Public Libraries

Ms. Gard indicated that she is now an advocate for public libraries, serves on the Hancock County Public Library Board, and is the Vice President of the Indiana Library Federation. She spoke on behalf of the Hancock County Public Library Board describing the history of the library, the library's long range plan, the budget-making process, the use of reserves, and the library's unique use of the economic development income tax. She described the coordination that occurs in operating a public library, including State Library oversight. She opposed control by an elected fiscal body over the budget of a public library with an appointed board without an appeal procedure. She said a fiscal body would have to commit considerable time to understand a public library's budget. She proposed binding review only if certain budget limits are exceeded. Ms. Gard supplied two handouts: (1) The Hancock County Public Library October 2012 Strategic Plan (Exhibit A); and (2) The Hancock County Public Library Final Capital Improvement Plan (Exhibit B).

Wendy Phillips, Director for Carmel Clay Public Libraries and representing the Indiana Library Federation, described the budget process for an appointed board public library and said it works well and takes from June to January to complete. She said the process is transparent, and she stated that the decision makers are accountable. She explained that the appointed board system has worked well for decades for public libraries, that a board is made up of citizens who pay taxes that support the public library, that an appointing authority can remove an appointment, and that board members are term limited. She said board members take their responsibility very seriously. She objected to adding more steps to the process. In response to Sen. Hershman, she added that her budget will grow consistent with the growing population in her district (approximately a few hundred thousand dollars in the annual budget).

Jos Holman, representing the Indiana Library Federation, told the Commission that public libraries are unique and unlike any other governmental unit. He said public libraries are a source of community pride, are treasured assets, and open to everyone. He added that public libraries serve a community's informational needs and recreational interests. He provided various statistics about public library use. In response to questions, he stated that coordination among all interested parties is a key, especially with schools for example, and that some public libraries, like the Vigo County Public Library, have had to make cuts other public library districts have not had to make. He emphasized that every public library district is unique.

Beverly Martin, representing the Johnson County Public Library, indicated that she was the former legislative chair for the Indiana Library Federation. She spoke on the topic of public library district boundaries and noted that Sen. Walker had been interested in boundaries and the issue of possibly making public library boundaries co-terminus with a city or town. She agreed with the other presenters that the appointed board system is working for public libraries. She provided a map showing the public library districts in Indiana (Exhibit C).

Andrew Berger, General Counsel for the Association of Indiana Counties, said the Association's position is that taxes should be approved by elected officials and that public libraries are now the only exception. He added that fiscal bodies are experienced in reviewing budgets, that binding review will have benefits, and that the fiscal body is accountable directly to the voters. He suggested that a bigger picture review is important because of the property tax circuit breaker caps and limited resources available to counties.

Sen. Skinner noted that an appointed public library board is accountable and can make decisions without politics being a factor. He wondered if appointed public library boards are out of control and said that fiscal bodies tend to focus on dollars and cents and not the big picture.

Meredith Carter, a member of the Hamilton County Council, said the Hamilton County Public Library has seven appointed board members and emphasized that communication is the key. He stated that the Council has a liaison with each appointed board within the County and that the appointed board system has worked fine in Hamilton County.

Township Assistance

The Commission began the discussion of township assistance with Debbie Driskell and Dawn Manfredi, of the Indiana Township Association. They described the township assistance program, the application process, and accounting for administrative costs. Ms. Driskell explained that administrative costs include expenditures that using normal nonprofit accounting would not be categorized as administrative costs, so comparing administrative costs of the township program to a nonprofit program is not appropriate. Ms. Manfredi added that in Howard County, Center Township, for example, administrative costs include managing grants from the state. She noted that in nonprofit accounting this would be a case management cost and not an administrative cost. They suggested that based on their study of townships in Howard County, a different accounting method should be used for medium and large townships.

Micah Vincent, Commissioner of the Department of Local Government Finance, discussed the provisions of HEA 1585-2013 that separated Lake County, Calumet Township's maximum property tax levy between the township assistance program and other township services. He noted that Lake County adopted an income tax so the levy growth quotient now applies.

Sen. Hershman commented that Calumet Township is now paying more in benefits that it is spending on administration, which was not true in the past.

Curtis Whittaker, a certified public accountant who is the financial advisor to Calumet Township, described the Township's financial situation and in response to Sen. Hershman emphasized that Gary and Calumet Township are unique because of the property tax circuit breaker impact.

