To claim your reservation, you must check in at the property office before 5:30 a.m. CT (4:30 a.m. ET) on the day of your hunt. You must carry with you and return the one-day access permit received upon drawing a unit. Each permit has an area to indicate your harvest records and addition information. Please fill your permits to the best of your ability. Permits can be returned at the property office or at any drop box around the property.

Area Information:

Glendale FWA, located 10 miles south of Washington, Indiana, provides quality outdoor recreation opportunities for both hunters and wildlife viewers. The 8,060-acre property is comprised of more than 1,400 acres of lakes and impoundments along with upland habitat and wooded areas. Each year, hunters successfully harvest a number of species including deer, turkey, waterfowl, rabbit and quail.

The property has several managed dove fields available and will award reservations to 30 hunters each of the first two days of season. Most of our dove fields can be accessed by a brief walk and all fields will have parking nearby. We always attempt to leave standing cover near each stake for hunter concealment. The dove fields will differ in quality and size given the many factors that may affect the outcome of sunflower plantings. Accurate field maps will be posted to the property webpage when we can determine the success of each field. Maps can be found here around one month before season opens: Glendale Fish & Wildlife Area.

The first two days of dove season are very popular at Glendale FWA we ask that each sportsman do their part to keep litter contained and showcase ethical hunting to help preserve our natural resources for generations to come.

If you have questions about property rules, accessing dove fields, or other specifics, please call or visit the main office.
