

National Transportation Leadership Institute Class Of 2013

In our ongoing commitment to leadership development, six employees enrolled in the American Association of State Highway Transportation Officials (AASHTO) National Transportation Leadership Institute (NTLI). The classes were held April 7-19 at the NCAA Conference Center in Indianapolis.

The program is designed to supplement essential engineering capabilities with extensive training in leadership/management techniques oriented toward highway and transportation department operations. Curriculum is geared to the graduate level and ranges from fundamentals to advanced and sophisticated concepts. The NTLI places special emphasis on contemporary concepts, processes and strategies.

Congratulations, NTLI Class of 2013!

Class of 2013 participants, from left: Greenfield District Highway Engineer James Colonis, Greenfield District Environmental Scoping Manager Jewell Stone, Technical Services Director Melody Coleman, LaPorte District Communications Director Jim Pinkerton, Hydraulics Engineer Crystal Weaver and Traffic Management Division Director Jim Sturdevant.