

Phil Stucky

Phil Stucky - CEO of THRIVE

Phil Stucky is the CEO and Co-Founder of THRIVE, a certified recovery community organization operating under the Division of Mental Health and Addictions (DMHA). With a focus on the Southeast region of Indiana, Phil oversees programs across ten counties, including Clark, Scott, and Floyd. His leadership extends to a variety of initiatives such as re-entry programs within jails, partnering with outpatient facilities, and residential treatment programs.

Phil helped implement the Integrated Reentry and Correctional Support (IRACS) program in Scott, and Clark County jail, designed to support individuals transitioning from incarceration back into the community. In addition to his executive role, he is an esteemed trainer for the MHA Stanley W. DeKemper Training Institute, specializing in peer support fundamentals, ethics, and Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT). His expertise also includes being a nationally certified Mental Health First Aid trainer, an MRT facilitator, and a MATRIX-Criminal Justice key supervisor.

Phil's dedication to improving mental health and recovery services has earned him national recognition, including being named the 2022 Partner of the Year by the National Association of Social Workers. His comprehensive approach to leadership and training continues to inspire positive change and support for individuals on their recovery journey.

A strong advocate for harm reduction, Phil integrates this approach into THRIVE's services, ensuring that individuals receive compassionate care tailored to their unique needs. His dedication to harm reduction and recovery continues to drive positive change, providing essential support and hope to those navigating the complexities of addiction and mental health challenges.