Property Tax Circuit Breaker Report

Robert Sigalow, Senior Fiscal Analyst for the Legislative Services Agency, briefly reviewed the latest Property Tax Circuit Breaker Report (Exhibit D). Mr. Sigalow commented on the total circuit breaker losses for 2013 and the 2014 and 2015 estimated losses. He mentioned that Allen County and Lake County adopted a local income tax to provide property tax credits that impact the losses and noted that LaPorte County is almost current in tax billings, so the Laporte County data are much better than in previous reports.

After a lunch break, the Commission resumed its meeting and began the afternoon session with the topic of land banks.

Land Banks

Sen. Hershman introduced Rep. Clere who discussed his proposed draft by describing it as a work in progress on the use of land banks. He covered the legislative background of the issue and briefly discussed the benefits of land banks.

Gina Radice covered numerous issues and factors that are involved with the creation, use, and success of land banks. She explained that the tax sale process in Indiana is not a tool to get vacant and abandoned property back on the tax rolls. She said that land banks create a path for vacant and abandoned properties to be returned to productive use and to the tax base.

Sen. Hershman, Sen. Charbonneau, Sen. Skinner, and Ms. Radice discussed various problems with the tax sale process and how a land bank should be a self-sustaining nonprofit arm of the local unit. She said a land bank should be run as a business that maintains an accurate inventory of properties in an organized way that is broadly accessible in the market. She added that the local government unit should set priorities for the land bank, how it is funded, and what happens with sale proceeds. She provided examples from Ohio and Michigan. She noted that local governments typically benefit by getting the property back in the tax base.

Adam Thier and Jeff Roeder, of the Indianapolis Metropolitan Development Commission, said the Commission holds about 1,000 properties, that there are thousands of parcels in tax sale surplus still titled to the delinquent owner, and there are thousands more properties in mortgage foreclosure. Mr. Thier emphasized that there is no tax revenue from surplus properties and they have a negative impact on neighborhoods and property values. He added that these vacant properties cost the City in maintenance and require more police and fire services than occupied properties. He noted that it also costs the City to demolish structures at some point. He suggested that changes should be made to reduce speculation at the tax sales and that the Commission supports the land bank approach.

In response to a question from Rep. Porter, Mr. Thier said community development corporations are a major partner and would remain so.

Cindy Land, Marion County Treasurer's Office, described Marion County's recent history of tax sales and the process Marion County uses. She explained that many parcels are not vacant or abandoned and that an expedited process can be applied to vacant or abandoned properties. She expressed concern for property owners who are having difficult times and the proposed increase in the redemption rate makes it more difficult for an owner to redeem. She added that when the County receives revenue, it is distributed to local units, whereas the proposal would direct this revenue to the land bank. Ms. Land provided a handout illustrating the Marion County tax sale process and provided data for 2012 and 2013 (Exhibit E).

Former state representative William Crawford, Deputy Marion County Treasurer, spoke about the success of the Marion County Treasurer in reducing the inventory of properties from 8,000 to 4,000. He described how the installment payment system has kept owners in their property. He added that county treasurers are directly accountable to the voters unlike the proposed land bank board.

Andy Frazier, Executive Director, Indiana Association for Community Economic Development, and Gina Leckron, State Director, Habitat for Humanity of Indiana, both of whom work in redevelopment, stated their support for the additional tool of a land bank.

They explained that the tax sale auction does not work for all properties and if redevelopment occurs there is property tax base growth. They added that a land bank could focus on best uses of vacant and abandoned properties instead of focusing only on revenue, which is the case in the tax sale system. Ms. Leckron indicated that they partner with land banks and help those living in blighted areas. She discussed the related public safety issues and agreed that land banks can be helpful in encouraging new development, which causes economic growth. She added that Habitat for Humanity of Indiana uses subcontractors and creates jobs. They provided a handout titled Land Banks: A Tool for Community Economic Development (Exhibit F).

Andrew Berger, General Counsel, Association of Indiana Counties, told the Commission that the current tax sale process is working, that cities can now use an expedited process for vacant and abandoned properties, and that the surplus tax sale property system is also working fine. He suggested that surplus properties not sold could possibly go to a land bank. He said that the Association disagrees with diverting resources now going to local units to a land bank system.

