A care plan conference summary, dated 4/18/24, care plan scheduled for 4/18/24, family was a no show. A care plan indicated Resident K had impaired cognitive function, his family visited and family stated he liked to watch TV and sports and play cards, he could comprehend commands with yes and no jesters, he would benefit from associate support for activity participation related to interest for cognitive, social and emotional fulfillment/stimulation in group/one on one settings. The goal was for the resident to maintain involvement in activities for cognitive, emotional and social fulfillment in guided groups/one on ones. Interventions included to invite the resident to scheduled programming and provide a calendar of events and welcome by name. Provide support necessary to maximize success in programming such as cueing and assistance with crafts and games. Work in concert with family to identify supplies that can be provided to enhance their visit and activity participation within group or one on one (1:1). During an interview on 4/29/24 at 10:02 a.m. Nurse Practitioner (NP) 20 indicated she was in the facility 4 days per week, she had not seen Resident K out of the bed in the last week. The resident liked to be up around others and interacting. He cared a lot about his appearance, i.e. what clothing he was wearing, and he would spend a lot of time picking out a hat for any occasion. NP 20 indicated she felt the resident was most comfortable when he was up out of bed. He was a proud veteran and liked it when others acknowledged it, he liked to flirt, and be told he was handsome.

	During an interview on 4/25/24 at 11:52 a.m., Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) 9 indicated she routinely worked on the hallway with Resident J. The resident had been admitted to the skilled nursing facility (SNF) a few months ago from assisted living. When the resident moved into the present room in the past week, she had only the 1 sweat outfit she was wearing and a gown. CNA 9 indicated she had also heard the resident's hearing aides had been lost. CNA 9 indicated, in the past when she'd been told of a missing item by a resident or family member, she had told the nurse or the laundry. She thought there were grievance/concerns forms that could have been filled out for missing items, but she had not. She was not sure where grievance forms were located, maybe the nurse had them to fill out, but she was not sure. During an interview on 4/25/24 at 12:05 p.m., Registered Nurse (RN) 11 indicated, Resident J had moved into the secured memory care unit from assisted living. Family members would report missing items to include glasses and clothing, and a lot of the items had been found. He had heard the resident lost her hearing aids, but they never turned up. The resident liked to carry things around on the unit, and there were peers that would also mess in her things. If family members reported missing items, he would report this to the Memory Care Director, Director of Nursing (DON), laundry personnel, or sometimes the SSD. He had never been informed to use a grievance form to report missing items or for concerns. On 4/25/24 at 2:36 p.m., Resident J was observed sitting by herself in a wheelchair (wc) in front of the nurse's desk. 	off. Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) 22 indicated she routinely worked the resident's hallway on day shift. Staff usually got Resident K out of bed after his tube feeding had been disconnected around 1:00 p.m. as he liked to roam in his wheelchair. However, it was difficult for staff to get the resident out of bed around 1:00 p.m. as they were still serving lunch at that time. She did not know what happened this week and why the resident had not gotten out of bed. Observations of the resident in bed not involved in activities on 4/29/24, a. 	Enrichment, she indicated an activity calendar was used to describe daily activities. The resident's attendance was documented by highlighting a census form with colored highlighters. If there was a colored mark beside the resident's name, this meant the resident had attended and dependent on the color it meant either a morning or evening event. The form did not provide documentation of what specific activity the resident attended, for what length of time, if the resident was actively involved, or was passively watching. A care plan indicated Resident K had impaired cognitive function, his family visited and family stated he likes to watch TV and sports and play cards, he could comprehend commands with yes and no jesters, he would benefit from associate support for activity participation related to interest for cognitive, social and emotional fulfillment/stimulation in group/one on one settings. The goal was for the resident to maintain involvement in activities for cognitive, emotional and social fulfillment in guided groups/one on ones. Interventions included to invite the resident to scheduled programming and provide a calendar of events and welcome by name. Provide support necessary to maximize success in programming such as cueing and assistance with crafts and games. Work in concert with family to identify supplies that can be provided to enhance their visit and activity participation within group/1:1. A quarterly MDS (Minimum Data Set) assessed the resident as being totally dependent with 1-2 person assistance for bed mobility, transfers, eating, toileting, and bathing. During an interview on 4/29/24 at 10:02 a.m. Nurse

