

INDIANA DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT
Office of Water Quality
Final 2006 List of Impaired Waters under Section 303(d) of the CWA

Introduction

Section 303(d) of the 1972 Federal Clean Water Act (CWA) requires each state to identify and list those waters that do not or are not expected to meet applicable water quality standards. For these impaired waters, states are required to establish total maximum daily loads (TMDLs).

The Indiana Department of Environmental Management (IDEM) published Indiana's draft 2006 303(d) list in the Indiana Register on October 1, 2005. The final 2006 303(d) list (Category 5) of impaired waterbodies as approved by the United States Environmental Protection Agency (U.S. EPA) on May 23, 2006, is shown at the end of this notice. Changes made to the draft list published in the Indiana Register were based on comments received from the public and U.S. EPA, and on further analysis of existing data.

Changes made to the draft 2006 303(d) list

Changes to the draft 2006 303(d) list are explained below, either summarized in the following tables or explained in narrative sections with the affected segments shown in tables.

IDEM proposed a new component to its assessment and listing methodology in 2006. Per the proposed methodology, the impaired biotic communities (IBC) for a number of segments were associated with the other, more specific causes of impairment as indicated by a multivariate statistical analyses (e.g., IBC/chlorides). However, after the draft list was published, it was determined that the results from these studies provide probable but not proven causes of the impairments to the biological communities in these waters. Given this, IDEM decided that additional consideration must be given to listing waterbodies on the basis of statistical results alone. Therefore, these waterbody impairments are now listed in Category 5A as Impaired Biotic Communities instead of IBC/Chlorides, IBC/Dissolved Oxygen, etc. This change did not result in the addition or removal of impairments to Indiana's final list. Rather the cause of impairment to already-listed segments was revised.

In addition to the changes shown in Table 3, IDEM had proposed to remove a number of waterbodies from Category 5B that were originally listed due to Group 2 Fish Consumption Advisories (FCA) for PCBs and/or mercury. In 2004, the Indiana State Department of Health (ISDH) made the decision to remove all the species listings previously identified as having only a Group 2 advisory from the FCA. This change was based on the rationale that these specific species size ranges from a site are adequately represented by the general advice (i.e., to assume that fish (except carp) caught from any waterbody is a Group 2 unless otherwise known) and therefore do not need to be specifically identified in the FCA as having a Group 2 advisory. Per IDEM's methodology, which states that only site-specific FCA are to be placed in Category 5B, these waters were proposed for delisting.

U.S. EPA "generally believes that fish and shellfish consumption advisories. . .based on segment specific information demonstrate impairment of CWA Section 101(s) 'fishable' uses" and continues to require that IDEM place such waters on its 303(d) list of impaired waters. Therefore, IDEM continues to make water quality assessments based on the ISDH FCA and must necessarily rely on U.S. EPA guidance in this regard.

U.S. EPA's guidance recommends that "states translate the applicable narrative criteria on a site-specific basis. . . to account for higher than expected exposures." Specifically, the ISDH removed the Group 2 advisories from the 2004 FCA for two reasons: 1) to simplify the way that risk information is communicated to the public, which is the primary purpose of a FCA, and 2) to make more readily apparent those waterbodies where the fish tissue data indicate high background levels of PCBs and/or mercury. IDEM believes that the waterbodies removed from the FCA and subsequently removed from Category 5B of Indiana's draft list do not indicate higher than expected exposures. Rather, they were removed from the FCA because it was found that the levels of contamination were, in fact, not any higher than one should expect from any waterbody in Indiana and that, as a result, no specific advisory was necessary. IDEM's methodology states that only site-specific FCAs are placed in Category 5B. Because these waterbodies no longer appear in the FCA as having higher than expected levels of contamination, IDEM proposed delisting them.

IDEM still believes these to be "good cause" delistings because they are consistent with IDEM's assessment methodology and U.S. EPA's recommendation that listings based on fish consumption advisories should identify higher than expected levels of contamination. However, U.S. EPA reasons that if these waterbodies were originally listed on the basis of site-specific data, then site-specific data will be required to remove them from the list. In order to allow sufficient time to adequately address these questions, IDEM decided to add these waterbodies back to Category 5B until this issue can be discussed more fully with U.S. EPA.

IDEM completed an unprecedented number of TMDLs since the 2004 303(d) list was published and continues to make progress in this regard. In preparing the finalized 303(d) list for submission to U.S. EPA, it became evident that a better means of tracking the resulting changes in the 303(d) list is now needed. Category 5C was created for impairments for which a TMDL is in progress or planned to be completed prior to the next listing cycle. This new subcategory will facilitate more effective tracking of segments as they are moved from Category 5 to Category 4A in the next listing cycle and will allow the public to more readily discern IDEM's priorities with regard to TMDL development. The impairments in Table 7 are keyed to the TMDLs in which they will be addressed, shown in Table 6.

Final 2006 303(d) List

For the development of the 2006 303(d) list, IDEM has followed, to the degree possible, the 305(b) and 303(d) reporting methods outlined in the U.S. EPA's Integrated Water Quality Monitoring and Assessment Report Guidance. This integrated report is designed to satisfy the CWA requirements for both Section 305(b) water-quality reports, and Section 303(d) lists. The 303(d) list was developed using the 305(b) Assessment Database. Interpretation of the data and listing decisions take into account IDEM's assessment methodologies and U.S. EPA guidance.

The following is the final 2006 303(d) list presented during a public hearing of the Water Pollution Control Board, September 13, 2006:
