

Library Organizations

State and national library organizations are important not only to the library and director but also to the board member. These associations provide valuable programs, publications, and workshops to help the trustee and staff perform more effectively in the local library. They have the same basic mission as local libraries--to provide high quality, low cost library services to the public.

Through the exchange of ideas and experiences among trustees and librarians from many libraries, solutions can often be found for local problems. The associations work effectively for library legislation, endorsing or influencing action affecting the welfare of libraries.

In publicizing libraries at the state and national level, the associations aid local libraries in their efforts to increase public awareness of services and needs.

For these reasons, board members should have a basic understanding of related state and national organizations to be able to coordinate local library efforts with those organizations. The following are some of the organizations with which your library will be affiliated.

The Indiana Library and Historical Department (IC 4-23-7) consists of two agencies, the Indiana State Library and the Indiana Historical Bureau. The former has responsibility for library service throughout the state and the latter for the publication of state historical materials.

It is a common misunderstanding that the Indiana State Library is somehow the "mother" of Indiana libraries, the regulator and governor of all libraries in Indiana. In fact, the state library relationship with local libraries is much more oriented toward being a resource and providing service and assistance.

The Indiana State Library is charged to develop and provide library service to state government, its branches, its departments and its officials and employees; to provide for the individual citizens of the state the specialized library services not generally appropriate, economical or available in other libraries of the state; to encourage and support the development of the library profession; and to strengthen services of all types of publicly and privately supported special, school, academic and public libraries.

The Indiana Library and Historical Board governs the State Library and is empowered to receive and administer state and federal aid for the improvement and development of library and historical services in Indiana. Planning authority is also vested in the Indiana Library and Historical Board, subject to final approval by the governor.

The Indiana State Library (ISL) is composed of seven divisions:

- Talking Books & Braille Library
- Catalog
- Management Information Service
- Genealogy
- Indiana History
- Reference/Government Services
- Library Development Office

ISLAC

The Indiana State Library Advisory Council (ISLAC) (IC 4-23-7.1-1 (1); IC 4-23-7.1-39) is appointed by the Indiana Library and Historical Board to advise the board about development, administration, and evaluation of a state plan for libraries in Indiana, and to review applications and make recommendations about the use of federal Library Services Technology Act funds.

The Indiana Cooperative Library Services Authority (INCOLSA) (IC 36-12-8; IC 36-12-9; IC 4-23-7.1-30 & 31) is a statewide cooperative composed of all types and sizes of libraries. INCOLSA provides the framework for technical cooperation among libraries in Indiana. Participation in the system is voluntary and does not affect the autonomy of the individual library.

Through this cooperative system new technology, such as data processing, on-line information retrieval, telecommunications, and computer output microforms, can be made available at a reasonable cost. INCOLSA manages a data base of Indiana library collections which is linked to national data bases.

The Indiana Visual Audio Network (IVAN) is a membership of 49 public libraries which provides audio/visual service to those libraries. The network purchases videos, compact discs, or spoken word tapes which are circulated among the member libraries.
