

Jared Prentice serves as Indiana's Inspector General, appointed by Governor Braun to lead the state's efforts in promoting transparency, accountability, and ethical governance. A licensed attorney with a strong foundation in both public service and corporate compliance, Jared brings over a decade of experience in legal oversight, ethics, and records management. His career includes leadership roles at Deloitte, where he directed firmwide compliance and AI initiatives, and at Elevance Health, where he led enterprise records and information governance.

Earlier in his career, Jared established the compliance department at the Indiana Department of Revenue and served as a Deputy Prosecuting Attorney in Marion County. He holds a Juris Doctor degree from IU McKinney School of Law, is a Certified Compliance & Ethics Professional, and currently serves as Executive Vice President of Business Ethics Indiana. Jared's work reflects a deep commitment to ethical leadership, data-informed decision-making, and modernizing compliance practices in both government and industry.

Sarah E. Kamhi is originally from Indianapolis, Indiana. Ms. Kamhi received her B.A. in Journalism and Media Studies and a minor in History graduating in three years (instead of four years) with honors from the University of Nevada, Las Vegas in 2006. In 2007, Ms. Kamhi received her J.D. from Thomas M. Cooley School of Law Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Ms. Kamhi was admitted to practice law in the State of Indiana, Southern and Northern Indiana District Courts in 2010. She served as a Staff Attorney – Contract & Real Estate for the Indiana Bureau of Motor Vehicles for almost five (5) years, focusing on contract law, real estate law, bankruptcy law, copyright law, and trademark law. In 2015, Ms. Kamhi joined the Indiana Economic Development Corporation (IEDC). Serving as the IEDC's first Deputy General Counsel, Ms. Kamhi focused on contract law, real estate law, board governance matters, public records requests, and ethics.

In late 2017, Ms. Kamhi joined the Indiana Department of Revenue. She is the Assistant General Counsel – Legal Services Department supporting a team of attorneys and legal support staff. The Legal Services team handles over 26 areas of law as in house counsel to the Department and under the direction of General Counsel, Christopher Russell. The Legal Services team provides legal advice to the entire agency, its divisions and staff at DOR. The Legal Services team serves as in-house counsel for a nearly thirty-billion-dollar enterprise in state and local tax. The Legal Services team also oversees the preparation and execution of various confidential agreements. Further, the Legal Services team works closely with transportation carriers and the laws that may affect those carriers. As the Crossroads of America, over 400,000 motor carriers are registered in Indiana, while thousands more cross the state's borders daily. Legal Services provides DOR's Motor Carrier Services division with legal guidance on a variety of matters. The Legal Services team also handles public records requests in accordance with the Indiana Access to Public Records Act (APRA) and review of certain tax matters for taxpayers through our power of attorney working group.

Ms. Kamhi serves as the Chair of the International Fuel Tax Association – Attorney Advisory Committee and the Parliamentarian of the International Registration Plan, Dispute Resolution Committee. Ms. Kamhi enjoys mentoring future lawyers and providing them with excellent networking experiences; one can often spot several interns each semester working in Legal Services.

When she is not working, she is traveling with friends and family. Her 4-year-old tri-color Cavalier King Charles Spaniel, Ireland Elaine, is generally by her side in her adventures and enjoys ferry boat rides on their annual trips to Mackinac Island, Michigan.

Cynthia A. Baker, as the founding Director of the Program on Law and State Government (PLSG) and a Clinical Professor of Law at the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law, is able to follow one of her passions: a deep interest in the confluence of law, governance, and government. Her primary teaching responsibilities include: the PLSG externship course, state and local government law, and higher education law. She also serves as the faculty advisor law students interested in independent state government related projects, law students who are earning the JD/MPA joint degree, and MJ students with a focus on public administration and government.

Baker currently serves on the law school's faculty executive committee, as chair of the law school's Assessment and Teaching Committee, and chair of an ISBA workgroup addressing legal questions regarding government lawyers involvement in providing pro bono representation. In the recent past, Baker has served as the Dean's designee on the Commission for Indiana's Legal Future, the law school's Strategic Planning Committee, and as the law school's Director of Experiential Learning. Baker has also served as the chair of the Section on State and Local Government Law of the Association of American Law Schools (AALS) and as the co-chair of the law school's ABA Reaccreditation Committee. Past leadership positions have included serving as the faculty member appointment to Indiana's Commission for Higher Education, as a co-chair of the State Administrative Law Committee of the ABA's Section of Administrative Law and Regulatory Practice, and several appointments as a member of Indiana's Code Revision Committee.

Before joining the law school in 1997, Baker was a Section Chief of the Indiana Department of Environmental Management's (IDEM's) Office of Legal Counsel and also served as legal counsel to IDEM's Office of Solid and Hazardous Waste Management. Prior to her work at IDEM, she was a judicial clerk to the Hon. Robert D. Rucker of the Indiana Court of Appeals, now retired from the Indiana Supreme Court. She earned her J.D. from Valparaiso School of Law where she served as a note editor and contributing author to the Valparaiso Law Review and graduated magna cum laude.

Elizabeth Walker serves as the Deputy General Counsel and Director of Operations for the Indiana Professional Licensing Agency (IPLA). Over the past two years, Walker has developed and now leads many of the centralized functions of the agency, including the Office of Litigation Management, the IPLA Customer Contact Center and the Senior Licensing Analysts.

Before working for the IPLA, Walker served as Assistant General Counsel for the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission. At the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission, Walker served as legal advisor and liaison to the Underground Plant Protection Advisory Committee and the Pipeline Safety Division, providing legal advice on matters regarding the enforcement of gas pipeline safety laws. Additionally, she followed energy transmission policy and regulation and provided support to Commissioner Sarah Freeman and Commissioner David Ober. Prior to her work at the IURC, Walker served as a Deputy Prosecuting Attorney for nearly eight years.

Walker earned her law degree from the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law. Additionally, Walker earned a Master of Public Affairs, concentrating in Public Management, from the Indiana University Paul H. O'Neal School of Public and Environmental Affairs and a bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Indiana.

Will Deane serves as a Staff Attorney at the OIG. Will provides ethics advice to state employees and assists the OIG's special agents with investigations into potential ethics and criminal code violations within the executive branch of Indiana state government. Will began working with the OIG in the Fall of 2024 after graduating from the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law.

Greg Anderson is the Deputy Director of Administration for the Indiana Supreme Court Disciplinary Commission and Judicial Qualifications Commission, beginning in July 2022.
