Indiana Commission for Higher Education's Learn More Indiana Unveils New Website

The public-facing brand serves as a resource hub for educators, students and families

(INDIANAPOLIS) – Today, the Indiana Commission for Higher Education's public-facing brand, Learn More Indiana \(LMI\), unveiled a newly designed website for students, families and educators. The website provides resources, tools and guidance for Hoosiers to make the process of accessing post-high school education manageable and attainable. The new iteration is aimed to be user-friendly, comprehensive, concise and interactive to all audiences.

The goal of the website, which is available in five languages, is to alleviate the intimidation of higher education. The site offers transparent and up-to-date information on the costs of college in Indiana and connects visitors to financial aid opportunities. Learn More Indiana also shares pathway guidance on all forms of higher education from certificates and training to four-year degrees and beyond.

“Learn More Indiana is essential in implementing our Comprehensive School Counseling Program,” said Lisa Noble, School Counselor at Tell City Jr.-Sr. High School. “From College GO! to the FAFSA, the resources guide us in delivering quality lessons in career and college planning to meet the individual needs of our students and families.”

Learn More Indiana's resource library helps Hoosiers navigate the college process by providing them with the tools they need to make informed decisions about their future. School counselors and educators can use the library to download and print flyers to assist students with earning the 21st Century Scholarship, affording college, accessing scholarships and more.

“Learn More Indiana is an important channel for the Commission to communicate with the public,” said Indiana Commissioner for Higher Education Chris Lowery. “Whether it be through social media or the website, Learn More Indiana provides timely updates and resources for Hoosiers who are pursuing education after high school. Our expectation is that the revamped website will make information more accessible to students, families and educators.”

A new feature of the website is the ability for visitors to send direct messages to the Commission's Outreach Coordinators. The Outreach Coordinators are divided into eight geographic regions in Indiana and serve as the Commission's direct contacts and field experts on student support. Outreach Coordinators can help students, families and educators with questions about the 21st Century Scholars program, filing the FAFSA, accessing state financial aid and more.
