opportunities document and provide feedback by July 8th.

11. Future meeting dates. Jane Seigel announced that the Advisory Council is scheduled to meet on the following dates: July 15 at 11 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Judicial Center; August 5; August 19; and September 15. The time and location of the August and September meetings is to be determined.

Respectfully submitted,

Good points Chris. I agree, especially in regard to hiring new staff for an 8 month grant.

Although you have clearly stated "no supplanting," I think there will be questions re: if all positions requested must be new positions.

The part about prioritizing needs probably should be its own sentence to stress the importance of the CCAB establishing priorities in the (likely) event the grant request can only be partially funded.

Thank you for your efforts on this important project.

A 7 month period of a grant time frame is not a long time. I know we discussed it and perhaps that is why the base is mentioned under "funding availability".

HOLCOMB POSTS $200K IN 2Q: Republican U.S. Senate candidate Eric Holcomb announced he raised $200,000 in the second FEC quarter and unveiled a slate of new endorsements. The former Indiana Republican chairman added seven legislators, eight mayors, nine elected officials and nine party leaders to his list of support (Howey Politics Indiana). Holcomb's second quarter numbers followed that of U.S. Rep. Todd Young, who is expected to officially join the race later this month. Young raised $1 million in the second quarter and will have close to $2 million cash on hand. The third candidate, U.S. Rep. Marlin Stutzman, announced he has the backing of Citizens United, but has not released second quarter fundraising totals. Holcomb noted that of the $200,000 raised, nearly 90% of all contributions came from Hoosiers and only 1% came from political action committees. "We undoubtedly made great strides on two important fronts in the last three months: growing our team and funding our campaign," wrote campaign manager Justin Garrett in a memo. "It wasn't that long ago – 103 days to be exact - that our campaign had no staff and no money. Today, however, we can say without hesitation that our growing team has built a truly grassroots campaign that sees constant momentum across the state for Eric's solutions-oriented approach to making America safer, stronger and freer." Holcomb began the quarter with about $125,000 cash on hand.

DONNELLY QUESTIONS ADMINISTRATION STRATEGY AGAINST ISIS: Days after returning from Iraq, U.S. Sen. Joe Donnelly questioned Secretary of Defense Ashton Carter and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff General Martin Dempsey on the United States' strategy to counter the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) during a hearing of the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday (Howey Politics Indiana). Donnelly also asked Secretary Carter and General Dempsey about strengthening the capability of Iraqi security forces. Donnelly said, "One of the great tragedies of this whole thing was that the number of ISIS fighters in Ramadi was extraordinarily insignificant in terms of the overall number, but the Iraqi forces headed the other way, and I wanted to hear your thoughts on making sure that the Iraqi forces know that there is no back door anymore, there is only one way through Ramadi and that is forward." Secretary Carter responded, "The way you recount the fall of Ramadi is exactly correct. Ramadi needs to be retaken, the way to do it is to have a force under a competent command and control of Iraqi security force commanders, which has been a challenge and a plan and means to as you say to make sure that they don't bog down and they are able to take Ramadi and move through Ramadi. This will be a test of the competence of the Iraqi security forces, and it is a test that they must pass and therefore our and the coalitions involvement is to try to train and equip and support them to be successful. We are going to take the time and encourage them to take the time, so that the operation when they do conduct it is successful. "Donnelly then said, "One of the side spinoffs that when it is successful and Ramadi is taken back is that ISIS will then look for a quick PR claim somewhere else. I just want to make sure that we are ready in surrounding towns and areas that when Ramadi falls, we know they are going to step somewhere else and that we have a plan in place to protect those other towns as well." General Dempsey responded, "The Ramadi campaign which about a month ago was about to be executed precipitously, has actually been with our help is now a very deliberate campaign first to isolate it and then to go back and recapture it, with the supporting effort in Fallujah. Our presence in the Anbar operation center is allowing the Iraqi security forces to take a more deliberate campaign approach and to avoid the very toothpaste aspect of the way ISIL squirts around the battlefield, where you squeeze it in one place and it turns up in another. This is very much us helping them understand the threat and formulate a campaign to address it, so that they get credit for it and they become credible to the people of Anbar province."

IEDC REMAINS 'TIGH-LIPPED' OVER PR CONTRACT AS DEMS

CRITICIZE: Indiana economic development officials aren't saying much about the decision to end a national public relations contract ahead of schedule (Berman, WIBC). When Indiana hired Washington-based Porter Novelli to assess and repair damage from the religious-freedom debate, the five-month contract prohibited cancellation for at least 13 weeks. A deal agreeing to waive that requirement and break up after just seven weeks was signed last Tuesday and disclosed late Thursday. Indiana will pay $365,000 for services already performed and to terminate the $750,000 contract early. The Indiana Economic Development Corporation says it won't comment beyond last week's statement chalking up the breakup to cost containment and a belief that Indiana's economy is strong despite the RFRA controversy. The termination document declares neither side has found fault with the other's performance, and describes the state as "very pleased" with the work Porter Novelli did. Many Democrats criticized the hiring of an out-of-state firm to shore up Indiana's public image, but Senate Minority Leader Tim Lanane (D-Anderson) said at the time it showed a recognition of the damage done by the RFRA debate. Lanane doubts the IEDC's assertion that the storm has passed -- he says he's still getting questions about the law from out-of-state acquaintances, nearly three months after the state sought to address concerns with a follow-up law declaring RFRA couldn't be used to justify discrimination. Lanane says he can understand claims that some internal deliberations are confidential. But he says the administration owes taxpayers at least some explanation of what they got for their $365,000. He says the sudden turnabout and the silence about the rationale raise additional questions instead of answering them.

PENCE, PR FIRM CALL OFF RELATIONSHIP: Earlier in the year, Gov. Mike Pence (R-Indiana) signed the "Religious Freedom Restoration Act" when he thought the idea of gay rights would interfere with businesses across the state that may not have wanted to extend an "open-door policy" to those looking to enjoy gay rights (PR Newser). And so, the RFRA was signed into state law. The understated goal was to give business owners a stronger legal defense if they refused to serve LGBT customers by allowing them to defend these policies by arguing that they were standing behind their faith. Immediately, this became a discrimination justification issue...and a big PR stink. Indiana took a major perception management blow. Observers tagged Indiana residents as gay-haters, thereby forcing Pence to do something about this black cloud image issue. And so, he hired Porter Novelli for about $2 million...and then "fired" the firm after three months. Now, according to the Chicago Tribune, the state Democratic party wants details of their clandestine relationship, which has apparently not been added to state records: Steve Key, executive director of the Hoosier State Press Association, told The Indianapolis Star the exception doesn't allow the state to issue an across-the-board denial of all records. "I have trouble imagining that all the documents and every part of those documents was opinion or speculation," he said. "There should be a document showing they did some work." Still, the payday for three months of work wasn't too bad: it was $365,000. PN's North American President Brad MacAfee has done the right thing to put on the business face: "We respect this decision by the Indiana Economic Development Corporation (IEDC) as it recalibrates its resources and spending priorities. We know that the State will continue its efforts to strengthen Indiana's global brand reputation." Regretfully – according to many sources covering the story – it seems PN got caught in the middle of an onslaught that Pence wanted to avoid at all costs...so he dumped them as fast as he could. Welcome to the world of client-agency relations.

GOV. BROWNBACK SIGNS RFRA EXEC ORDER: Kansas Gov. Sam Brownback (R) on Tuesday issued an executive order asserting that clergy and religious organizations cannot be penalized by the state for refusing to recognize or provide services for a same-sex marriage (Washington Post). The order comes nearly two weeks after the Supreme Court ruled that same-sex couples have a constitutional right to marry, paving the way for gay couples to marry across the country. It is the latest sign that the battle has shifted to the issue of religious liberties, and how much leeway people of faith have to opt out of providing services to or recognizing gay unions. Gay rights groups immediately condemned the executive order. In a statement, Sarah Warbelow, legal director for the Human Rights Campaign, said the order both feeds false rumors that clergy will ultimately be forced to officiate same-sex marriages, and invites hospitals and other religiously affiliated organizations to refuse to recognize gay couples' marriages. "Having nothing to do with religious freedom and everything to do with enabling discrimination, this executive order is divisive, unnecessary, and sends the wrong message,” she said. In announcing the order, Brownback said the order was necessary to defend the rights of religious Kansans in the wake of the Supreme Court decision. “Today’s executive order protects Kansas clergy and religious organizations from being forced to participate in activities that violate their sincerely and deeply held beliefs,” he said in a statement. The order bars the state from acting against any individual clergy or religious leader who declines to participate in a same-sex ceremony, or any religious group that declines to provide services for or recognize a same-sex marriage if it conflicts with their faith or moral conviction. An example of a prohibited action would be to revoke the tax-exempt status of a religious organization.

TEA PARTY, CLUB NOT OPPOSING SENATE REPUBLICANS: The bloody primary battles between Republican senators and tea party activists that have cost the party dearly for years aren’t materializing yet in 2016 (Politico). Headed into next year’s primary season, virtually none of the 22 GOP senators who are running for reelection have drawn viable challengers so far. At this point in past cycles, several prospective tea party candidates were already gathering steam, with outside groups preparing to spend millions in an effort to oust veteran incumbents. The dearth of serious candidates has prompted leading conservative groups like the Club for Growth and Senate Conservatives Fund to focus instead on defending conservative Utah Sen. Mike Lee and backing candidates in open seats in Florida and Indiana, where Republican senators are not running for reelection. And neither group has plans to attempt to derail GOP senators in their primaries — at least not yet. “We aren’t currently supporting any primary challengers, but we stand ready to do so if strong, viable candidates step forward,” Ken Cuccinelli, head of the Senate Conservatives Fund, said Tuesday. David McIntosh, head of the Club for Growth, said his group right now is focused on backing a handful of conservative Republican senators like Lee, Tim Scott in South Carolina, Ron Johnson in Wisconsin and Pat Toomey in Pennsylvania. The judicious approach, he said, has to do partly with the fact that Republicans now have to worry about preserving the majority. “This cycle the Republicans have a majority in the Senate,” McIntosh said. “There’s an effort among all elements of the coalition — conservatives and party Republicans — to have that majority be successful.” In 2010, Bob Bennett of Utah was caught flat-footed and ousted amid a conservative uprising in his state — as was Dick Lugar two years later in Indiana. But unlike those election cycles, McIntosh said 2016 doesn’t offer as many “liberal Republicans,” so “you aren’t seeing as strong of an effort to support an alternative” at the local level. In open seats in Florida and Indiana, both the SCF and the Club for Growth plan to make their mark. Both groups are backing Rep. Ron DeSantis in Florida, while the SCF has endorsed Rep. Marlin Stutzman in Indiana, and the Club for Growth is planning to engage soon in the Hoosier State’s primary.

