

On June 25, 2025, Living Rooted LLC dba Roann Compost submitted an application for an Industrial Waste Product Marketing and Distribution Permit. A request for additional information was sent on August 1, 2025, indicating hydraulic conductivity tests were required for the compost pad and detention pond identified in the application. An email was sent to the facility on November 25, 2025, explaining that due to statutory deadlines, if the facility was unable to provide the hydraulic conductivity tests by December 9, 2025, they would need to withdraw the application and resubmit once they have the requested information. On December 8, 2025, Mr. Rick Duff from Roann Compost requested the application be withdrawn. The request explained that hydraulic conductivity tests were delayed due to cold weather and snow, therefore, would not be completed by December 9, 2025.
