Description: Large Animal Net Ejector
Comments: - Large Animal Net Ejector -This is a net gun made from a modified Remington 700 that can launch a 15'x15' net up to 30 yards. These net guns will provide the wildlife health team to respond to requests and collect samples for disease from large living animals (deer, medium sized mammals, and large birds).>>

Description: UltraNet w/Case
Comments: - UltraNet w/Case - a small, portable, handheld net launcher that uses compressed CO2. These handheld devices can capture medium to small sized birds and mammals. Our staff does not currently have a method for safely capturing and immobilizing an animal of testing interest, other than relying on passive trapping. These handheld UltraNets would be important for responding to a potential rabid skunk or raccoon that we would like to test. Rabies was detected in wild skunks in the spring of 2024 for the first time in about two decades. One of these reports included a child that was bitten and later treated for rabies post exposure. This is just one example of how having these devices on hand would provide us with the capacity to respond and restrain to a potentially threatening medium sized mammal.>>

Description: Drop Net, 25

Comments:

- Drop Net 25 - This device holds a 25'x25' net above ground that can be used to capture waterfowl. The area under the net is baited with food, and the net is dropped via remote control when the targeted birds are feeding. Surveillance of avian influenza has been a priority of the wildlife health team this winter and spring. This drop net will aid in our surveillance of avian influenza and other diseases in waterfowl.>>

Description: Box Trap

Comments:

- Box Trap - This box trap is a deployable trap that can be left to capture a sick deer of concern. The wildlife health team often responds to requests and concerns from the public about reports of ill deer. These reports from the public have increased with the detection of CWD in the state. At the moment, we do not have the capacity to respond to a live sickly deer, unless a Conservation Officer is currently available to meet us and euthanize the animal. This trap would provide the opportunity to deploy it, capture, and sample the animal for diseases of concern.>>
