

The 2013 Sara I. and Albert G. Reuben Educational Series

Join in these free monthly educational sessions to learn more about topics relevant to many immigrants and refugees.

Thanks for the partnership with Covering Kids and Families of Indiana, the Indiana Minority Health Coalition, and the Indianapolis Public Library, in September we will offer the interesting topic about the Affordable Care Act.

"Learning about the Affordable Care Act" How it's already providing benefits in Indiana, what the health insurance exchange or marketplace will look like, what are the specific features/issues that affect immigrant population in Indiana

When: Wednesday, September 18th, 6:00 to 7:30 PM

Where: The Indianapolis Central Library / Auditorium
40 E. Saint Clair Street, Indianapolis, IN 46204
(main entrance located at the corner of St. Clair and N. Meridian Street / parking lot entrance on N. Pennsylvania, just crossing E. 9th Street)

What: Mr. Paul Chase, Deputy Director of Policy and Administration of Covering Kids and Families of Indiana will explain about how the Affordable Care Act is already providing benefits in Indiana, what the health insurance exchange or marketplace will look like, essential health benefits that insurance policies must provide, the status of Medicaid expansion nationally and here in Indiana, and implications should Indiana decide not to expand coverage through Medicaid or the Healthy Indiana Plan. As well Mr. Carl Ellison, Vice President and Chief Operating Office of the Indiana Minority Health Coalition will share the specific features/issues that affect immigrant populations in Indiana.

Free and open to the public

The Reuben Educational Series is a legacy of Sara I. Reuben, a first-generation immigrant from Belarus, and Albert G. Reuben, a first-generation American whose family also came from Easter Europe. Longtime Indianapolis residents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben are an example of how immigrants truly enrich and give back to the community.