HPI DAILY ANALYSIS: The Rolling Stones concert at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway was a fabulous event that drew 50,000 people. While it was only rock n' roll, another part of its success was safe environment Hoosiers experienced not only at this event, but many others. This comes after the many "jitters" about an ISIS lone wolf terror attack, where we've been told there are potential perpetrators in all 50 states. Homeland Security and the various law enforcement agencies around the country did a fabulous job in keeping us safe. - Brian A. Howey 2016: POLL HAS BROWN UP IN 3RD CD - A new poll of Indiana's Third District Congressional District likely Republican Primary Election voters shows Indiana State Senator Liz Brown is off to a strong start in her bid to represent Northeast Indiana in Congress (Howey Politics Indiana). The poll shows Brown leading in district-wide awareness and favorable ratings. Brown has 65 percent awareness across the district. Brown has a 35 percent favorable rating and only 9 percent unfavorable. In a head-to-head match-up district-wide, Brown holds a commanding lead at 34 percent. Jim Banks followed with 11 percent, Scott Wise with 5 percent and Pam Galloway with 3 percent. Sixteen percent of voters were undecided and 30 percent of voters said "don't know." In highly concentrated Allen County, Brown's head-to-head lead grows to 51 percent. The other candidates trail with Banks at 6 percent, Wise at 5 percent and Galloway at 2 percent. Thirteen percent of voters are undecided and 20 percent "don't know." "Liz is well-positioned as she continues to meet voters and share her positive conservative message," said Joshua Kelley with the Liz Brown for Congress campaign. "This poll shows voters are pleased with Liz's conservative track record in the Indiana Senate and on the Fort Wayne City Council. Washington needs strong voices willing to defend our family values and fight for jobs. Liz is ready to do that on day one." The poll of 400 likely Republican Primary Election voters was conducted June 29 and 30. There was a plus and minus rating of 4.89 percent. Mike Gentry of Mark It Red conducted the poll. Gentry is an experienced pollster who has conducted surveys for Indiana House and Senate races as well as statewide and congressional campaigns. He is most notably the pollster for Indiana House Speaker Brian Bosma and Congressman Marlin Stutzman's pollster for his past congressional races in Indiana's Third Congressional District.

2016: STUTZMAN ENDORSED BY CITIZENS UNITED - U.S. Rep. Marlin Stutzman was endorsed by the national group Citizen's United (Howey Politics Indiana). "I urge all conservative Hoosier voters to rally around Marlin Stutzman for U.S. Senate," Citizens United President David N. Bossie said in a press release. "During his tenure in the U.S.

House, Congressman Stutzman has refused to give into a Washington establishment that is all too eager to manage the failed status quo and ignore our nation's most pressing problems. I know Marlin Stutzman will continue his fight for common sense conservative reforms in the U.S. Senate and stay true to his values. Hoosiers deserve a conservative in the U.S Senate, and Marlin Stutzman is that leader."

2016: LATEST HOLCOMB ENDORSEMENT LIST - Legislators endorsing Holcomb include State Reps. Bob Cherry, Cindy Kirchhofer, Sharon Negele, John Price and Greg Steuerwald, and State Sens. Pete Miller and Mike Crider. Mayors include Andy Cook of Westfield, Steve Croyle of Winchester, John Ditslear of Noblesville, Chris McBarnes of Frankfort, Joe McGuinness of Franklin, Mark Myers of Greenwood, Jeff Papa of Zionsville and Wayne Seybold of Marion. Republican party endorsements came from Fountain County Chairman Daniel Askren, Putnam County Chairman Gerry Ensor, Johnson County Chairwoman Sandi Huddleston, Hendricks County Chairman Mike O'Brien, 5th CD Chairman Kyle Hupfer, 7th CD Chairman Tom John, former Indiana vice chairwoman Jean Ann Harcourt, former 6th CD chairwoman Susie Lightle, and former Indiana treasurer Marge O'Laughlin. Locally elected officials include Hancock Commissioner Brad Armstrong, Johnson Commissioner Brian Baird, Hendricks Sheriff Brett Clark, Johnson Sheriff Doug Cox, Indianapolis Councilman Jose Evans, Howard Commissioner Paul Wyman, Morgan Council President Ryan Goodwin, Monrovia Councilman Philip Fowler and Putnam Sheriff Scott Stockton. Community leaders endorsing Holcomb include Olgen Williams and Greg Wilson of Indianapolis, and Noblesville council candidate Chris Jensen. (Howey Politics Indiana)

Presidential 2016

HILLARY TAKES ON JEB IN CNN INTERVIEW: In Hillary Clinton's first national interview of the 2016 race, she attacked her Republican rivals on immigration and dismissed the suggestion that the American people have a problem trusting her (Bradner, CNN). "People should and do trust me," she told CNN's Brianna Keilar. She blamed the "barrage of attacks that are largely fomented by and coming from the right" for fueling a perception that trust is an area of vulnerability for her. Clinton displayed little hesitation about attacking Republicans herself, saying that she is "very disappointed" in Donald Trump for his comments about immigrants and in the Republican Party for not condemning his remarks more quickly. She then pivoted to skewering the entire GOP field for their immigration stance, saying, "They're on a spectrum of hostility, which I think is really regrettable in a nation of immigrants like ours." The interview foreshadowed the Clinton that will hit the campaign trail in the coming months as election season heats up. She was occasionally defensive, especially when pressed on whether she has any responsibility for the public's mistrust in her.

HILLARY TAKING SANDERS SERIOUSLY: Hillary Clinton on Tuesday welcomed a hard fought Democratic presidential primary as rival Bernie Sanders continues to draw large crowds and cut into her double-digit lead among Democrats in key states (NBC News). "This is going to be competitive, it should be competitive," Clinton told reporters after a town hall event in Iowa City, Iowa. "It's only the presidency of the United States we're talking about. The more, the better." Sanders, an independent senator from Vermont who is running as a Democrat, has drawn attention to his candidacy by drawing thousands at campaign rallies and making inroads among Democrats in early voting states. "Let's get everybody out there, let's get everybody running their own campaigns. And then we'll leave it up to Iowa to decide what happens in February."

CLINTON CONDEMNS SF SANCTUARY: Democratic presidential contender Hillary Clinton joined the condemnation of San Francisco's "sanctuary" policy Tuesday (Fox News). Clinton chided law enforcement officials in an interview with CNN, saying the city was wrong to ignore an Immigration and Customs Enforcement request to hold Francisco Sanchez for federal authorities. Sanchez is accused of killing a young California woman along a pier last week. "The city made a mistake, not to deport someone that the federal government strongly felt should be deported," Clinton said. "So I have absolutely no support for a city that ignores the strong evidence that should be acted on."

TRUMP DOUBLES DOWN: The Donald is doubling down. Donald Trump's incendiary comments about Latin American immigrants have infuriated Democrats, embarrassed Republicans, blown up several of his business deals and drawn warnings from Latino political groups, some of whom have reached out directly to Trump's presidential campaign to discuss their concerns (CNN). But Trump has defended and expanded his remarks. On Monday, after an extended public and corporate outcry, he declared his intention to keep speaking out against illegal immigration. After describing Mexicans who come to the United States illegally as "killers" and "rapists" in his June campaign announcement speech, and garnering substantial media coverage from the resulting outcry, Trump has shown no sign of backing away from the fiery rhetoric. "What can be simpler or more accurately stated? The Mexican Government is forcing their most unwanted people into the United States. They are, in many cases, criminals, drug dealers, rapists," Trump said in statement Monday declaring his intention to keep speaking out against illegal immigration.

KASICH SEEKS SUPPORT ON CAPITOL HILL: With the formal launch of his presidential campaign two weeks away, John Kasich returned to Capitol Hill on Tuesday to rally support for his long-shot candidacy (Politico). The Ohio governor spent several hours in meetings with lawmakers and top staffers, hoping to win their support and make the case for why there should be another contender in a Republican field almost too large to keep track of. In one 45-minute, closed-door meeting in the Capitol Hill Club, which organizers estimated drew around 35 House members and dozens of lobbyists and other political professionals who have yet to endorse a 2016 candidate, Kasich, who detailed his work to turn around his state's ailing economy, offered a glimpse into how he'd distinguish himself from the rest of the pack. Without explicitly mentioning any of his rivals, according to one person in the room who summarized the governor's remarks, he called himself "the most experienced in the field with a record that no one can match."

REP. PIERCE SEES FIX FOR DARK BOX TAX SITUATION: Monroe County Assessor Judy Sharp thinks believes a fix to the "dark box" tax problem has to come from the legislature, and Indiana State Rep. Matt Pierce, D-Bloomington, agrees (Bloomington Herald-Times). Pierce thinks majority Republican legislators realize the problem and want to fix it. "I think they understand a fix is needed," he says. But having observed the battles among lobbyists and the amount of confusion generated with this past session's attempted patch job, he's unsure of whether that can happen. Pierce sees the dark-box problem as part a much larger concern — and one that has had a huge impact on the state. Republicans seem to operate under the assumption that all government is wasteful, and that any cut in revenue simply reduces the bloat. "The legislators just don't seem to have much sympathy for the needs of local government to supply basic needs" such as maintaining the roads, or providing for the health and safety of its citizens, according to Pierce. Rather, he says, the thinking is that “we have to protect the taxpayers and their citizens from their own government.” Sharp says if Lowe’s wins its appeal, the company’s property taxes would drop by more than half, from about $240,000 a year to about $100,000, with the difference made up by other property tax payers. But the added taxes will shift only until those other properties reach their tax cap limits, which are set in stone by the recently approved amendment to the Indiana Constitution. After that, the lost revenue simply disappears from already squeezed local government coffers.

REP. SMITH REACTS TO BIG BOX STORY: State Rep. Milo Smith said “nothing could be further from the truth” on the Bloomington Herald-Times big box story. “The Monroe County Assessor stated “County assessors value real estate based on the current condition of the business” and nothing can be further from the truth (Indiana Law)!” Smith said in an email to Howey Politics Indiana. “Real property assessments estimates the value of the land as if vacant and then adds the depreciated cost new of the improvements to arrive at a total estimated value...not the activity inside the building. Indiana Tax Court has emphasized that the goal of our market value-in-use system is to determine the value of a property for its use, not the value of its use. Stinson v. Trimas Fasteners, Inc., 923 N.E.2d 496, 501 (Ind. Tax Ct. 2010) (relating this distinction to the concept of market value-in-use on its most basic level). ARTICLE 10 of the Indiana Constitution states “The General Assembly shall provide, by law, for a uniform and equal rate of property assessment and taxation and shall prescribe regulations to secure a just valuation for taxation of all property, both real and personal.” IC 6-1.1-31-c (c) provides that true tax value does not mean fair market value. True tax value is the value determined under the rules of the department of local government finance unless it is appealed! If the assessor’s assessment is appealed the assessor can’t use the rules they used to determine their assessments are correct if the property owner submits a USPAP compliant appraisal! The current assessment system can’t be uniform and equal, as required by the Indiana Constitution, if the assessor can’t use the rules prescribed by the General Assembly to prove their assessments are correct. If the Monroe County Assessor drops her big-box store assessments from $74 per square foot to $30 per square foot when a taxpayer appeals their assessment, those that don’t appeal will not be assessed uniformly with the big-box stores that don’t appeal their assessments.”