	Practitioner (NP) 20 indicated she was in the facility 4 days per week and she had not seen Resident K out of the bed in the last week. The resident liked to be up around others and interacting. He cared a lot about his appearance, i.e. what clothing he was wearing, and he would spend a lot of time picking out a hat for any occasion. NP 20 indicated she felt the resident was most comfortable when he was up out of bed. He was a proud veteran and liked when others acknowledged it, he liked to flirt, and be told he was handsome. During an interview on 4/29/24 at 11:29 a.m., the Director of Life Enrichment indicated she put out the activity calendar monthly, calendars were no longer put on the walls in resident rooms since walls had been painted, but cognitive residents were given a calendar by hand. Staff tried to remind residents of the day before and day of activities, then would go around and ask those who were up if they wanted to attend. Lower functioning residents usually attended morning activity, but if not up they would be invited to an afternoon activity. Bed ridden residents would have in-room one on one (1:1) activities twice weekly. Staff kept track of resident participation by marking on a calendar if attended, and 1:1 documented was kept in a book. Resident K usually attended afternoon activities, he liked pet visits and daily chronicles. When his mother visited, she made sure he went down to activities. The resident had to be separate from his peers if the activity involved food as he could eat nothing per mouth and would try to take food from others. The Director of Life Enrichment indicated Resident K had a lot of room stimulation with TV and reading the daily chronicle. During an interview on 4/24/24 at 2:40 p.m., a family member indicated Resident J had moved from the assisted living building a few months ago into the secured memory care unit, but that area was too busy with all the residents and staff distraction around her, so as of a week ago she was residing in the health center in a room by herself. The resident's dementia was progressing, she was more confused, had new behaviors of being paranoid, and did not like to be around crowds of other people. The resident was observed rambling talk non-stop, nothing to do with the conversation, but talking to and smiling at her family member. The family member indicated to make herself heard she had to be close to the resident and yell in her ear. When the family member came to visit this date, the TV volume was set to 98, very loud, to accommodate the resident hearing due to having her hearing aids lost. To her knowledge, there had been no suggestions from staff for the resident to try headphones or a portable hearing box to better hear the TV. On 4/24/24 at 3:05 p.m., Resident J was observed walking out of her a room with a visitor who was leaving. So far, the most engagement was going to meals in the main dining room as this resident liked to drink coffee. Resident J was higher functioning, so she was invited out of her room. The facility tried not to have as many residents on one on one (1:1), so Resident J was still part of the group activities. The resident was hard of hearing, and liked to watch TV. The facility had no headphones or hearing devices to offer the resident for when the resident was in a group activity. Resident J had just moved over from the memory care unit where they only had group activities and the activities were not tracked, but now that she was in the health care center her activity participation should have been tracked. An Admission and State Optional MDS's (Minimum Data Set) were completed on 2/20/24, the resident was assessed as having adequate hearing, had hearing aids, could sometimes make herself understood, and sometimes understand others. The resident was unable to participate in a BIMS (Brief Interview for Mental Status) assessment. The resident displayed no signs or symptoms of wandering. Mobility devices included a walker. The resident required extensive assistance with one person physical assist for bed mobility, supervision of one person physical assist for transfers, and supervision and set up help only for toilet use. 	Findings include: On 4/29/24 at 9:25 a.m., observation of the main kitchen with the satellite kitchen manager. Two unidentified kitchen staff were observed prepping raw chicken breasts, both male staff members had full beards more than 1 inch in length, neither were wearing a beard cover. The floors of the kitchen, underneath and on the sides of the stoves, ovens, and deep fryers, were observed to have a build up of grease and debris including trash, and food. She indicated, this kitchen provided food to all residents and staff who ate on campus. On 4/29/24 at 9:28 a.m., observation of the kitchen with the executive chef, who indicated she had not worked over the weekend, but each kitchen staff member was responsible for cleaning their own stations. Confidential interviews were conducted during the survey: a. The pantry on the unit was frequently filthy and smelled. b. In the evening once the meal trays are passed, the kitchen staff immediately threw away any extra food, so if the residents wanted more to eat, they did not have that option. c. Snacks were not consistently being offered or provided outside of mealtimes, especially diabetic residents' bedtime snacks. d. Nursing staff did not have access to juice off hours in the event of a diabetic emergency. On 4/29/24 at 10:55 a.m., the ADM provided a Sanitization policy, dated October 2008, and indicate the policy was the one currently being used by the facility.
