On 7/31/23 at 1:00 P.M., during an observation and interview Resident D was observed in her room sitting in a chair. Resident D was noted to have a swollen, black and blue bruised area to the right leg approximately 5 cm wide by 10 cm long. Upon palpitation, the area was hard and warm to the touch. The resident indicated the area was painful. Resident D indicated on 7/26/23 in the evening, Resident F attempted to enter her room multiple times and reported the attempts to the nurses. Resident D indicated Resident F came to her door and she told him to go away. Resident D indicated he returned and opened the door and let himself into her room, closed the door and attempted to lock it. Resident D indicated she was in her wheelchair at the time and wheeled over to door to open it to get Resident F out, attempted to push him, and began yelling at the resident and yelling for help. Resident D indicated Resident F who was also in a wheelchair, was beside her table and got angry when he lifted up her white wooden dining chair and threw it at her hitting her on the head and then on the right leg. Resident D indicated one of the nurses came to the room shortly after and removed Resident F from her room.