Dax Denton and Tom Dinwiddie, representing the Indiana Bankers Association, discussed the process for selling mortgage foreclosed properties. They voiced support for tools to address vacant and abandoned properties. They said that better notice to lenders is needed for tax sale properties because a notice to the lender after the tax sale is inefficient. They suggested that the tax sale could occur later in the process so that it could be a sale of the real estate and not a sale of a certificate because the only incentive for a certificate buyer is the statutory interest that can be earned if it is redeemed.

Tom Havens, representing the Indiana Builders Association, said the Association supports the policy of land banks but does not fully support the proposal suggested by Rep. Clere. He added that land banks have to bring property up to building code standards and there are costs associated with doing so. He discussed properties that will not sell, leasing of properties and below market rental rates, and local property inspection programs, which do not exist in all counties.

Jim Kelly, Professor at Notre Dame University, who has expertise in land planning, summarized a study of abandoned properties in South Bend, Indiana. He said abandoned properties cost local government and neighborhoods each day. He suggested that better coordination among interested parties is needed to address the abandoned property issue. He agreed with previous speakers that the tax sale auction process does not work well for these properties. He stated that a land bank should be given powers to better deal with these properties. Mr. Kelley provided the Commission with a letter from South Bend Mayor Pete Buttigieg (Exhibit G).

Rhonda Cook, General Counsel, Indiana Association of Cities and Towns, said that vacant and abandoned properties are a problem for cities and towns. She supports land banks as a helpful tool for cities and towns. She added that third class cities and towns should be included in any legislation.

Supplier Pricing of Retail Products

Gus Olympidis, owner of 60 northern Indiana convenience stores named Family Express, summarized a legislative proposal to bring about fairness to retail consumers and counter unfair pricing by some suppliers of retail products. He explained how suppliers categorize their customers into classes, or channels, of trade and set wholesale prices according to these categories. He said that promotions should be available to all retailers at the same wholesale price, with differences based only on quantity and delivery factors. Mr. Olympidis distributed the results of a survey of northwest Indiana retail prices for Doritos® (Exhibit H).

In response to Sen. Charbonneau, Mr. Olympidis said that a retailer will not get the best deal just by being a quantity buyer because of the class of trade categories. He added that certain wholesalers with brand name products can set a wholesale price at their discretion, unlike gasoline where the price is set using a commodity computation.

Don Goodin, of Good Oil and a third generation owner of convenience stores that serve small communities, stated that he can buy some products at retail in a single case cheaper than a half truck from his supplier because of the different trade channels. He indicated that a supplier will cancel all products if you exclude some.

Jay Ricker, an owner of 50 convenience stores who has been in business since 1979, testified that he, too, can buy certain products at retail from a "wholesale store" cheaper than he can buy the same product from his supplier. He added that a supplier will even retaliate against the wholesale store if they learn of a retailer buying from such a store. Mr. Ricker provided a redacted copy of an email regarding Rickers Stores (Exhibit I).

Frank Davoli, representing Richmond Master, which is a distributor to convenience stores, agreed with the retailers' comments. He noted that some of the communities served by these retailers are "food deserts" and these pricing policies are unfair to consumers in these markets.

Joe Lackey, representing the Grocery and Convenience Store Association, agreed that a problem exists and that it also applies to smaller grocery stores, which are in a different trade channel than a convenience store. He described the wholesale/retail grocery product marketplace, noting that the bargaining power of some suppliers is considerable for certain products. He added that soft drink suppliers, for example, have geographic territories and there is no longer a local soft drink bottler in many places so effectively there is no competition for certain name brands.

In response to Sen. Hershman's question about the bargaining power of a quantity purchaser, Mr Lackey responded that the classes of trade drive the pricing and the major nationwide retailers drive the retail price with nationwide deals so quantity purchasing by a local retailer does not provide bargaining power on the wholesale price.

Chip Garver, representing the Beverage Association, described the channel of trade system. Sen. Hershman asked how channels of trade are determined, and Mr. Garver said that manufacturers spend a considerable amount of time and money on market research and determine channels of trade based on this research. He said that a manufacturer knows what products and sizes sell in each channel. He added that manufacturers provide discounts to all channels. He opposed the proposal in HB 1367-2013, saying it would directly contravene federal anti-trust laws and a court ruling by the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals on pricing, would raise prices across all channels, and would be costly to enforce since prices for many products would have to be monitored on a daily basis.

Commission members commented that there appears to be unfairness, that manufacturers behave as if they know what is best for a retailer, and that these practices erode confidence in the marketplace.

