Re: Remote support services webinar opportunities for individuals and families
Date: December 16, 2020

The Bureau of Developmental Disabilities Services is excited to share webinar opportunities for individuals and families to learn more about using remote support services. One of six Indiana remote supports providers, SafeinHome, is offering a series of webinars in January and February for individuals and families that are interested in learning more about how remote supports can assist them in their vision of a good life. There will be three different topics, each being offered multiple times throughout this series. Please see below for specific information on dates and times for each topic.

BQIS will continue to share information from our other approved providers as they offer similar opportunities. This announcement is not meant to be an endorsement or recommendation of SafeinHome over other remote supports providers and is only intended to share an opportunity for individuals and families to learn more.
