INDIANA DUNES STATE PARK

It should be noted that one of the purposes for the park is to protect and preserve this rare landscape. Many sensitive plants and animals live on the dunes and are easily affected by erosion caused by foot traffic and other activities. Hiking in areas other than marked trails or designated areas is prohibited.

THE INDIANA DUNES

Visitors can enjoy Indiana Dunes State Park in a wide variety of ways. A campground, many picnic shelters and picnic areas, more than 16 miles of hiking trails, a swimming beach, and the Nature Center are available for visitors' use and are operated with visitor safety in mind.

During the summer season, a beach pavilion provides shelter, restrooms with outside showers only, a snack bar, and gift shop.

Dunes Nature Preserve, encompassing 1,530 acres and located within the boundaries of the state park, provides visitors with an opportunity to explore pristine and unique landscapes.

Indiana Dunes State Park features a wide variety of habitats, including beach, sand dunes, black oak forest, wooded wetlands, and a button-bush marsh. Together, these areas contain some of the most diverse flora and fauna in the Midwest. Botanists from across the country enjoy studying the unusual collection of plant life. In fact, it was here that Henry Cowles, known to many as the "father of ecology" did his landmark studies of succession in the early 1900s. As a result of his work, Indiana Dunes became known as "the birthplace of ecology."

The dunes provide an opportunity to explore an exciting and ever-changing landscape. In several areas, huge "living" or "moving" dunes are slowly being blown inland, burying forests as they go. A prime example can be seen from Trail 9.

Other interesting features include "tree graveyards" (places where forests have been buried by sand and then, more recently, re-exposed by wind erosion). "Tree graveyards" can be seen in Big Blowout, near Trail 10.

The Indiana Dunes area also is renowned throughout the Midwest for its birding. Visit the Nature Center to ask about good birding locations.

Indiana Dunes State Park is surrounded by Indiana Dunes National Park, a federally administered park comprising approximately 15,000 acres. For more information about the National Park, write: Indiana Dunes National Park, 1100 N. Mineral Springs Rd., Porter, IN 46304; or call (219) 926-7561.

THIS IS YOUR PARK

Visitors shall observe the following rules, which are designed to fulfill the purpose for which state parks were established, namely, to preserve a primitive landscape in its natural condition for the public's use and enjoyment.

Please let wild animals remain wild.

Feeding deer is prohibited. Feeding of wild animals can result in harm to both animals and people. Animals who depend on handouts become a nuisance to visitors and a danger to themselves. Please lock up all food and coolers inside cars or campers. Roll up car windows tightly.

ACTIVITIES AND FACILITIES

BIRDING—Excellent spring and fall migration opportunities. See Nature Center for current sightings.

CAMPING—Campground has two comfort stations that are equipped with flush toilets, hot water and showers. 140 campsites with 50 amp. service can accommodate camping structures up to 50 feet long. INDIANA

Indiana Dunes
STATE PARK

Indiana Dunes State Park means primitive, beautiful, historic and amazing landscape, unique in the Hoosier state.

With more than 3 miles of beautiful beach along Lake Michigan's southern shore, the park's 2,182 acres are located at the north end of State Road 49 in Porter County.

In the early 1900s, scientists, recreationists and nature enthusiasts, recognizing the value and potential of the area, fought to have the region preserved. As a result, in 1925, the state park was established. This is a special place. We hope you'll take the time to explore its many fascinating features.
