The IHS and the IHB developed the County Historian Program in 1981 to foster communication among the multitude of historical groups throughout the state and to promote history at the local level. In addition to interacting with local historical groups, county historians serve as a resource for people and groups in their counties, around the state, and throughout the nation. They also serve as the communities' liaison with both the IHS and the IHB.

If you would like more information about the County Historian Program, such as how county historians are appointed or what they do, please visit www.indianahistory.org/across-indiana/hometown-resources. If you have any questions regarding the program, please contact me at the address below or contact Local History Services Assistant Director Jeannette Rooney at (317) 233-8913.
