Biographical Note:

According to the State Historical Society of Wisconsin Letter of 1933, Captain William Harrod was born in Pennsylvania. He held his commission in the military through Virginia. His home was located on Ten Mile Creek, tributary to the Monongahela River, which at the time Capt. Harrod resided there, was claimed for Virginia, but now is part of Pennsylvania. He was still serving for Virginia when he joined Col. George Rogers Clark on his Revolutionary campaign. Capt. William Harrod was married in 1765, and fathered four children, two daughters and two sons. Capt. Harrod died on October 9, 1801.

Scope and Content Note:

This collection is a scrapbook that contains quite a few Photostat copies of the Draper Manuscripts from the Wisconsin Historical Society. The portions of the Draper Manuscripts that these items represent are the "C" Boone Manuscripts, the "J" George Rogers Clark Manuscripts, and the "NN" Pittsburgh and Northwest Virginia Manuscripts. The Indiana State Library retains all of these series in entirety on microfilm. The items that are Photostat copies are of pieces from the mid to late 18th Century. There are also a few items that are not from the Draper collection, these include a map of Virginia, a transcription of a newspaper article, a photograph of a headstone, a letter from the Wisconsin Historical Society, and a transcription of some manuscripts in the Filson Club Archives, in Louisville, Kentucky. These items are from the early 20th Century. Originally these papers were held in the Genealogy Division of the Indiana State Library.