Ed Roberts, representing the Indiana Manufacturers Association, said that the Association has members that are manufacturers, distributors, and transporters. The Association opposes the proposal because it has the effect of the government setting prices. He explained that there are a number of reasons why prices are different and that various arrangements are made with retailers.

Final Report

Sen. Hershman announced that the Commission would not be making any formal findings or recommendations and informed the members that he would finalize with staff an informational report summarizing the Commission's work during 2013.

Sen. Hershman adjourned the meeting at 4:30 p.m.

Strategic Planning Reflection Questions Response Summary

- What are the 2-3 biggest challenges that we face in the next 1-3 years?
  - Budget issues- Because the powers to be in the county think that library has plenty of money. So they will continue to cut the tax revenue.
  - Vernon Township - Moving towards total county wide services and building services in this township
  - The transition to a new director and financial manager
  - Meeting the needs of the community and providing the services they need with the allocated revenue
  - Finding a way to serve the McCordsville community
  - Meeting the growing needs of the New Palestine/Sugar Creek community
  - Continue the Capital Improvement Plan
  - Succession planning
  - Expansion of E book collection
  - Money to meet budget.
  - Trying to keep all parties happy on how money is spent.
  - Moving forward to serve everyone in county.
  - Possible consolidation with Fortville Library would include providing service to McCordsville. This would most likely include opening a branch in McCordsville.
  - Phase out the Techmobile and redesign our outreach services.
  - Select a new director and facilitate with the transition from the retired director to the new director.
  - Hire new Director, upon Dianne's retirement. And Business manager upon Debbie's.
  - Vernon Twp. uncertainty; need a plan ready. Handle as a problem vs. an emergency.
  - Sugar Creek lease ends in 2022. We need a plan.
  - Leadership retirement (Director & Business Manager) and new leadership transition.
  - Expansion - Vernon Township.
  - Sugar Creek & Techmobile. Transition from Techmobile to Outreach Services. Space conversion at Sugar Creek branch when Techmobile is no longer needed.
  - Transition of leadership with Director's retirement in 2013. Succession planning has been on our radar for a while and we're quickly reaching the finish line.
  - Next year there will be 3 new faces on the County Council combined with the ever-present possibility of binding budget review by the Council in the future. Should the legislature approve "binding review" of library budgets, the picture changes. (The issue continues to come up each year in the General Assembly) It's critical that we maintain positive relationships with county officials while demonstrating the value of library services.
  - Expansion into Vernon Twp./McCordsville by entering into deliberate discussions between the Boards of both county libraries and with input from community stakeholders.
  - Redefining and executing a new model of Outreach.

- What are the characteristics of our organization that best position us to meet these challenges?
  - The board and staff have been very budget minded over the last few years. Rainy day fund.
  - A good working relationship with the school and community.
  - Strong, professional leadership from the professional staff and a dedicated and highly qualified staff.
  - A dedicated board of trustees in general
  - Strong community and patron support for the library
  - Dedicated patrons
  - Sound financial management
  - We have a solid board and highly committed staff to prepare us for the future.
  - Spend money wisely and research the areas where the money is to be spent.
  - Keep current with technology.
  - Look to everyone in the county for what they want and need from the library.
  - Build better understanding with the community on what HCPL does, and can do for the county.
  - Financial stability
  - Good leadership
  - Dedicated staff
  - “Good reputation” in the community
  - Board has diverse backgrounds & skill sets and we listen to & respect each other.
  - We're solvent and not in trouble. (fewer constraints/restraints)
  - Perceived well in community.
  - Funding and financial position.
  - Brand recognition (Well thought of in the community).
  - Size and flexibility of staff. The staff has and is able to quickly change direction and seize opportunities as they arise.

  - Historically the library and county officials have a positive working relationship , despite occasional differences.
  - HCPL ranks in the “Excellent” category of standards maintained by the Indiana State Library. The organization is financially sound with exceptional technology, facilities, public services and community support.

