Summer heat has arrived for the coming weeks, and many Hoosiers will be taking time to visit bodies of water for recreation.

Low head dams are prevalent throughout the state and can be a particularly dangerous hazard for individuals out for a day of fun. Encourage citizens to learn about the areas they'll be visiting and avoid low head dams to protect themselves and loved ones.

IDHS maintains a low head dam safety webpage, and DNR has made available a map of low head dams across the state. Please consider sharing these resources.

Exercise Update

Did you know? The central and south regions have been separately preparing for the same preparedness priority: logistical staging area/commodity points of distribution (LSA/C-POD). The February LSA Workshop was offered virtually to the entire state, allowing a combined effort moving forward.

The IDHS Planning Section provided the counties with an LSA planning template that counties were able to modify to their needs. Several counties in the state have been identified to work on a pilot project developing their own county C-POD plans.

A hybrid tabletop/functional exercise with the central and south districts is planned for September 2021. In 2022, the central districts will progress to a full scale exercise as part of the National Exercise Program.