COUNTIES IMPLEMENTING COMMUNITY CORRECTIONS: A new state law is sending more low-level offenders to county jails instead of prison. It will also likely increase numbers in work release and home detention programs (Wagner, WANE-TV)... It benefits low-level offenders with crimes such as resisting law enforcement, multiple DUIs, and theft. “Your DUIs, your multiple DUIs that end up going to prison, theft, white collar crimes,” Allen County Sheriff David Gladieux said. The law took effect on July 1st, but parts of it won't start until January 2016. Right now, judges can't sentence people convicted of certain non-violent crimes to prison if their sentence is less than 90 days. Come January 1st, that will extend to sentences of up to a year. "As the courts progress through the year, it's going to increase because those people that normally would go to prison aren't going to go, but on a case by case basis," Gladieux said. The law's main goal is to avoid jail time for first-time offenders. It also aims to reduce recidivism rates. "They want to avoid incarceration, that's my opinion. I think they want to avoid that at all costs," Gladieux said. "I think you're going to see all those programs come first and worst case scenario, as a last effort, is going to be send them to jail."

ALLEN SHERIFF WORRIES ABOUT FUNDING: (Allen County Sheriff David)

Gladieux said he has mixed emotions about the new law and who it will impact from a financial standpoint (Wagner, WANE-TV). "If the programs work and they get them in those programs and not in the jail, then I guess I have no complaints. But, the ones that I do have a bit of an issue with are the ones that they're going to send our way, but yet not fund it," Gladieux said. "I can appreciate what the state of Indiana is doing, I really do. I appreciate them trying to cut costs, I get that, I mean I'm trying to cut costs as much as I can to, but I'm not shifting my costs to them, and I just don't want them to shift their costs to me." Gladieux said it should save taxpayers money, but could cost his department more. "I call the entire program a cost-shifting, to be quite honest with you, with regards to the sheriff's department and the county jails, because they're not going to fund us and they're saving money on their end," Sheriff Gladieux said. "The state is willing to fund through a grant process the community corrections programs, alternative sentencings, things like that. I see very little to no language in there in reimbursing the Sheriff's Departments for incarcerating them, which then leads me to believe they'd really like this to go into a program-based effort rather than incarceration."

DONNELLY HIGHLIGHTS SENATE ARMED SERVICE OVERSEAS TOUR: Tuesday, U.S. Senator Joe Donnelly highlighted his recent travel to Iraq, Kuwait, South Korea, and China (Howey Politics Indiana). Donnelly, who serves on the Senate Armed Services Committee and as Ranking Member on the Strategic Forces Subcommittee, met in each country with foreign officials, U.S. military leaders, and diplomatic personnel. Donnelly also met with Hoosier servicemembers stationed overseas. Donnelly went on the fact-finding trip to discuss efforts to combat ISIS in Iraq and the threat posed by North Korea to the U.S. and our allies. Donnelly said, "As I work to address the issues most important to Hoosiers, my first and foremost priority in the Senate is to protect our country and the people who live here. This trip provided an important opportunity to meet with key leaders in Iraq, South Korea, and China to discuss two of the most significant national security threats we face today – ISIS and the North Korean regime – and how we can strengthen strategic partnerships to keep our nation safe.” Donnelly added, “In the days and months ahead, in my role on the Senate Armed Services Committee, I will continue working to address the serious, ongoing national security threats facing our country and benefit from the insights gained on this fact-finding mission.”

DONNELLY VISITED IRAQ, KUWAIT: “In Iraq, I met with U.S. military commanders and Iraqi partners about our current strategy to counter ISIS,” Sen. Joe Donnelly said (Howey Politics Indiana). “The coming months will be a critical test of will and capability for Iraq’s security forces to turn the tide against ISIS. While I was encouraged to see progress on priorities like engaging with Sunni tribes and restoring strong leadership to Iraq’s military, the fall of Ramadi in May was a stark reminder of how far they have to go. Our American forces and coalition partners will play a critical role in conducting air strikes and training Iraqi forces, but it is absolutely essential that Iraqis – Shia, Sunni, and Kurd alike – unite against their common enemy in ISIS.” In Kuwait, Donnelly offered condolences to national officials and families impacted by the recent ISIS bombing at the Grand Mosque. In Iraq, Donnelly’s trip included the following: Visited the U.S. Combined Joint Operations Center in Erbil and met with U.S. military and diplomatic leadership in Baghdad, including U.S. Ambassador Stu Jones and Lieutenant General James Terry, Commander of the Combined Joint Task Force, Operation Inherent Resolve; Met with Government of Iraq officials, including Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi and Defense Minister Khaled al-Obeidi; Met with Kurdistan Regional Government President Masoud Barzani, Prime Minister Nechirvan Barzani, and other Kurdish officials; and, Met with Sunni tribal leaders from Anbar Province.

DONNELLY VISITED SOUTH KOREA, CHINA: “As ranking member of the Strategic Forces Subcommittee, I traveled to South Korea and China to talk about the threat posed by North Korea,” Sen. Joe Donnelly said (Howey Politics Indiana). “In South Korea, I spent time with some of the more than 30,000 U.S. troops stationed on the peninsula, including Hoosier servicemembers. We visited the border and discussed North Korea’s nuclear program and missile development and testing. These men and women stand shoulder to shoulder with their South Korean partners in a constant state of readiness to keep our country safe from one of the most dangerous regimes in the world. I discussed this same threat with China’s military leadership in Beijing. Despite clear differences of opinion on many pressing security challenges, we shared concerns about North Korea’s provocative nuclear tests and missile launches and explored the potential for expanded collaboration addressing Kim Jong-un's destabilizing actions in the future. In South Korea, Donnelly met with Hoosier servicemembers and U.S. military and diplomatic leaders, including U.S. Ambassador Mark Lippert and General Curtis Scaparrotti, Commander of U.S. Forces Korea, United Nations Command and Republic of Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command, visited the Korean Demilitarized Zone and U.S. military installations, including Yongsan Army Base and Osan Air Base, and met with the South Korean Defense Minister Han Min-koo. In China, Donnelly met with U.S. Ambassador to China Max Baucus, former U.S. Senator for Montana and met with Rear Admiral Li Ji, Deputy Director, Foreign Affairs Office, Ministry of National Defense, People's Republic of China and other Chinese military leaders.

WALORSKI MEETS WITH USAF OVER FUTURE OF GRISSOM AIR BASE: On Tuesday, U.S. Rep. Jackie Walorski met with a senior U.S. Air Force officer regarding the possible selection of Grissom Air Reserve to base the KC-46A air tanker (Howey Politics Indiana). The 434th Air Refueling Wing (ARW) at Grissom is currently one of four finalists under consideration by the U.S. Air Force to be the first Air Force Reserve unit to fly the new KC-46A tanker aircraft. The meeting with Maj. Gen. Maryanne Miller, deputy to the chief of the Air Force Reserve took place on the heels of Walorski's meeting last month with Deborah L. James, secretary of the U.S. Air Force, regarding Grissom. "I want to thank to Maj. Gen. Miller for meeting to hear about the many notable achievements that will make Grissom the best option for the Air Force and the Air Force Reserve," Walorski said. "In addition, I had the opportunity to extend the same invitation that I made last month to Secretary James to visit Grissom. I'm encouraged by the ongoing discussions and look forward to their visit to Indiana so they can see firsthand all that Grissom has to offer."

DARIN LAHOOD TO REPLACE SCHOCK: After a decisive Republican primary victory, Illinois state Sen. Darin LaHood, the son of a former area congressman and Obama administration Cabinet member, is likely headed to Washington as the replacement for disgraced former U.S. Rep. Aaron Schock (Washington Post). The younger LaHood won the GOP nomination Tuesday over two candidates, including anti-establishment conservative writer Michael Flynn. But the family connection was a delicate balance for LaHood on the campaign trail. His father preceded Schock as a congressman in the region, holding the seat for more than a dozen years before he took the job as U.S. Transportation Secretary.

GOVERNOR: PENCE ATTENDS BRITISH FIRM'S EXPANSION - Indiana Gov. Mike Pence was in town Tuesday to talk about the expansion of Tate & Lyle's Lafayette operations (WFLI-TV). Lafayette Mayor Tony Roswarski joined Pence at the ribbon-cutting ceremony. In March, British-owned Tate & Lyle announced it would invest $65 million to improve its facility on the city's south side. The plans will significantly expand production of its Krystar Crystalline Fructose sweetener. This is the second expansion for Tate & Lyle. The first was announced last July to put $90 million into both Lafayette plants. The company employs more than 500 Hoosiers. Greater Lafayette Commerce Economic Development Director Jody Hamilton says the expansion will increase that number. "It's going to add new jobs to the community," said Hamilton. "Tate & Lyle be expanding with their investment, but it will also allow other service industries to expand as well." Indiana ranks sixth in the nation for investment from United Kingdom-based companies. Hoosiers are employed by more than 80 UK firms like Tate & Lyle. The UK is Indiana's largest European investor and second largest globally.

GOVERNOR: PENCE'S SCHEDULE - 11:30 a.m. – Governor Pence to join executives from IPL and The AES Corporation to break ground on its new IPL Advancion Energy Storage Array. 3700 S. Harding Street, Indianapolis. 3:00 p.m.– Governor Pence to visit with Hoosiers at the Shelby County Fair. Shelby County Fair, 500 Frank Street, Shelbyville.

STATEHOUSE: ZOELLER WANTS STATES TO RETAIN IT SECURITY AUTHORITY - Indiana Attorney General Greg Zoeller joined a multistate letter to Congress emphasizing the importance of maintaining states' authority to enforce data breach and data security laws, and their ability to address future data security risks (Howey Politics Indiana). Citing recent efforts in Congress to pass a national law on data breach notification and data security, Zoeller, joined by 46 other state and territorial attorneys general, cautions against federal preemption of state data breach and security laws and argues that any federal law must not diminish the important role states already play in protecting consumers from data breaches and identity theft. "States are on the front lines responding to increasing reports of data breaches and identity theft; crimes which put many Indiana residents at risk for serious financial hardship," Zoeller said. "While the federal government certainly needs to pass stronger data security laws, it is vital that federal laws do not adversely affect state efforts to help victims of these crimes and hold accountable violators of state laws." In 2014, nearly 400 data breaches were reported to the Indiana Attorney General's Office. In 2015 thus far, 269 data breaches have been reported. Additionally, the AG's Office has received 728 complaints about identity theft this year; more than 1,300 complaints were received last year.