- As a board, what do we need to improve upon so that we increase the value that we add in our role as board members?
  - Be better prepared for board meetings and ask more questions.
  - Increase participation of board members in understanding the functions of the library.
  - Move to a governance model of active board committees that meet regularly and report to the board monthly.
  - Continue to educate both local officials and citizens about the role of the library and help them understand budgeting and funding issues
  - Have board members with a genuine interest in the library and its value to the community
  - Maintain positive board development and have a clear understanding of our patrons needs.
  - Look outside the box, find out what other libraries are doing, not only in Indiana but wherever successful libraries are.
  - Find a way to make people give and not beg for money.
  - Some board members seem to be experiencing a “disconnect” or loss of passion for the library’s issues.
  - We need to find a way to reenergize their passion for the library or to reconnect to the reason they volunteered to serve on the board.
  - We're not accustomed to allocating “homework” to individual members or committees, to be integrated by the Board with other parallel assignments, yielding a Board product. (We’re not a high-performing organization).
  - We need everybody to speak up more.
  - We've gotten lazy, relying too much on the Director to lead the way.
  - Increase Board committee activities/work.
  - Orientation for new Board members and a refresher to help new members understand their role and expectations.
  - We have a long way to go to reach the goal of a “working Board,” where all members are actively engaged. ( e.g. reading the Board packet 10 minutes before the meeting starts) Committee work prior to the Board meeting has been effective, yet more is needed.
  - Board members CAN step down if the original commitment and passion have dwindled. It’s okay. Continued engagement of each member is critical. Being a “placeholder” doesn’t equal being a “board member.”
  - For several years, the Board identified building the library’s Endowment Fund as one of its goals. It’s difficult to motivate the community and businesses when Board members don’t participate or contribute. It is my strong belief that Board members are expected to support the library in all aspects, including philanthropy. Such direction is the responsibility of Board leadership.

HANCOCK COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY
Hancock County, Indiana

Final Capital Improvement Plan

May 2, 2013

Financial Solutions
Group, Inc.

HANCOCK COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY
Hancock County, Indiana

Capital Improvement Plan

Introduction

Hancock County Public Library (the "Library") recognizes the importance of long-range capital investment planning to maintain the growth and sustainability of the Library's current programs and services. This Capital Improvement Plan ("CIP") matches the highest priority capital needs with the expected sources of revenue. The CIP includes investments in operating systems and branch improvements and expansions.

The CIP should be developed in advance of the operating budget. The Library has prepared a Sustainability Analysis of all funds and the CIP will be integrated into this analysis. Revenue projections have been prepared and the capital needs will be matched to these resources based upon Library Board priorities.

The Library Board has a long history of balanced spending and strong fiscal management. This CIP will ensure this tradition continues and the Library will continue to grow in a fiscally prudent manner. The Library has and continues to maintain an outstanding credit rating of "AA" in part due to their fiscal planning.

Funding Sources

The Library funds capital projects through a variety of sources:

- Library Improvement Reserve Fund ("LIRF"), including transfers from the Operating Fund
- Pay-as-you-go from the Operating Fund
- Donations
- Grants
- Interest Earnings
- Sales of Excess Property
- Sale of Long-Term Bonds

The Library has historically funded most capital projects on a pay-as-you-go basis. The Library currently has $3,990,000 of long-term debt outstanding. The Library transferred $250,000, in 2009, and $150,000, in 2010, from the Operating Fund to LIRF, to help fund future capital projects. LIRF had a balance of approximately $670,000 by the end of 2012.

Land Banks: A Tool for Community Economic Development

What is a land bank?

A land bank holds, manages, and develops tax-foreclosed property in a responsible and efficient manner. Land banks, both public and private non-profit, act as a legal and financial mechanism to transform vacant, abandoned, and tax-foreclosed property back to productive use. A land bank acts as a catalyst that encourages redevelopment in older communities that generally have become blighted by an out-migration of residents and businesses. A land bank acts as a tool for planning long-term community development strategies.

Why a land bank?

Land is one of the most important factors in local community economic development today and must be managed well to improve existing land use practices, enhance livability of communities, and support local community development and to provide tax revenue to local and county government. Abandoned land does not produce sufficient property tax revenue for communities, which generally is their main revenue source. This lack of funds impedes a local jurisdictions ability to sustain its operations, programs, and services.

Abandoned property discourages property ownership, depresses property values, attracts crime, and creates health hazards. According to Emory University Professor Frank Alexander's research, "failure of cities to collect even 2 to 4 percent of property taxes because of delinquencies and abandonment translates into $3 billion to $6 billion in lost revenues to local governments and school districts annually." In Flint, Michigan, an analysis revealed that property within 500 feet of a vacant and abandoned structure lost an average of 2.26 percent of its value. A study commissioned by Philadelphia in 2010 revealed that vacant and abandoned properties reduced the value of the city's homes by an average of $8,000, incurred $20 million in annual maintenance costs, and deprived the city of $2 million a year in tax revenues. Further, a study of eight cities in Ohio found that 25,000 vacant and abandoned properties imposed approximately $15 million in direct annual costs to the cities and more than $49 million in cumulative lost property tax revenues.

