Describe the conflict of interest:
A business named Thought Kitchen LLC has applied to the IDOA for certification as a woman-owned business enterprise. IDOA certifies such businesses. See IC 4-13-16.5; 25 IAC 5. The members of Thought Kitchen, LLC are two former IDOA employees who, as they were leaving IDOA, offered me a position with their company. I did not accept the offer and have not entered salary negotiations. Nevertheless, they have made clear that it is a standing offer. I believe that the combination of an open offer of employment, and a request for the business to be certified by IDOA triggers my reporting requirement under IC 4-2-6-9. I have notified my appointing authority and ethics officer in writing, and have left instructions that I be walled off from this certification decision.

Good morning, Rebecca,

I would like to notify you of the same situation regarding the conversations with Thought Kitchen, LLC and my possible employment. I, too, have not accepted the offer. I have already recused myself from processing Thought Kitchen LLC's file and made Kesha aware that she is to communicate with you and Tammy when and if she has questions or needs guidance.

I will also file a written disclosure with the Office of the Inspector General.

Best regards,

Rebecca,

Thought Kitchen, LLC has applied to the Division of Supplier Diversity for certification as a Woman-Owned Business Enterprise. Thought Kitchen's members are Lesley Crane and Jill Carnell.

Lesley and Jill, on their way out of IDOA, offered me a position with their business. I did not accept nor have I pursued salary negotiations. Nevertheless, their offer and my response probably constitutes a back-and-forth exchange with a potential employer, consequently triggering the provisions of IC 4-2-6-9, which require me to notify you and IDOA's ethics officer, Tammy Glickman, in writing of a conflict.

I also am required to file a written disclosure with the Office of the Inspector General, which I will do.

I should from this point be walled off from any knowledge or discussion of Thought Kitchen's certification application.

John