EDUCATION: IU EXPLORING APPAREL CONTRACT OPTIONS - IU appears set to benefit from the escalating college athletic apparel war among Adidas, Under Armour and Nike (Osterman, IndyStar). Indiana's apparel contract, signed with Adidas in 2008, is set to expire next year and the department is exploring its options. "This is something that we've been preparing for and working through for a long time," said Jeremy Gray, IU's associate athletic director for strategic communications and fan experience. "We are very, very deep in the process, and we took this as an opportunity to look at different options. "That's not to say we're not happy with Adidas. We've been happy with Adidas. But we took this opportunity to feel things out." The 2008 contract, an extension of a relationship with Adidas that began in 2004, will pay the Hoosiers $21 million over its eight-year lifespan, AGRICULTURE: RECORD RAINFALL DESTROYS CROPS STATEWIDE - Record rainfall continues to take a toll on Indiana's crops, with Purdue University experts estimating that farmers statewide have lost $486 million in corn and soybean production (Associated Press). An average of 9 inches, more than twice the normal level of 4.2 inches, was measured last month at 200 recording stations across the state. State climatologist Ken Scheeringa says as much as 18 inches of rain fell in parts of northern Indiana. The Indianapolis Star reports that some farmers in central Indiana's Johnson and Shelby counties recorded 7 to 10 inches of rain. Agricultural economics professor Chris Hurt says 21 percent of the state's corn is in poor or very poor shape. Crop insurance covers about 80 percent of losses in Indiana.

TRANSPORTATION: 'THOUSANDS' DRIVING WITH SUSPENDED LICENSES - Thousands of drivers are still getting behind the wheel on Indiana roadways, despite having a suspended license (Kenney, WRTV-TV). Of the more than 4 million licenses in Indiana, 12 percent of them are suspended, according to records from the Indiana

Bureau of Motor Vehicles. Last year, Indiana State Police issued 11,473 citations to drivers for "Driving While Suspended."

TRANSPORTATION: POLICE HAVE ISSUED 100 LEFT LANE WARNINGS - After a new law giving police the ability to pull over and fine slow left-lane drivers took effect last week, some Indiana drivers are already seeing the law in action (Network Indiana). Indiana State Police spokesman Todd Ringle says he estimates troopers have handed out more than 100 warnings in the six days the law has been in effect. He says those warnings are going to the most blatant violators, including one driver who moved into the left lane to be ready for a turnoff that was four miles away. Some legislators who opposed the law noted it would mean giving tickets to drivers for following the speed limit. But Ringle says state police are concentrating on warnings for now to educate people about the law. When troopers do begin issuing tickets, the fine can be as high as $500.

TRANSPORTATION: HIT-AND-RUN INCIDENTS UP ACROSS THE STATE - Statistics show there is an increase in the number of hit-and-run incidents happening across Indiana (WLFI-TV). More than half a dozen hit-and-run crashes were reported in June that killed or seriously injured people. In Lafayette, police say hit-and-runs average in the mid-50's per month. This year, there have been 357 hit-and-run cases. That number is up nearly 40 compared to this time last year. LPD says the high volume of hit-and-run cases is using up a lot their manpower. Sgt. Chad Robinson said it becomes information overload for the officers.

ENERGY: HEATING ASSISTANCE CUT BACK DUE TO Milder WINTER - The milder temperatures of last winter could leave some Indiana residents without the heating assistance they need in the coming season (Associated Press). The Palladium-Item reports that federal funding for heating assistance was cut for next winter because fewer people sought help last year. Extra money was made available during the harsh winter of 2013-14. That allowed clients to take advantage of summer discounts that allowed them to fill up on bulk fuels such as oil and propane. Brad Meadows of the Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority says those discounts aren't available this year in Indiana. Instead, eligible clients will receive a $100 credit on their electric bill to help with summer cooling costs.

MEDIA: JARED COULD SURVIVE PROBE - A man without qualities. A Forrest Gump who goes wherever the day takes him. A Walter Mitty who dreams only of eating Subway sandwiches with no mayonnaise (Washington Post). There is no shortage of literary and cinematic archetypes that seem a lot like Jared Fogle — until yesterday's FBI raid at his home, Subway's brand-making, drama-free, regular-guy spokesman. Even after the raid — believed to be related to the arrest of a former employee of Fogle's foundation on child pornography charges — Fogle, who was not arrested or charged with a crime, stepped aside with no fuss. Making no fuss, after all, is Fogle's trademark. "Subway and Jared Fogle have mutually agreed to suspend their relationship due to the current investigation," a Subway spokesman said in a statement late Tuesday, as The Washington Post's Sarah Larimer and Abby Ohlheiser reported. "Jared continues to cooperate with authorities and he expects no actions to be forthcoming. Both Jared and Subway agree that this was the appropriate step to take." Fogle's representatives stressed that Jared has quite an appetite for cooperation.

PENTAGON: U.S. TRAINING ONLY 60 SYRIAN - A day after President Obama said the U.S. strategy against Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS or ISIL) depends on local forces, Defense Secretary Ash Carter acknowledged to the Senate Tuesday that the administration is only supporting 60 moderate fighters in Syria (CBS News). "This number is much smaller than we'd hoped for at this point, partly because of the vetting standards," Carter admitted to the Senate Armed Services Committee, calling the vetting process "rigorous." "But we know this program is essential," he added. "We need a partner on the ground in Syria to ensure ISIL's lasting defeat. And as training progresses, we're learning more about the opposition groups and building important relationships which increases our ability to attract recruits and provides valuable intelligence for counter-ISIL operations."

MARRIAGE: CARTER SAYS JESUS OK WITH SSM - Former President Jimmy Carter shared his views, and what he speculates would be Jesus' views, on the intersection of same-sex marriage and the Christian faith in an interview with HuffPost Live on Tuesday. "I think Jesus would encourage any love affair if it was honest and sincere and was not damaging to anyone else, and I don't see that gay marriage damages anyone else," the former president said. "I wouldn't be in favor of the government being able to force a local church congregation to perform gay marriages if they didn't want to." Mr. Carter is a devout Baptist who was the first president to call himself a "born-again Christian." While the former president has said he's "fully committed to the separation of church and state," his views on political and social issues have often converged with his religious beliefs. In 2000, he severed his ties to the Southern Baptist

SOUTH CAROLINA: HOUSE POLARIZED OVER FLAG - Three weeks after the mass shooting at a predominantly black church in Charleston, the South Carolina House of Representatives is expected on Wednesday to step into the freshly revived debate about whether the Confederate battle flag should remain on the grounds of the State House (New York Times). With the flag perhaps facing its final days outside the Capitol, lawmakers have been circulating drafts of dozens of amendments that could jeopardize a bill that calls for the state to remove the flag and send it to the nearby Confederate Relic Room and Military Museum. "The truth is that any amendment either leaves the flag up or keeps us in legislative session all summer long," said Representative Norman D. Brannon, Republican of Spartanburg County, who has called for the flag's removal. Some of the draft amendments call for other Confederate symbols to fly in lieu of the battle flag. Another is expected to demand that the American flag, which flies atop the State House dome, be placed upside down.

OKLAHOMA: GOVERNOR DEFIANT ON 10 COMMANDMENT MONUMENT - Oklahoma Gov. Mary Fallin said Tuesday the Ten Commandments monument at the Capitol will stay there despite the state's Supreme Court ruling it violated the Constitution and must be removed (Fox News). The Tulsa World reports Fallin and Oklahoma Attorney General Scott Pruitt asked the Oklahoma Supreme Court to reconsider the 7-2 decision that was handed down last week after a challenge from the ACLU of Oklahoma on behalf of three plaintiffs. "Oklahoma is a state where we respect the rule of law, and we will not ignore the state courts or their decisions," Fallin said. "However, we are also a state with three co-equal branches of government."

MARRIAGE: OREGON BAKERY FINED $135K FOR REFUSING TO BAKE CAKE - The owners of an Oregon bakery who refused to make a cake for a same-sex wedding must pay $135,000 in damages, according to a final order issued by the Bureau of Labor and Industries on Thursday (CNN). The situation began in 2013 and generated headlines around the country. According to KPTV, the owners of Sweet Cakes by Melissa, who closed their shop months after the controversy began, refused to sell a wedding cake to a lesbian couple, citing a conflict with their religious beliefs. "I asked for the name of the bride and groom. She informed me that it was two brides. And I literally apologized to her. I said I'm sorry, I didn't mean to waste your time," said Aaron Klein to, who owned the bakery with his wife, Melissa. The business owners did not hide their religious beliefs. A Bible sat on top of a bakery display case and the business website says, "We here at Sweet Cakes strongly believe that when a man and woman come together to be joined as one, it is truly one of the most special days of their lives."... On Thursday, July 2, a BOLI order awarded $60,000 in damages to Laurel Bowman-Cryer and $75,000 in damages to Rachel Bowman-Cryer for "emotional suffering stemming directly from unlawful discrimination."... The Oregon Equality Act of 2007 includes an exemption for religious organizations and schools, but does not allow private business owners to deny service and unlawfully discriminate against potential customers, according to BOLI.

CITIES: REVISED DOWNTOWN EVANSVILLE HOTEL PROJECT RELEASED - The revised Downtown convention hotel is still pegged for construction in August or September, according to city officials (Martin, Evansville Courier & Press). Construction blueprints on the five-story, 240-room hotel and parking garage are complete, and lead contractor Hunt Construction of Indianapolis is soliciting bids from subcontractors. Those drawings remain subject to state-level approval, a process city officials said will take about 30 days. Developer HCW has reapplied to Hilton for a DoubleTree franchise on the hotel property and expects approval in August, said Nick Cirignano, a city attorney. A DoubleTree flag had been granted on the prior 10-story design, but that project last year was deemed too expensive to go forward. The new design has a ground-level restaurant and bar, conference space and an outdoor swimming pool. The prior design, which had more than 250 rooms, had a rooftop bar and indoor pool. City officials say the new design is on a $60.85 million budget.

CITIES: BEECH GROVE MAYOR WANTS TO POST PROSTITUTION SIGNS -

Beech Grove Mayor Dennis Buckley said the city's latest efforts to reduce crime are working, but he said there's still more to be done (McNicholas, WISH-TV). He outlined plans last month to fight crime at the local Wal-Mart and Motel 6. Now, Buckley said police are spending less time at those two properties. But just in case things take a turn for the worse at the Motel 6, he recently had the Public Works Department create a sign reading "WARNING: Prostitution and Drug Area." Buckley said Tuesday he was on the verge of putting it on the easement near the property. "They can get mad at me all they want, but I control the easement," Buckley said.

CITIES: INDY MOTOR SPEEDWAY CONSIDERING MORE CONCERTS - It's hard to top the Rolling Stones, but the Indianapolis Motor Speedway would sure love to try (Milz, WTHR-TV). "It's one of those things we've thought about as we grow the business, what fits and it becomes music, so we'd like to expand in 2016," IMS President Doug Boles said. The Stones July 4th concert was the Speedway's first ever stand-alone concert at the track. It drew 50,000 people and, by most accounts, was a big hit (though Boles said they do need to address the parking, traffic and seating issues raised). Boles said they have no intention of becoming a music venue by hosting regular concerts, but they are interested in the occasional blockbusters. "If you start thinking about things like U2, AC/DC, Garth Brooks, Taylor Swift, the Rolling Stones and you put that list together, it's the blockbuster bands that make sense for us to have at IMS," he said.

