Introduction

This booklet provides a guide to church records on microfilm at the Indiana State Library, particularly the Catholic diocese records and the records from the DePauw University Collection.

Special Notes

Records from the Dioceses of Gary and Evansville are not part of our microfilm collection. However, some records from these dioceses may be accessed through FamilySearch.

Catholic Diocese History in Indiana

By Professor James J. Divita, Marian College, Indianapolis
Revised, Genealogy Division, October 2014

Indiana was included in the Diocese of Quebec from 1674 to 1789, in the Diocese of Baltimore from 1789 to 1808, and in the Diocese of Bardstown (Louisville) from 1808 to 1834.

In 1834, the Diocese of Vincennes was established and included all of Indiana and the eastern third of Illinois. The Diocese of Chicago was set up in 1843 and Vincennes reduced to Indiana. Then in 1857, the Diocese of Fort Wayne was established in the northern half of the state. The Diocese of Vincennes was renamed Diocese of Indianapolis in 1898.

In 1944, Indianapolis was raised to the rank of archdiocese. The Dioceses of Evansville and Lafayette were established from Indianapolis and Fort Wayne territory, respectively. Then in 1956, the Diocese of Gary was created out of Fort Wayne territory. The last change occurred in 1960 when Fort Wayne was renamed the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend.
