These three cylinders are standard reference material (SRM) cylinders. They are the top tier of gaseous cylinder traceability and authority. These cylinders are manufactured and certified by the United States government's National Institute of Standards and Technology. There is no higher level of gaseous cylinder traceability or authority in the United States. These three SRM cylinders are essential for the operations of the Quality Assurance Section Standards Laboratory. As a standards laboratory we are tasked with performing gaseous cylinder verifications and certifications. The SRM cylinders will be used to calibrate lab equipment prior to performing gaseous cylinder verifications and certifications. As these SRM cylinders are the highest authority and traceability in gaseous cylinders, the lab equipment calibrated to these SRM cylinders will provide the most accurate results. These three SRM cylinders will replaced lower tier GMIS cylinders that will begin to expire in the upcoming year. These three SRM cylinders will be purchased with FY2027 monies and are included on the approved supply list for the 105 grant.
