

Spotting Cannabis—Infused Foods

Front of the Food Package

Back of the Food Package

Clues that Might be on the Package

- 1. Product Name: Wording such as "cannabis-infused", "THC", "Delta 8" or "Delta 9" could be found at the front of the package.
- 2. THC/CBD Content: The dose of THC or CBD in milligrams (mg) per serving and per total package.
- 3. Graphic or Pictogram: A graphic or pictogram of a marijuana like leaf, or an icon indicated that the product is for consumer 21 years of age and older.
- 4. Ingredients List: Listing Cannabutter, Canna Oil, Cannahoney, or Cannabis Extracts on the ingredient list.
- 5. Dosage Instructions: Providing "dosage instructions" to suggest that this is not a traditional food product.
- 6. Manufacturer Information: Provide details about the manufacturer, including contact information.
- 7. Warnings: Some packages might include warning statements such as "keep out of reach of children," "For adult use only," "May cause drowsiness," or "Not for pregnant or nursing mothers" to ensure safe consumption. However, if these warnings are absent, it is important to note that all cannabis infused products can have adverse health effect.
- 8. QR Code: If the company's QR code is printed on the package, it should direct consumers to the company's website. From there, consumer can obtain detailed information about the product, such as strain, THC/CBD content, ingredients, and lab testing results.