At that meeting, Patricia Levesque, CEO of ExcelinEd provided public testimony, research, and recommendations to the Board in regard to the State's A-F Accountability system for measuring school performance, which the Board is currently in the process of reviewing and revising.

State Why Acceptance is in the Public Interest: ExcelinEd, a nonprofit organization, organizes an annual National Summit on Education Reform. Considered as the nation's premier gathering of education reformers, the conference provides state and local policymakers, education leaders and advocates with comprehensive information on evolving laws, new trends, successful policies and the latest innovations that are transforming education for the 21st century. By learning what is working—and not working—in other states and school districts, attendees leave the National Summit armed with the knowledge and networks to advance bold education reform in their states. This conference annually serves as a catalyst for energizing and accelerating the reform movement across the nation.

As a member of the Board, it is in the public's interest that Dr. Ernest attend this event to represent Indiana and to bring back valuable information from the resources mentioned above, as well as all of the other topics that will be discussed during the conference.
