Kina Repp
Workplace Safety Advocate

Kina Repp began her first day of work in a fish processing plant. Forty minutes later, her left arm was being torn from her body as she was caught in a moving conveyor belt. This horrifying accident and her fight to survive changed her life forever. Kina’s story is tragic, insightful, compelling and powerfully motivating. She uses her experience to raise awareness about workplace hazards and the importance of making safe choices.

Sergeant Sammy Davis
Congressional Medal of Honor Recipient

Sammy L. Davis received the Congressional Medal of Honor on November 19, 1968 from President Lyndon Johnson for his heroic actions in Vietnam. Those actions inspired the wartime scenes depicted in “Forrest Gump.” Davis’s harrowing story about perseverance and resilience will inspire you to be the hero in your workplace.

Tom Cecich, CSP, CIH
Strategic Board Advisor, Avetta and Past President, American Society of Safety Engineers

Thomas F. Cecich is the past president of the American Society of Safety Engineers, where he was served on the Board of Directors and earned the honor of being named an ASSE Fellow, the organization’s highest honor. He has also served on the Board of Certified Safety Professionals (BCSP) and is a past president of BCSP. Cecich will discuss the current state of the safety profession and where it may lead in the future.

NEW THIS YEAR

Distracted and Impaired Driving Simulators

The distracted and impaired driving simulators bring home the shocking reality of the dangerous practice of distracted and impaired driving – as it is the cause for many accidents and fatalities worldwide.

Participants will learn first-hand how difficult it truly is to safely drive while impaired or while operating a mobile device.