CITIES: AFTER TWO-YEAR HIATUS, GARY AIR SHOW IS BACK - After a two-year hiatus, the popular Gary Air Show returns to its roots on Saturday with premier aviation acts such as the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds and U.S. Army Golden Knights parachute team (Benman, NWI Times). Not seen over Gary since 2012, the air show will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, with Marquette Park opening at 9 a.m. both days. The first Gary Air Show took place more than a decade ago. Called the South Shore Air Show in 2012, it fell victim to the federal budget sequester in 2013 and was rained out when the venue was switched last year to Fair Oaks Farms in Jasper County...The air show also will give people the chance to view the complete makeover of Marquette Park that was completed in late 2012..

CITIES: SOUTH BEND CONSIDERS LESS TRASH SERVICE OR HIGHER FEES - Less frequent pickup of trash? Fewer solid waste employees? Those are just two possible options if the Common Council rejects a proposal to hike trash fees by 18 percent, or about $2 per month, over the next five months (Blasko, South Bend Tribune). The council will consider the proposal later this month. The city is requesting the increase — 9 percent this year and 8 percent next year — in order to address rising solid waste costs. In particular, the city is in the process of updating its fleet of trash trucks at a cost of about $350,000 per vehicle.

COUNTIES: ADVOCATE SAYS ELKHART NEEDS YOUTH HOMELESS SHELTER -

A Nappanee advocate for the homeless says Elkhart County is in urgent need of a youth shelter to combat what he says is a growing problem (Berg, Elkhart Truth). John Shafer, 58, CEO and founder of Chicago and Michiana Five for the Homeless Inc., started his nonprofit in 2012 after he took blankets to the street homeless in Chicago at the start of winter. While Shafer has never been homeless himself, he spends a lot of his time advocating on behalf of them, and over the past three years he's become more aware of homeless teens in Elkhart. As of Tuesday, July 7, he said he personally knows of six living in the area. "Elkhart does not have a safe house or a youth shelter and we began to immediately push for that," he said. Shafer believes there could be as many as 200 homeless minors in the county.

COUNTIES: ST. JOE TO SURVEY, MAYBE REDRAW BORDER WITH MICHIGAN -

There's a potential breakthrough in efforts to re-draw the border between Indiana and Michigan (WNDU-TV). The state line hasn't been staked out since 1827. However, concerns over the cost of a new survey have prevented progress. Officials named to a special border commission, who feared they might not have enough money to get the job done, finally have some firm figures to look at. St. Joseph County recently sought bids on a new survey of its portion of the border. Tuesday, three firms responded. John McNamara, a St. Joseph County surveyor, said, "We think they're about half of what we thought they would come in at and about a fourth of what Michigan thought they would come in. So what we're able to demonstrate is what it's going to cost potentially throughout the whole state. Instead of asking for a $1 million, we're down to about half of that." McNamara will share the figures with fellow members of the border commission at a meeting next week.

COUNTIES: ST. JOE COUNCIL REJECTS TAX HIKE TO FUND BRIDGE

REPAIRS - Today marked the beginning, and the abrupt end of a proposal to fund bridge repairs in St. Joseph County (Peterson, WNDU-TV). The St. Joseph County Commissioners this morning unanimously rejected the idea by a vote of 3-0. As tax hike proposals go—this was a tame one. "For the average taxpayer, if you'd have increased major bridge for instance, which they chose not to, if you were a $100,000 house (assessed value), that would increase your property taxes $5.08 a year, five bucks," said the sponsor of the measure, St. Joseph County Auditor Michael Hamann. Hamann contends that the small change would have made a big difference—raising an estimated $2 million a year to help rescue a major bridge account that now has a balance of just $650,000.

COUNTIES: CLARK SCHOOLS REVISE NOVEMBER REFERENDUM - Greater Clark County Schools' referendum will go to ballot in November, but voters will see changes to the plan they may welcome or worry about (Clapp, New Albany News & Tribune). Five elementary schools were originally planned for closure — including the hotly contested Maple and Spring Hill elementary schools in downtown Jeffersonville — but all except Thomas Jefferson Elementary in Jeffersonville were spared. Corden Porter was also taken off the plan for closure. Andrew Melin, superintendent, said after 36 community and staff meetings across the district, taking input from the community factored into the final plan presented to the board Tuesday...The new plan will cost about $10 million less, putting the price tag at $109.2 million.

REP. YOUNG TO POST $1M FOR QUARTER: Just days before he makes a presumptive Republican U.S. Senate bid official, U.S. Rep. Todd Young scorched the fundraising circuit, preparing to post $1,024,908 for the second quarter (Howey, Howey Politics Indiana). Entering the quarter with $1.1 million cash on hand, Young will likely start his Senate campaign with close to $2 million cash on hand. For historical perspective, Young's dialing for dollars acumen rates with two other prodigious Hoosier U.S. Senate fundraisers, Republican Sen. Dick Lugar and Democrat Sen. Evan Bayh. In other off-year cycles, Lugar ranked second with $973,853 in the 2011 April quarterly and fourth with $911,584 in the 2011 July quarterly. Bayh posted $946,298 in the 2003 July quarterly, and $863,704 in the 2003 April quarterly. Given the Senate race speculation, it's worth noting that for Senate races in Indiana, the most a non-incumbent reported raising in an off-year quarter was Joe Donnelly, who raised just $453,122 on his 2011 July Quarterly report. Donnelly represented the 2nd CD at the time, but won the U.S. Senate race in 2012, defeating Republican Indiana Treasurer Richard Mourdock in a U.S. Senate race that drew a combined $50 million between the two nominees, Lugar who lost to Mourdock in the primary, and more than $30 million from super PACs. Of the $1,024,908 raised by Young, $722,558 (70.50%) came from individuals. Of that $722,558, $554,904 (76.80%) came from individual Hoosiers. Of that $554,904, $303,769 (54.74%) came from Hoosiers outside of Young's 9th Congressional district.

HARRISON QUALIFIES FOR INDY MAYORAL BALLOT: Rev. Charles Harrison is now prepared to throw an interesting wrench into the Indianapolis mayoral race (Howey Politics Indiana). Allies of the United Methodist pastor filed more than 6,600 signatures to gain ballot access as an independent last week. Sources with the Marion County Voter Registration have confirmed 3,200 signatures, with another 150 pages yet to be counted, meaning Harrison qualifies for ballot access. "Once again, I am humbled and incredibly blessed that so many folks want me to run for mayor of Indianapolis," Harrison said this morning. It is my understanding that the Voter Registration folks have verified over 3,200 signatures. I'm also told that there are still around 150 pages left to be verified. As you can imagine, there are a lot of moving parts to making a decision to run for mayor." If Harrison makes a final decision to run, he would join a race with Democratic nominee Joe Hogsett, and Republican Chuck Brewer. In a two-man race, Hogsett would be a prohibitive favorite. He posted a war chest of $1.4 million in January and had $2.1 million in April. Hogsett began running his third TV ad over the Fourth of July weekend. Brewer posted just $657,000 in April, thanks for $400,000 he received from out-going Mayor Greg Ballard's campaign. But a Harrison campaign has the potential of splitting the black vote that normally would trend to the Democrat. A third party candidacy splitting the Democratic constituency may be the only way for mostly unknown Brewer to become competitive. Harrison said of a potential campaign, "Certainly the outpouring of support with these signatures is something that my family and myself cannot take lightly. I ask that you give me and my family a few days to consider everything. I assure you that very soon we will be making a decision on whether to run for mayor."

DAILY WIRE RESENT DUE TO TECHNICAL GLITCH: We are resending today's HPI Daily Wire due to technical glitches. We apologize for the inconvenience.

SANDERS SURGE WORRIES CLINTON CAMPAIGN: The ample crowds and unexpectedly strong showing garnered by Senator Bernie Sanders are setting off worry among advisers and allies of Hillary Rodham Clinton, who believe the Vermont senator could overtake her in Iowa polls by the fall and even defeat her in the nation's first nominating contest there (New York Times). The enthusiasm that Mr. Sanders has generated — including a rally attended by 2,500 people in Council Bluffs, Iowa, on Friday — has called into question Mrs. Clinton's early strategy of focusing on a listening tour of small groups and wooing big donors in private settings. In May, Mrs. Clinton led with 60 percent support to Mr. Sanders's 15 percent in a Quinnipiac poll. Last week the same poll showed Mrs. Clinton at 52 percent to Mr. Sanders's 33 percent. "We are worried about him, sure. He will be a serious force for the campaign, and I don't think that will diminish," Jennifer Palmieri, the Clinton campaign's communications director, said Monday in an interview on MSNBC's "Morning Joe."

INDIANA TEACHER POOL DRYING UP; 'POLITICIANS' BLAMED: Johnny Budd is struggling to find a math teacher for North Decatur High School. The superintendent of Decatur County Community Schools has received no applications for the job. Until a few days ago, he also had an open math teaching position at South Decatur High School. He recently filled the position with a certified teacher — though that teacher is not a math teacher and will have to get certified in teaching math before school begins in August (Ladwig, Greensburg Daily News). School leaders in south-central Indiana are reporting that the number of applicants they get for teaching positions has declined in recent years. They blame primarily state funding constraints, which depress teacher wages, and a blame-the-teachers mentality of politicians and the media, which is pushing teachers out of the profession and prompting fewer high school grads to consider teaching an attractive career. Budd said that the number of applicants has declined especially for math, sciences and foreign languages. "It has become a real struggle," Budd said. "The pool of applicants is definitely dried up." Tom Hunter, superintendent of Greensburg Community Schools, said he used to get 40 applications for open teaching positions. Today, he said, he is lucky if he gets 10. And for some open positions this year, the corporation received no applications. Matt Vance, superintendent at Rush County schools, also said he is seeing fewer applicants, especially in math, science, special education and English. "I think fewer people are going into the profession," Vance said. "As a group, teachers have been targeted by politicians and the media as doing a poor job," Budd said..

TEACHING LICENSES DOWN 88%: Annual state data reveal that the number of teaching licenses the state issues has fallen a whopping 88 percent in the last six years (Greensburg Daily News). According to the Indiana Department of Education, the state issued in the 2007/08 school year about 7,500 teaching licenses. In 2013/14, the most recent year for which data were available, the state issued just 934 licenses. And the state saw the greatest decline among teachers with at least 10 years of experience. The number of those licenses in the last six years fell from 333 to just four, down 99 percent. Other types of licenses, including for substitute teachers, transition to teaching and emergency permits, all have declined, too. The number of substitute licenses fell 17 percent between 2009/10 and 2013/14. The number of transition to teaching licenses plunged by nearly 50 percent during that span. And the number of emergency permits has dropped 14 percent.

GM REBUFFS FIAT/CHRYSLER MERGER: John Elkann, chairman of Fiat Chrysler Automobiles NV and scion of Italy's Agnelli family, isn't giving up on forging a partnership with General Motors Co. , despite being rebuffed by his Detroit rival twice in the past four years (Wall Street Journal). Mr. Elkann and Fiat Chrysler Chief Executive Sergio Marchionne had approached GM in 2012 and again earlier this year, arguing that steep new technology investments will push the highly fragmented car industry to consolidate. "GM hasn't been put to rest," the 39-year-old Mr. Elkann said in an interview in a Milan conference room where he presented himself as a determined and patient believer that Fiat Chrysler, with €96.1 billion ($106.81 billion) in annual revenue last year, eventually will find a partner. "GM is not the only option, but no doubt from a feasibility and quantum point of view it is by far the best." On Monday, a GM spokesman reiterated the company's lack of interest in a merger. Its chief executive recently said the largest U.S. auto maker has ample scale and would focus on achieving returns on invested capital of more than 20%.

