The Wilson Monument is located below the inn on Trail 4. George Donaldson, who owned the land at that time made the monument to honor Alexander Wilson, an early ornithologist. They did not know each other; Donaldson just respected the work done by Wilson.

Prairie plants may be found in several locations throughout the park. Periodic controlled burns help renew and protect these ecosystems so the native plants continue to bloom and grow.

Wildlife in the park includes white-tailed deer, coyotes, red and gray foxes, raccoons, skunks, wild turkeys, great blue herons, kingfishers and wood ducks.

Another attraction at Spring Mill State Park is a memorial to Virgil I. "Gus" Grissom, located adjacent to the park gate. The museum houses the Gemini III capsule and spacesuit, plus many other items related to Grissom and NASA.

SPRING MILL
STATE PARK

on.IN.gov/stateparks

Spring Mill State Park offers visitors many historic and natural wonders. The Pioneer Village, with its massive water-powered grist mill, and representation of pioneer tradecrafts and occupations, is a unique chance to step back in time. The existing grist mill was originally constructed in 1817. The majority of village restoration work was completed in the late 1920s and 1930s. The Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) played an integral part in the repairs and reconstruction of the village along with other projects within the park, including Spring Mill Lake, various shelters, roads and trails.

Natural areas are featured at Spring Mill in three nature preserves: Donaldson Cave, Donaldson's Woods and Mitchell Karst Plain. George Donaldson came from Scotland and purchased a tract of forest in 1865. He did not allow cutting of timber or hunting. Thanks to his efforts we now have native trees more than 300 years old in Donaldson's Woods. Inside the Donaldson Cave ecosystem are Hoosier cave fish, an endangered species.
