The mission of the National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS) is to provide statistical information that will guide actions and policies to improve the health of the American people. As the Nation's principal health statistics agency, NCHS leads the way with accurate, relevant, and timely data.
The Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 created both NIOSH and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). OSHA is in the U.S. Department of Labor and is responsible for developing and enforcing workplace safety and health regulations. NIOSH is in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and is an agency established to help assure safe and healthful working conditions for working men and women by providing research, information, education, and training in the field of occupational safety and health. NIOSH provides national and world leadership to prevent work-related illness, injury, disability, and death by gathering information, conducting scientific research, and translating the knowledge gained into products and services.

CSPV has a threefold mission. First, the Information House serves to collect research literature and resources on the causes and prevention of violence and provides direct information services to the public by offering topical searches on customized databases. Second, CSPV offers technical assistance for the evaluation and development of violence prevention programs. Third, CSPV maintains a basic research component through data analysis and other projects on the causes of violence and the effectiveness of prevention and intervention programs.

The mission of the Indiana Hospital & Health Association is to provide leadership, representation, and services in the common best interests of its members as they promote the improvement of community health status.

The Emergency Medical Services for Children (EMSC) program was established by an Act of the United States Congress in 1984 to ensure state-of-the-art emergency care for ill or injured children and adolescents. The EMSC program covers the entire spectrum of emergency medical care, including primary prevention, acute care, and rehabilitation. Jointly administered by the United States Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) and the United States Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the program provides grants to States and accredited schools of medicine to improve existing emergency medical services systems and develop and evaluate improved procedures and protocols for treating children. The EMSC program is the only Federal program that focuses on improving the quality of children's emergency care.

1730 Rhode Island Avenue, NW
Suite 1014
Washington, DC
WEB: http://www.vpc.org/

The Violence Policy Center (VPC), a national non-profit organization based in Washington, DC works to stop this annual toll of death and injury through research, advocacy, education, and litigation. The VPC approaches gun violence as a public health issue, advocating that firearms be held to the same health and safety standards that virtually all other consumer products must meet. Guns and tobacco are the only two consumer products for which there is no federal oversight for health and safety.