ZODY WANTS DETAILS ON CANCELED PORTER-NOVELLI CONTRACT: Indiana Democrats have sent the Republican Pence administration a formal request to release documents showing what the state got for its money when it hired a New York public relations firm to deal with the damage inflicted by a new religious objections law (Associated Press). Indiana Democratic Party Chairman John Zody said Monday that he wants Gov. Mike Pence's office to release contracts, messages and emails related to the agreement with Porter Novelli. The Indiana Economic Development Corp. announced Thursday that it was canceling its contract with the firm, which it hired in May to assess the damage to the state's image following the religious objections law flap that sparked calls to boycott Indiana. In announcing the decision to hire Porter Novelli, IEDC officials said the state would spend up to $2 million with the firm, plus more for advertising as needed. But the agency cited strong employment numbers, national recognition for the state's business-friendly climate and cost-management efforts in announcing it was canceling the contract. It said Porter Novelli would be paid $365,000, but the quasi-public agency has denied requests to release details of the work the firm did, citing an exemption in Indiana's open records law for "deliberative" materials. Steve Key, executive director of the Hoosier State Press Association, told The Indianapolis Star the exception doesn't allow the state to issue an across-the-board denial of all records. "I have trouble imagining that all the documents and every part of those documents was opinion or speculation," he said. "There should be a document showing they did some work." The governor's office didn't immediately respond to a request seeking comment. IEDC spokeswoman Abby Gras has said the agreement with Porter Novelli didn't involve policy or legislation, but she stopped short of saying whether or not a human rights statute was discussed or recommended by the PR firm.

HPI DAILY ANALYSIS: Hoosier taxpayers paid $365,000 to the New York PR firm Porter Novelli to repair the state's post RFRA damage. We ought to be able to see what we paid for. Remember, Public Servants (this includes you, IEDC), you work for us, the taxpayers. - Brian A. Howey

2015: FREEMAN-WILSON ENDORSES RIECKEN - State Representative Gail Riecken, candidate for Mayor of Evansville, announced today that Mayor Karen Freeman-Wilson of Gary, IN and Mayor Nan Whaley of Dayton, OH will be coming to Evansville to host a forum on leadership in government and business and to headline a fundraiser for her campaign (Howey Politics Indiana). Both events will be held at the Memorial Baptist Church in Evansville on July 14, 2015. "Mayor Freeman-Wilson is one of the most effective mayors in our great state," said Riecken. "She has used her background in government to unify her city behind a broad group of fresh ideas and creative approaches to growing the economy and improving public safety."

2015: LAWRENCE COUNCILMAN LEAVES DEMS FOR REPUBLICANS - Lawrence Councilman Carl Barnett has decided he's had enough. He's switching teams (Ferreira, IndyStar). Citing his overall frustration with Mayor Dean Jessup, Barnett called a news conference at an abandoned firehouse Monday to announce his shift from the Democratic Party to the Republican Party. "This has been a long time coming," said Barnett. "It all started with the EMT," said Barnett, referring to when the mayor laid off 24 EMTs and took 18 firefighters off their regular duties in order to run the ambulances. That's why the firehouse Barnett chose to give his press conference was shut down, according to Barnett and other council members. A call to Jessup requesting comment was not returned. Four other council members also attended the news conference and said they, too, are disgruntled. The cut in EMTs and firemen was a particular concern. "This is a high-density area," said Jeff Coats, council-at-large for Lawrence. "We are desperately trying to revitalize Old Fort Harrison, our downtown, and this affects businesses we are trying to lure in because there are no fire stations close by." He said that the open fire stations in Lawrence are closer to the edges of the city, which aren't as populated as the center. Another issue is transparency of the mayor's administration, said Tom Shevlot, president of Lawrence's council.

2016: GREGG ENDORSED BY CARPENTERS - The Indiana/Kentucky/Ohio Regional Council of Carpenters officially endorsed John Gregg for Indiana Governor, adding to a growing list of individuals and organizations supporting his candidacy (Howey Politics Indiana). "In John Gregg we will finally have a Governor who will set the right priorities for Indiana – creating and sustaining jobs that pay a decent wage, strengthening our educational system, improving infrastructure, protecting workers on the jobsite and building an economy that truly works for all Hoosiers," said Mark McGriff, the Executive Secretary Treasurer of the of the Indiana/Kentucky/Ohio Regional Council of Carpenters. "Our workers and our families don't need more of the divisive political ideology that Mike Pence continues to peddle. They need a leader who understands the challenges they face every day and one who will work with them, not against them, to ensure their economic well-being. That leader is John Gregg and we will do everything we can to ensure his election in 2016." Indiana/Kentucky/Ohio Regional Council of Carpenters represents 12,000 professional tradespeople in Indiana and 32,000 across Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and parts of West Virginia and Tennessee.

WALKER FOR ANNOUNCED JULY 13: Scott Walker filed paperwork with the Federal Election Commission Thursday to formally become a candidate for the GOP nomination in 2016, aides to the Wisconsin governor confirm to NBC News. Walker had already indicated that he is planning a formal announcement on Monday, July 13. That event is slated to take place in Waukesha, Wis.

SANDERS SEEKS 'MIDDLE' ON GUNS: Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders is running to Hillary Clinton's left on nearly every other issue -- but says he can "bring us to the middle" on guns (Bradner, CNN). In an interview with CNN's Jake Tapper on "State of the Union" on Sunday, the Democratic presidential candidate said there is a "cultural divide that exists in this country." Sanders has faced criticism from the left for voting in 2005 to shield gun manufacturers from lawsuits by gun violence victims -- which frustrated the families of the victims of the 2012 Aurora, Colorado theater shooter. "If somebody has a gun and it falls into the hands of a murderer and the murderer kills somebody with a gun, do you hold the gun manufacturer responsible? Not any more than you would hold a hammer company responsible if somebody beats somebody over the head with a hammer. That is not what a lawsuit should be about," Sanders said Sunday.

CHRISTIE BLASTS PAUL: New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie once again has his sights trained on Kentucky Sen. Rand Paul (CNN). Christie reprised his favorite line of attack against Paul in national TV interviews and on the trail Sunday and Monday morning, slamming the libertarian-leaning senator for his opposition to the NSA's domestic surveillance programs. "We're going to look back on this and he should be in hearings in front of Congress if the country is attacked," Christie said of his fellow Republican presidential contender in an interview on MSNBC's "Morning Joe." On Sunday, Christie charged that Paul's actions had made the country "weaker and more vulnerable."

FIORINA RAISES $1.4M: Carly Fiorina's presidential campaign said on Monday that she raised more than $1.4 million since she announced her bid for the White House two months ago (New York Times). The sum is slim compared with some of her better-known rivals and shows the challenges Ms. Fiorina, the former chief executive of Hewlett-Packard, faces as she tries to emerge from a crowded field of Republican contenders.

CRUZ CASTIGATES SUPREME COURT: Sen. Ted Cruz spent his years at Harvard Law School working to secure a Supreme Court clerkship and then made his name as a lawyer by arguing in front of the body nine times (Washington Post). But now, as a presidential candidate seeking support from the right wing of his party, Cruz (R-Tex.) has made excoriating the high court a central part of his campaign. The attacks were prompted by the landmark opinions from the high court in late June that legalized same-sex marriage nationwide and upheld key provisions of the Affordable Care Act. Calling it "some of the darkest 24 hours in our nation's history," Cruz has repeatedly characterized the rulings as political decisions that imperil the Constitution and has accused justices of violating their oaths and federal law. He has called for a constitutional amendment requiring members of the Supreme Court to undergo judicial retention elections and has suggested that only the people directly involved in the gay-marriage case are bound by the justices' ruling.

COATS SAYS A BAD IRAN DEAL IS WORSE THAN NO DEAL: Senator Dan Coats appeared on Sunday Morning Futures with Maria Bartiromo on Fox News and discussed the latest on U.S. negotiations with Iran and the normalization of diplomatic relations with Cuba (Howey Politics Indiana). "I'm deeply concerned that this administration is simply trying to get a deal at any price," said Coats. "A bad deal [with Iran] is worse than no deal."

BLUMENTHAL LEAK LEADS TO CONFLICT AMONG BENGHAZI

COMMITTEE: The letter from Rep. Elijah Cummings (D-Md.) earlier today (Monday) complaining about a leak to Politico from the House Select Committee on Benghazi has antagonized the committee's chair, Rep. Trey Gowdy (R-S.C.) (Washington Post). Firing back in a letter of his own, Gowdy takes issue that someone in the committee's orbit had "doctored" an e-mail and leaked it to Politico in an effort to embarrass former Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton, who's now running for president. "Regarding your latest, desperate accusation someone "doctored" an email, I would note it is the latest in a series of breathless accusations you have made without effort to provide proof of fact beyond your mere assertion of the claim," writes Gowdy in his salvo to Cummings. The context for this mildly nasty back-and-forth springs from this June 17 story by Politico reporters Ken Vogel and Rachel Bade, which uses unnamed sources to discuss the grilling that the Benghazi committee visited upon longtime Clintonista Sidney Blumenthal.

NEW LAW TRIES TO CLAMP DOWN ON POP-UP PHARMACIES: Indiana is trying to close off a potential avenue for counterfeit prescriptions (Berman, WIBC). Florida has had problems with so-called "pop-up pharmacies" -- storefronts which don't actually stock any drugs, but offer to get your prescription filled at a discount. Because there are no meds on site, they don't need a pharmacy permit -- but there's also no way to ensure the drugs they dispense are the real thing. Senate Health Chair Patricia Miller (R-Indianapolis) says a new Indiana law closes the permit loophole, and lets doctors write prescriptions for investigators to test whether the drugs that come back are legit. Miller co-authored the law with Greenfield Senator Michael Crider (R) and Indianapolis Senator Jean Breaux (D).

LAWMAKERS HEARING ABOUT FIREWORKS: Fireworks in Indiana are permitted from June 29 until July 9. Many people feel that the 11-day allowance is too long. Lawmakers are responding to the issue (Sullivan, WLFI-TV). Local people with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder are negatively affected by fireworks. The unexpected loud boom of the explosives trigger their PTSD and cause intense anxiety. An Indiana based nonprofit known as Military with PTSD is distributing signs that read, 'Combat Veteran Lives Here. Please Be courteous with Fireworks'. State Representative Shiela Klinker says this is something lawmakers might want to look into. "This does scare those folks and traumatize many of those folks so I think we need to think about others and look at this bill again and decide if it's really the right length of time and the right hours," said Klinker...State Senator Ron Alting says the fireworks business was something the general assembly considered when deciding the time frame. He says not only would a shorter span hurt the firework stores..it would affect firework consumers. "You shrink the days, the price goes up," said Alting.

