About ISDA: DSC

The Indiana State Department of Agriculture (ISDA) Division of Soil Conservation (DSC) works to promote and improve Indiana's soil, water and natural resources through conservation programs, technical assistance, and partnerships with both local and federal entities. Through programs like IMAGE, the division supports farmers, landowners and the environment by promoting practices that improve water quality, enhance soil health, and strengthen long term agriculture sustainability.

Support livestock management and grazing infrastructure

Improve soil health and water quality

Invest in long-term conservation for future generations

Why it Matters

By reducing erosion and nutrient runoff, these practices help keep valuable soil, phosphorus, and nitrogen on the land instead of in Indiana's waterways, supporting cleaner water, healthier farms, and more resilient agricultural communities.
