Disaster Survivors

1. Emotional Recovery
   Disasters are upsetting experiences for everyone involved. Children, senior citizens, people with disabilities and people for whom English is not their first language are especially at risk and are likely to need extra care and help. But everyone, even the people whom others look up to for guidance and assistance, is entitled to their feelings and deserves support throughout the recovery process.

2. Coping With Disaster
   https://www.ready.gov/coping-with-disaster
   The emotional toll that disaster brings can sometimes be even more devastating than the financial strains of damage and loss of home, business or personal property.

Mental Health

1. Risk of Suicide
   https://www.nami.org/Learn-More/Mental-Health-Conditions/Related-Conditions/Risk-of-Suicide

   Suicidal thoughts or behaviors are both damaging and dangerous and are therefore considered a psychiatric emergency. Anyone experiencing these thoughts should seek immediate assistance from a health or mental health care provider. Having suicidal thoughts does not mean someone is weak or flawed.
2. Teen Mental Health and Suicide
http://teenmentalhealth.org/learn/suicide/
Suicide itself is not a mental disorder, but one of the most important causes of suicide is mental illness – most often depression, bipolar disorder (manic depression), schizophrenia and substance use disorders. Learn about these prevention programs.

Veterans
1. Make the Connection: Death of Family or Friends
https://maketheconnection.net/events/death-family-friends

Youth
1. Youth Suicide Prevention School-Based Guide
http://theguide.fmhi.usf.edu/
The Youth Suicide Prevention School-Based Guide is designed to provide accurate, user-friendly information. The guide is not a program but a tool that provides a framework for schools to assess their existing or proposed suicide prevention efforts (through a series of checklists) and provides resources and information that school administrators can use to enhance or add to their existing program.

2. What to Tell Children After a Suicide

It can be very challenging for adults to know what to say to children following a suicide. Adults may find it difficult to tell children what has happened, however, communicating clearly with children is helpful to them in dealing with their grief and in feeling safe and secure.