GOVERNOR: PENCE NAMES ANDREW KOSSACK COMMISSIONER OF REVENUE

-Governor Mike Pence today named Andrew Kossack as commissioner of the Indiana Department of Revenue (DOR) (Howey Politics Indiana). Kossack currently serves as chief of staff for DOR, where he oversees the Department's business support divisions, which include finance, information technology, public relations, human resources, and project management. "Andrew Kossack's experience and extensive leadership in state government make him the ideal person to follow Commissioner Alley," said Governor Pence. "Though he has big shoes to fill, I know that Andrew will take the lead with distinction and continue the enhancements, streamlining, and innovations that taxpayers deserve from their Department of Revenue." Before joining DOR, Kossack served as general counsel and policy director for the Indiana Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and as education and workforce policy director in the Office of Governor Mike Pence. Kossack was Deputy Chief of Staff for the Department of Education during the final year of State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tony Bennett's term. Kossack started his state career as public access counselor under Governor Mitch Daniels, after working at Barnes & Thornburg LLP. Most recently, Kossack served as deputy policy director with the Foundation for Excellence in Education, Inc.

LT. GOVERNOR: ELLSPERMAN WELCOMES LT. GOV'S ASSOCIATION MEETING

-Lt. Governor Sue Ellspermann will welcome fellow Lt. Governors from throughout the United States to Indianapolis for the National Lt. Governors Association (NLGA) annual conference (Howey Politics Indiana). Governor Pence will extend an official welcome at the opening session on July 8 and the conference will conclude on July 10.

STATEHOUSE: ZOELLER ANNOUNCES SETTLEMENT WITH DOLLAR STORES -

Indiana Attorney General Greg Zoeller announced the terms of a settlement that he and 16 other states have reached with Dollar Tree, Inc., following their review of the company's proposed acquisition of Family Dollar Stores, Inc. (Howey Politics Indiana). The merger combines two large national chains of deep discount stores. Working with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), the state attorneys general are requiring Dollar Tree to sell more than 300 Family Dollar stores to a new competitor in order to complete the acquisition. All of the affected stores are to be sold and re-branded as DollarExpress stores, a new chain of deep discount stores being launched by Sycamore Partners. Zoeller said he was concerned that the merger would substantially lessen competition in certain Indiana cities and is requiring five stores in the following areas to be sold to Dollar Express: two in Gary, two in Indianapolis, and one in Fort Wayne.

TRANSPORTATION: INDOT EXPERIMENTING WITH I-65 SPEED LIMITS -

INDOT is patching and resurfacing a 10-mile stretch of I-65 between Edinburg and Franklin (Berman, WIBC). It's putting in new digital speed limit signs starting a few miles ahead of the work zone on either side, and in between. If traffic's moving smoothly, the limit will be the normal 70 miles an hour, but as congestion builds, it can be cut to 55 or 45 in hopes of reducing rear-end collisions. Spokesman Harry Maginity says if it works, INDOT may try it in other work zones, or for everyday congestion unrelated to roadwork.

AGRICULTURE: 'INDIANA GROWN' PROGRAM LAUNCHES - The Indiana Department of Agriculture this week will announce the launch of Indiana Grown, a program promoting products made and produced in the Hoosier State (Smith, Indiana Public Media). A kind-of "Made in Indiana" brand isn't new. But state Department of Agriculture Director Ted McKinney says the previous version was underfunded and understaffed and, thus, ineffective. McKinney says the new program, Indiana Grown, is much more robust, with funding from the Department of Agriculture. And he says Hoosiers can already see results...Indiana Grown project manager David King says the program can help farmers, producers and consumers – because, as he puts it, the state needs Indiana people buying Indiana products.

STATEHOUSE: ZOELLER JOINING SUIT AGAINST EPA WATER RULES -Indiana Attorney General Greg Zoeller announced that his office soon will join the multistate lawsuit filed June 30 against the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to challenge as unconstitutional the EPA's redefinition of the state's streams, creeks, ponds and wetlands as the "waters of the United States (Howey Politics Indiana)."

The EPA rule redefining small bodies of water would be costly to farmers and could harm Indiana's agricultural economy, Zoeller said. On June 29, the EPA finalized a proposed rule under the Clean Water Act that seeks to expand the scope of EPA's authority and redefine small non-navigable bodies of water, including ponds, drainage ditches and intermittent streams that appear only with heavy rain, as "waters of the United States" subject to the EPA's federal regulation. Such small intrastate bodies of water and wetlands always have been under state, not federal, jurisdiction. Under the new rule, agricultural operations that discharge any water or wastewater could be forced to obtain expensive federal permits or face civil penalties of up to $37,500 per day for the potential water runoff. On June 30, nine states filed a legal challenge in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Georgia, alleging the "Waters of the United States" or WOTUS Rule exceeds the Congress's Commerce Clause authority and violates the Tenth Amendment of the United States Constitution. Zoeller said his office representing the State of Indiana will join the amended complaint that will be filed soon. "Agriculture is vitally important to Indiana's economy and this EPA rule would be needlessly burdensome to farmers, homeowners and businesses and intrude upon the States' longstanding authority to regulate small waterways within its own borders. While we are mindful of environmental concerns, this type of EPA overreach and intrusion into state sovereignty has become all too frequent, and the states have no choice but to seek redress in the federal court," Zoeller said.

GOVERNOR: PENCE ZOELLER ON WATER RULES - Gov. Mike Pence offered the following statement Monday regarding Indiana Attorney General Greg Zoeller's decision to enter Indiana into a lawsuit challenging the Environmental Protection Agency's final "Waters of the United States" rule (Howey Politics Indiana): "I am pleased that Indiana will join more than two dozen other states that are challenging the final 'Waters of the United States' rule. Once again, the Environmental Protection Agency has stretched beyond its authority under federal law, and they must be held accountable. They cannot be allowed to continue to expand federal authority over more aspects of Hoosiers' lives."

AGRICULTURE: FLOODING COSTS HOOSIER FARMING $486M: Experts at the Purdue University Agriculture Extension estimate that reductions in corn and soybean production from last month's rains already top $486 million statewide this year (Tuohy, IndyStar). About 80 percent of the losses statewide are covered by crop insurance. Indiana set a record for rain in the month, with an average of 9 inches at 200 recording stations, more than twice the normal level of 4.2 inches. Chris Hurt, professor of agricultural economics at Purdue University in West Lafayette, said 48 percent of the state's corn is in good or excellent condition while 21 percent is in poor or very poor shape, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's weekly crop progress report. Last year, which was a very good year for corn, 75 percent was in excellent or good shape at this time. For soybeans, 46 percent is in excellent or good condition, compared to 71 percent last year.

WHITE HOUSE: OBAMA SEES LONG ISIS STRUGGLE - President Barack Obama offered an update on the military mission against ISIS on Monday, emphasizing the long-term nature of the effort and the importance of local forces and stable governments as keys to stopping the terror group's rise (Bradner, CNN). Obama pointed to the more than 5,000 air strikes against ISIS in Iraq, Syria and new regions like North Africa, and the efforts of a "galvanized" Iraqi government in the wake of the fall of Ramadi, as signs of stepped-up efforts against the terrorist group. "This will not be quick. This is a long-term campaign. (ISIS) is opportunistic and it is nimble," Obama said, delivering remarks from the Pentagon. Obama said the coalition is going after the "heart" of ISIS when it comes to both monetary and human resources. And he took the opportunity to prod Congress to confirm Adam Szubin as Treasury Department under secretary for terrorism and financial intelligence, to aid the effort to stop money flowing to ISIS. "The strong consensus is that in order for us to succeed long-term in this fight against (ISIS), we have to develop local security forces that can sustain progress. It is not enough for us to simply send in American troops to temporarily set back organizations like (ISIS), but then as soon as we leave see that void filled again by extremists," Obama said.

WHITE HOUSE: 'THERE WILL BE SETBACKS' - President Barack Obama on Monday acknowledged problems with the fight against the Islamic State and conceded there would likely be more but used a visit to the Pentagon to reaffirm his overall strategy for battling the terrorist group that has declared its own state (Politico). "There will be periods of progress, but there are also going to be some setbacks," Obama said, while flanked by the top brass. The comments were the clearest acknowledgement yet that what Obama himself has called an evolving strategy remains a work in progress and will require more U.S. commitment — and patience — to ensure that the government of Iraq and other local allies can defeat the group.

PENTAGON: ISIS IN 3 AFGHAN PROVINCES - The Islamic State in Iraq and Syria has made inroads in Afghanistan as U.S. troops have drawn back from remote areas of the country to larger bases near major cities (The Hill). U.S. and Afghan officials say ISIS is now in three provinces in Afghanistan, and over the weekend, Afghan warlord Gulbuddin Hekmatyar announced he would support ISIS. The U.S. is poised to reduce its troops levels from 9,800 to an embassy presence of about 1,000 by the end of next year.

MEDIA: COSBY DEPOSITION ACKNOWLEDGES QUAALUDE USE - Bill Cosby acknowledged in a 2005 court deposition that he intended to give drugs to young women with whom he wanted to have sex (Washington Post). Cosby's admission that he obtained Quaaludes to use on women was contained in a 10-year-old deposition given by the legendary comedian in a civil lawsuit filed by a Philadelphia woman who claimed he had molested her after surreptitiously drugging her. Some of the proceedings in the case were unsealed for the first time Monday.

SOUTH CAROLINA SENATE VOTES 37-3 TO REMOVE FLAG: With protesters outside and the desk of a slain member draped in black, the South Carolina Senate voted overwhelmingly on Monday to remove the Confederate battle flag from the grounds of the State House (New York Times). The 37-to-3 vote propelled the state toward a landmark moment that many hope could come within days: the lowering of the flag that has flown outside the seat of state power here for more than five decades, even as it became a symbol of the segregated South and white supremacy. The measure, sought by the state's Republican governor, Nikki R. Haley, was voted on just weeks after the massacre of nine people at a historic and predominantly black church in Charleston. After a final vote in the Senate, widely viewed as a formality, the legislation will go before the State House of Representatives, where the outcome is less certain. Debate on the measure is expected to begin this week. The Senate vote, conducted during a dramatic roll call about 4 p.m. Monday, was among the clearest signals of a resounding and abrupt shift in South Carolina. Less than a month ago, removing the flag from its spot near the State House appeared politically impossible. "I'd implore us to pass this bill today in the pursuit of peace and mutual upbuilding," said Senator George E. Campsen III, a Republican from Charleston who urged fellow senators to "not engage in some of the battles that we saw raging all over the country."

