Is disability insurance an option for you?

You've been saving more money for retirement. You have a sufficient amount of life insurance that will protect your family if you should die prematurely, but have you considered disability insurance? If you become disabled, you may receive payments from Social Security or a company disability policy, but the income may not be enough to sustain your needs.

A permanent injury may keep you from working. If this happens, your earned income stops, but your expenses are ongoing. You may incur more expenses to help with the activities of your daily living. There are many factors to consider as you prepare for retirement. You may want to meet with a financial advisor to discuss your options for disability insurance coverage. Be prepared by finding out more about your TRF pension benefit. Register for a retirement benefit workshop in your area.