What are the benefits of a land bank?

While abandoned and neglected properties depress property values, discourage property ownership, and attract criminal activities in the surrounding area, a land bank provides tools to quickly turn these tax-reverted properties back into usable parcels that reinvest in the community's long-term vision. Land bank programs act as a community economic development tool to revitalize blighted communities and business districts. Land banks benefit schools, improve tax revenues, expand housing opportunities, remove public nuisances, assist in crime prevention, and promote economic development.

By transferring vacant and abandoned properties to responsible landowners through a land bank program, local governments benefit because they avoid the significant cost burden of property maintenance, like mowing and snow removal, as part of their nuisance abatement responsibilities. In addition, local governments benefit from increased revenue once the land bank transfers land to the new property owners who pay taxes on the property. Also, the local schools benefit because they receive more funding when there is an increase in property owners in their school districts. Land bank programs can increase the variety of mixed-income housing offered and provide more opportunities for affordable housing. Also, land bank properties, which become owner-occupied, discourage criminal activity thereby benefiting public safety and decreasing the cost burden on the local police and fire departments. Finally, the more residents and businesses that occupy property in a community, the more services and amenities will be needed, which boosts local economic activity.

CITY OF SOUTH BEND

PETE BUTTIGIEG, MAYOR

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

December 3, 2013

Commission on State Tax and Financing Policy
State of Indiana

Dear Members:

Thank you for the opportunity to express support for the Land Banking concept and to comment on the currently proposed legislative changes. The issue of vacant and abandoned properties has been a major concern for South Bend. The economic shocks of past decades, combined with population shifts and changes in the housing market, have combined to leave communities like ours with more homes than families can fill, and many teetering on the brink between demolition and rehabilitation.

Shortly after taking office, I convened a group of city and county officials, private sector practitioners, and neighborhood advocates to form a working group on this policy challenge. The February 2013 report on Vacant and Abandoned Properties recommended a number of policy approaches to deal with such properties. They range from small changes to the way we already handle problem properties, to wholesale change in state laws governing the ability of municipalities to acquire and dispose of land.

A number of factors have contributed to the amount of vacant and abandoned homes in South Bend, including: population decline, loss of manufacturing following World War II, national housing crisis, and the 2002 property value reassessment. The City of South Bend's Department of Code Enforcement conducted a citywide survey of all homes in the spring of 2012 with another update approximately one year later. We use the definition: no one has lived in the house for at least 90 days and, and it has a code violation that has not been addressed. As a result over 1100 properties were identified as vacant and abandoned.

While these properties can be found throughout South Bend, there is a concentration of vacancy and abandonment in the central areas of South Bend.

Demolition is an important step forward in many cases, but what happens to the vacant lots? Properties need to be made available for productive reuse, but there needs to be a process in place to help facilitate change of ownership.

By acquiring abandoned properties and making them available to responsible owners, land banks play a crucial role in facilitating productive reuse, providing a piece of the puzzle that Code Enforcement cannot.

Because of the current structure of tax sales, private investors do not have incentives to be a part of a redevelopment project that many of the properties available at tax sales most need. Instead of solving the problem of vacant and abandoned property, tax sales often make it worse.

Treating properties as real estate, and not tax receivables, can address the longer term development and tax base growth that is desired for our communities. Counties and cities generally do not have the resources or legal tools to acquire tax-delinquent vacant and abandoned real estate, but a land bank can streamline the title transfer process and make properties available for redevelopment on a large scale.

Land banks facilitate both traditional sales and less commonly used paths to ownership such as land contracts, rent-to-own options, and side-lot purchase programs. The variety and scope of land banking programs make them an effective tool to expedite the return of vacant and abandoned properties to productive use and to help revitalize communities.

The preliminary draft of the land bank legislation raises some concern related to the requirement that the land bank may not sell, lease, or otherwise convey property unless it conforms to applicable building codes. The City agrees properties should meet building codes, and ideally go beyond, but requiring properties to meet building codes at sale would increase costs to the land bank and result in fewer properties impacted.

Overall this land bank legislation is a powerful tool that can be transformative for communities dealing with vacant and abandoned properties. Continuing to look to innovative options, like the land bank, will be crucial for South Bend as it moves forward with addressing vacant and abandoned properties.

Sincerely,
