

Tactical Urbansim Demonstration Projects Supporting Active Transportation

Grant Funding Announcement

The Indiana Department of Health (IDOH) is providing funding for Indiana communities to assist in the design and implementation of low-cost pop-up, tactical urbanism demonstration projects that support active living in Indiana. This funding will assist grantees in the planning, preparation, and implementation of one or more tactical urbanism demonstration projects in their communities.

Applications are due by 4 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 26. An extension of the application deadline is available with approval prior to the deadline (will be determined on a case-by-case basis).

Projects are anticipated to start in the spring and summer of 2026 and must be installed by Aug. 31, with the final evaluation and project reporting completed by Sept. 30. Eligible applicants include cities, towns, counties, regional planning agencies (such as MPOs), school corporations and not-for-profit groups.

The IDOH, Division of Nutrition and Physical Activity (DNPA) invests in partnerships and activities that work toward improving the health of all Indiana residents. The implementation of tactical urbanism demonstration projects is an effective way to invest in changes to policies and the built environment that supports healthy community outcomes.

A digital copy of the request for applications that includes an explanation of eligible applicants, submittal requirements, funding levels, and additional information is available on the IDOH grants web page. Contact Pete Fritz at (317) 234-6808 for more information.
