

What is HSE?

The HSE is an alternative for earning a high school diploma. Your HSE diploma can be earned after completing a test based on five subject areas including Math, Reading, Writing, Science, and Social Studies.

The skills you are taught and eventually tested on are at the same level as those of graduating high school seniors.

HIGH SCHOOL EQUIVALENCY

HSE-Indiana's NEW test to replace the GED®

A SECOND CHANCE AT A FRESH START

What's the same?

The Document

The official document students earn is still the Indiana High School Equivalency Diploma.

The Knowledge

Test-takers still need to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding of subject matter at the level of a high school senior.

What's new?

The Name

Students will no longer take the GED® and will now take the Indiana High School Equivalency test, or HSE.

The Documentation

Official transcripts will show student's Indiana HSE test scores.

The Intensity

The difficulty of the test will increase gradually to help students and educators stay focused on fundamentals while increasing the level of knowledge required.

FAQs

Who can take the HSE?

Why should I take the HSE?

Education plays an important role in life by improving your knowledge and allowing you to get a better job. Workers who have a high school diploma earn approximately $10,000 more per year than those who do not.

Taking Indiana's HSE test is your first step to moving forward. Whether your goal is to get a better job or continue on your educational pathway to a certificate, 2-year associate degree or 4-year bachelor's degree, this is where your second chance starts.
