Re: BQIS Training Series for Providers: Charting the LifeCourse
Date: January 27, 2021

The Bureau of Developmental Disabilities Services and the Bureau of Quality Improvement Services believe that a true person-centered system measures a service or program by its ability to achieve quality, person-centered outcomes for the individuals being supported. We also recognize that providers play a key role in helping individuals achieve their good life by facilitating choice, control and integration for the individuals receiving services.

To better support implementation of person-centered principles in service delivery, BQIS, in partnership with The University of Missouri–Kansas City, is offering a free training series on Charting the LifeCourse for providers. It will explore key principles, the provider’s role and best practice examples.

Web-based training series for training directors, QIDPs or other provider staff responsible for DSP training:

- One two-hour Zoom interactive session, once a month (third Wednesday, 10 a.m.- noon) for six months;
- Sessions will include exploring the Charting the LifeCourse principles in more depth and break-out discussions about implementation at the provider level;
- Participants will receive a certificate of participation for each session they attend;
- If participants attend the entire series, and submit a training implementation plan for their agency, their organization will receive a certificate in Charting the LifeCourse Implementation.

Please register here: <https://forms.gle/zU2CC6UuRBy7DY4h8>. Participants will be limited to two participants per agency unless spots remain prior to the event date. All trainings session dates are available here.

We look forward to continuing to educate and inspire providers to empower individuals to live, love, learn, work, play and pursue their dreams.