TEXAS: STATE SEEKS GOLD FROM FEDS - Deep in the bowels of an office building in lower Manhattan sits more than 500,000 gold bars, with a combined weight of nearly 7,000 tons. They are in the custody of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which is holding them for the U.S. government, foreign governments, state governments, other central banks, and official international organizations (CBS News). Some of Texas' gold reserves are there too, and now they want them back. Last week, Gov. Greg Abbot signed HB 483, a law creating what is likely the first-ever state-level gold bullion and precious metal depository. In his official statement after signing the bill, Abbot said the law is about "increasing the security and stability of our gold reserves and keeping taxpayer funds from leaving Texas to pay for fees to store gold in facilities outside our state." The bill states the gold will be beyond the purview or control of any "governmental or quasi-governmental authority" that is not directly administered by the state of Texas.

CITIES: INDY ON TRACK FOR 130 HOMICIDES THIS YEAR - 2015 is shaping up to be another violent year in Indianapolis (Criscuolo, WISH-TV). The Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department released homicides stats to 24-Hour News 8 for the first half of the year. Since 2010, the number of homicides in Indianapolis have been on the rise, but this year may be the first with a decrease in more than five years. Still, it's not a big dip and the statistics show dozens of people have already lost their life this year. If that trend continues, the city may reach about 130 homicides by the end of the year. That number is just shy of the 2014 data of 136 homicides, but still more than the 126 homicides in 2013. Prior to that, IMPD officers responded to fewer than 100 homicides in 2010, 2011, and 2012. The rise in crime in Indianapolis has landed the city on the list of Most Dangerous Cities. For 2015, Indianapolis ranked 39th.

COUNTIES: SCOTT SHERIFF WANTS TO TREAT JAILED PRISONERS - A drug-fueled outbreak of HIV convinced Scott County Sheriff Dan McClain of the need to take on addiction — even if it means the uncommon practice of medicating prisoners in his jail (Hayden, CNHI). McClain is working with state and local officials to bring a costly medication called Vivitrol into the county jail in hopes of keeping offenders — particularly those already infected with HIV — from relapsing once they are released. Vivitrol is an injectable form of the drug naltrexone. Addiction specialists say it blocks cravings for heroin and other opiates, such as those found in the prescription painkiller at the center of the Scott County outbreak. Vivitrol is already used in court-ordered programs, as an alternative to locking up heroin users, in 27 of Indiana's 92 counties. Scott County would be first to administer it to prisoners before an addict is released. "We have people who are serious about kicking their drug habit when they're in our jail, but they don't stay that way when they're back on the streets," McClain said. "This is the first step to helping them stay clean." Earlier this year, Rep. Wendy McNamara, R-Mount Vernon, pushed to give local judges more authority to use Vivitrol as part of court-ordered programs, but lawmakers balked at its cost.

COUNTIES: HOWARD SHERIFF CALLS FOR JAIL TAX INCREASE - A central Indiana sheriff is defending a requested tax increase, saying his jail is understaffed but still expected to provide medical and mental health services to its inmates (Associated Press). Howard County Sheriff Steve Rogers is asking for four new corrections officers through a proposed tax increase that would cost taxpayers 50 cents per $1,000 of earned income. The Kokomo Tribune reports the increase would generate up to $800,000 in jail revenue. A study commissioned by jail officials found the facility is understaffed by 13 corrections officers and a mental health therapist. The jail currently has 47 corrections officers spread across three shifts. Those employees worked nearly 16,000 hours of overtime in 2014. That's up from about 4,400 hours in 2013 and less than 2,100 hours in 2012.

CITIES: EAST CHICAGO MANUFACTURER TO HIRE 500 - A manufacturer will hire as many as 510 workers at an average salary of $55,000 a year when it relocates to East Chicago (Pete, NWI Times). An unnamed company from Chicago's western suburbs plans to relocate from Illinois to the East Chicago Enterprise Center at 4407 Railroad Ave. The manufacturer will invest nearly $50 million in the city, said Karen Lauerma, president and CEO of the Lake County Economic Alliance. Lauerma said the name of the company could not be revealed because of financial incentives that are still pending, but it should be identified soon. The manufacturer employs around 260 full-time workers in Illinois, and plans to hire an additional 350 workers for its larger East Chicago facility by 2022, Lauerma said.

CITIES: ANDERSON CLOSER TO LANDING FACTORY WITH 450 JOBS -

Anderson city officials this week will be asked to approve several resolutions that will bring NTN Driveshaft to the city, creating an estimated 450 jobs (de la Bastide, Anderson Herald Bulletin). NTN Driveshaft currently has its headquarters in Columbus, Ind., and is hoping to start production in Anderson in the fall of 2016. The Anderson site, containing 80 acres south of the Nestle' plant on Layton Road, was selected by NTN officials over a proposed site in Georgia. The Anderson City Council on Thursday will consider a resolution to declare the area an Economic Revitalization Area. The Anderson Redevelopment Commission (ARC) and Anderson Plan Commission will be asked to consider amending the Tax Increment Financing (TIF) district to include the property. According to documents filed with the Anderson Redevelopment Commission, the company will be investing approximately $129 million at the Anderson facility for the construction of a 325,000-square-foot building.

CITIES: ELKHART APPROVES TAX BREAK FOR FIRM BRINGING 35 JOBS - A

California-based manufacturing company is eyeing Elkhart for an expansion and is asking the city for a tax break to make it happen (Hernandez, Elkhart Truth). Trim-Lok Inc., a company that primarily works on the production of weather seals for recreational vehicles, is looking to move into 1642 Gateway Court, north of the Elkhart Municipal Airport. It's expecting to invest $1,890,000 in personal property and real property improvements. The project is expected to create 35 new jobs with an average wage of $21.71 an hour over the course of three years. If everything goes according to plan, the company could start operating in October, General Manager Darryl Torrey said.

CITIES: RICHMOND TALKS WITH AFSCME AWAIT FINANCIAL FIGURES -

City and union officials apparently will wait until September to try to resolve 2015 contract talks with employees represented by the American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees union (Engle, Richmond Palladium-Item). That's when, according to city human resources director Sue Roberson, the city will have a better understanding of money available for a possible $500 stipend for employees this year. "We said we would not know if we could afford that until September," Roberson said. "We need to have a good, solid reserve in order to offer that." Roberson said the key will be the balance in the city's health care fund, which currently is more than $3 million....Roberson said officials hoped to give all city employees a $500 stipend this year, which would cost about $245,000.

CITIES: EVANSVILLE SCHOOLS MEETING PACKED BY TEAMSTERS AMID

TALKS - Members of the Teamsters Local 215 packed the EVSC school board meeting on Monday (Bartlett, WFIE-TV). They pleaded for both sides to go back to the bargaining table. The contract between the Teamsters and the EVSC expired last week. The regular school board meeting quickly turned into a plea from the Teamsters to come to terms on a new contract. Or at least extend the current agreement that affects nearly 700 employees. Before a large crowd, many of them union members, EVSC Superintendent David Smith apologized to the workers for being put in the middle of this.

CITIES: ELKHART APPROVES WAGE HIKE FOR UNIONIZED WORKERS - Bigger paychecks are on the way for unionized Elkhart municipal workers (Catanzarite, WNDU-TV). On Monday, the Elkhart Common Council passed a wage hike ordinance, 5-3. The 8.18-percent pay increase is retroactive, as it went into effect last week. 110 non-unionized city workers will not see higher wages. "This was an opportunity, giving the largest pay raise we've ever given in years that we know, and we didn't use the leverage to fix contracts, clean up the language to benefit the taxpayer," said David Henke (R-3rd District). Without approving the pay raise, the Common Council would have breached union contract. He estimated the hike passed on Monday will cost the City of Elkhart up to $1.6 million dollars annually.

CITIES: MUNCIE CONVERTING MANY ONE-WAY STREETS TO TWO-WAY -

Several downtown streets would be changed from one-way to two-way traffic under provisions of ordinances introduced Monday evening by Muncie City Council (Roysdon, Muncie Star Press). But it was the addition of four-way stops along those routes that prompted council member Linda Gregory to object. "Why make all these streets four-way (stops)?" Gregory said. "Why would anyone want to come downtown?" The measures for changing portions of the streets from one-way to two-way were introduced at Monday's council meeting, with final action still to come.

CITIES: SOUTH BEND INSTALLING SOLAR PANELS ON CENTURY CENTER -

The city of South Bend has been awarded a $29,167 grant to install solar panels on the roof of Century Center (Blasko, South Bend Tribune). The grant, courtesy of Solar Uniting Neighbors, or SUN, will be used to install 23 kilowatts of panels on the center...The $58,334 project, which will receive additional funding from the Office of Sustainability, is expected to pay for itself in less than nine years, and has an operational lifespan of at least 20 years. Doreau credits South Bend-based Innovateus Solar with helping the city secure the grant. Innovateus will assist in the design and installation of the project. "Using the latest technology cuts the city's energy costs, reduces air pollution, and demonstrates South Bend's innovative spirit," Mayor Pete Buttigieg said in a statement.

CITIES: OFFICIALS INVESTIGATING SOURCE OF CONSTANT FLOODING IN

MIAMI - Officials in the unincorporated town of Miami hope a ground test this week will reveal the cause of severe flooding that's left some residents with waterlogged basements for more than nine months (Gerber, Kokomo Tribune). Matt Brennan, president of the Miami Community Regional Sewer District, said the flooding in the town located about 10 miles north of Kokomo started in October immediately after residents began connecting to a new $2 million wastewater-treatment system. He said a few residents who live on Blake Street, where the flooding is worst, have installed up to three sump pumps to keep their basements dry, which has sometimes spiked their electric bills to $600.

CITIES: NEW ALBANY APPROVES $450K FOR NEW POLICE CARS - New Albany

City Councilman Scott Blair said he was "surprised" that a $450,000 appropriation for police cars was included on Monday's agenda (Suddeath, New Albany News & Tribune). He cast the lone vote against the purchases, which were approved 8-1 on initial readings, as Blair said the request should have first been vetted by the council's public safety committee, of which he is a member. Councilman Greg Phipps is also a member of the committee, and stated concern that the $450,000 appropriation was brought to the entire council first.

COUNTIES: MADISON NEEDS TO REPLACE 8 BRIDGES - Madison County officials are struggling to find the best solution for eight bridges that need to be replaced based on their condition (Associated Press). A span over Killbuck Creek that has been closed for a decade will be replaced this summer. But the solution might not be as simple for the other seven. Madison County engineer Chuck Leser tells The Herald Bulletin that the other seven bridges that need replacing are still open to traffic. Two in Elwood have another bridge within a block, and officials are considering whether every bridge needs to be replaced if another is nearby. Leser says the Killbuck Creek span that was first built in 1910 will be disassembled and rebuilt as a pedestrian bridge over the White River.

There was a clinical trial that showed Vivitrol patients were less likely to relapse into opiate use (significant at $p > 0.0024$). Clinical trials that are double blind are what you are looking for with these things, so the findings are strong in the drug's favor. I'm typing up a summary now.

Mark,

John & I are working on a memo to the Governor regarding the drug problem in the state. We could really use some help (urgently) with some research. We are aware that there was a study done in Massachusetts on the drug Vivitrol, which is for opiate addiction treatment. The drug was proven to be very successful. Are you able to research the study and provide us with a summary of what was found? Please let me know asap if you are available to do this today, we are under a time crunch.

Thanks,
Allison
