Sec. 7.1. At the time of an initial evaluation or assessment, in order for an individual to meet the criteria for developmental disabilities eligibility and level of care, the individual must provide the following:

(1) Documented evidence of the presence of a mental impairment or physical impairment (other than a sole diagnosis of mental illness) as diagnosed by a physician and described as follows:

405 IAC 5-13-7.2 Federally identified major life areas considered in eligibility criteria for ICF/MR level of care for persons with developmental disabilities

Authority: IC 12-8-6-5; IC 12-15-1-10; IC 12-15-1-15; IC 12-15-21-2; IC 12-15-21-3

Affected: IC 12-13-7-3; IC 12-15

Sec. 7.2. (a) In addition to satisfying the requirements of section 7.1 of this rule, at the time of an initial assessment, in order for an individual to meet the criteria for developmental disabilities eligibility and level of care, the individual must require assistance or be dependent upon others within three (3) areas of the following federally identified six (6) major life areas:

- (1) Capacity for independent living.
- (2) Learning.
- (3) Mobility.
- (4) Receptive and expressive language.
- (5) Self-care
- (6) Self-direction.

(b) For purposes of determining the major life areas in subsection (a), the following definitions apply:

(1) "Capacity for independent living" means the establishment and maintaining of a full and varied life in one's own home and community. For an adult, a substantial functional limitation exists when he or she requires assistance in these activities more than half the time. For a child, a substantial limitation exists when he or she, at an age appropriate level, is unable to assist in household chores, maintain appropriate roles and relationships within the family, use money, or use community resources, and has a substantial limitation in this area. This child requires more assistance to perform these activities than a typical child of the same age. Due to this impairment, the individual must be dependent on or require the assistance of another person to perform multiple routine activities of daily living including, but not limited to, the following:

- (A) Housekeeping and personal needs (not self-care), such as the following:
 - (i) Food preparation.
 - (ii) Laundering and maintenance of clothing.
 - (iii) Care and maintenance of living environment.
 - (B) Meeting one's own health care needs.
 - (C) Maintaining adequate interpersonal communication for routine activities of daily living.
 - (D) Mobility between or among the usual living environment and the learning, vocational, recreational, or other environments in the community, due to:
 - (i) a restricted range of travel; or
 - (ii) the inability to travel unaccompanied in unfamiliar areas.
 - (E) The use of basic community services to meet daily living requirements.
- (2) "Learning" includes the general cognitive competence and ability to:
- (A) acquire new behaviors, perceptions, and information; and
 - (B) apply previous experiences to new situations.

Due to this impairment, the individual must demonstrate the inability to generalize learning or skill acquisition from one (1) environment to another or require intensive or individualized instruction strategies, or both.

(3) "Mobility" includes motor development and the ability to use fine and gross motor skills. A substantial functional limitation exists when the individual requires the assistance of another person or a mechanical device in order to perform age appropriate fine motor skills or to move from place to place within the various environments (home, work, and store) that the individual encounters. Due to this impairment, the individual must be:

- (A) able to engage in only random or undirected movement; or
 - (B) dependent on or require the assistance of another person to provide prompts, safety supervision, or transfer assistance or require a mechanical device or other assistance for mobility.
- (4) "Receptive and expressive language (communication)" includes both verbal and nonverbal behaviors that enable the individual to:
- (A) understand others; and
 - (B) express ideas and information to others.

The concept of language includes the cognitive skill necessary for reading, writing, listening, and speaking. A substantial limitation exists when an individual is unable to effectively communicate with another person without the aid of another person or a communication device or is unable to articulate thoughts or to make ideas and wants known, or both. Examples of communication devices are communication boards and computerized speakers.

(5) "Self-care" includes, without limitation, daily activities that enable an individual to meet basic needs for eating, hygiene, and grooming. When an individual is dependent on or requires assistance in three (3) or more of the following five (5) activities listed in the self-care criteria, a substantial limitation is present:

- (A) Eating.
- (B) Toileting.
- (C) Bathing.
- (D) Dressing.
- (E) Grooming (tooth brushing, hair brushing, and nail care).

(6) "Self-direction" includes the ability to make independent decisions regarding and manage and control one's social and individual activities, to handle personal finances, or to protect one's own self interest. An adult may require direct or indirect assistance, such as supervision by another person or counseling, to successfully utilize these skills. A child may require assistance, at an age appropriate level, to make decisions and exercise judgment, behave in a socially acceptable manner, or act in his or her own interest. Due to these impairments, the individual must be dependent on or require the assistance of another person to make or carry out decisions involving legal, financial, health/safety, self-advocacy, or interpersonal issues as demonstrated by the need for frequent or ongoing assistance to complete the following:

- (A) Initiate common activities.
- (B) Identify and make informed choice of goals and objectives.
- (C) Identify and understand intermediate steps to achieve goals and objectives.
- (D) Envision potential outcomes of choices and associate outcomes with one's own attitudes, behaviors, and actions.
- (E) Maintain behaviors within generally accepted or tolerated norms and prevent harm or injury to one's self.
- (F) Plan and schedule activities.
- (G) Adapt schedules and routines to completions.
- (H) Shift focus appropriately from one (1) activity to another.
- (I) Work independently towards goals and objectives.
- (J) Manage finances.
- (K) Engage in self-advocacy.
