Next Indiana Bookshelf celebrates Hoosier Bicentennial through reading and conversation

Libraries, schools and community organizations seeking to celebrate the Indiana's bicentennial in 2016 through reading and conversation are encouraged to apply for a new resource called the Next Indiana Bookshelf. Created by The Indiana Center for the Book and Indiana Humanities, 55 groups will receive the Bookshelf sets, which include a copy of each of the 13 titles designed to encourage thinking and discussion about the present and future of Indiana.

The Next Indiana Bookshelf includes fiction, nonfiction, essays and

Bicentennial Toolkit for Libraries

The Bicentennial of the state of Indiana is upon us! What will your library do to celebrate? If you haven't started thinking about it, get ideas from the Bicentennial Toolkit for Libraries brought to you by the Indiana Center for the Book. The toolkit includes a Quick Guide for some springboard ideas for you and your committee as well as lists of programs to try, Indiana resources, storytime themes, and lots more.

Whatever you are doing, be sure to let the Indiana State Library know. One of our projects is to document your projects. You can read more about it in this ISL Bicentennial Public Library

SRCS Announcement

The Indiana State Library, with the assistance of a panel of reviewers drawn from academic and public libraries, has selected a vendor for the new Statewide Remote Circulation System, commonly referred to as SRCS (pronounced "Circs").

The selected vendor is Auto-Graphics who has been providing Patron- Initiated Request service across ILS platforms for almost 30 years. Auto-Graphics works with most of the major ILS currently in use in Indiana, and is developing connectors for others.

There is still a bit of groundwork to be done before we make the official statewide announcement, but we wanted to let everyone know that the process has started.

In the coming weeks there will be an official announcement, a presentation at ILF and we will be reaching out to each public and academic library to explain the benefits and efficiencies of the system and to identify libraries who are interested in being in the first phase of implementation starting in first half of 2016.

More later, but please plan on attending our presentation at ILF at

Don't forget about the Bicentennial Commission. The Commission was appointed in 2011 to oversee the statewide celebration, and includes many resources helpful for librarians.

Warren Branch Library Renovation Plans Unveiled

A relocated entrance, new and separate areas for children and teens, reconfigured restrooms and additional access to technology are key renovation features in store for the Warren Branch of The Indianapolis Public Library, 9701 E. 21st Street.

Plans announced by HCO/OMS architects of Indianapolis follow three public meetings on the first major renovation of the 15,740-square-foot Warren Branch since its opening in 1974. Construction on the $1.1 million project will begin in the first quarter of 2016, with completion scheduled in the fall of 2016.

To improve the branch's service capability to the city's Eastside, the renovation will include more public seating, dedicated study and activity spaces, and additional computers and power outlets for patron use. A redesigned and more welcoming main entrance will be relocated to the building's south side. A new drive-up book drop along the same south side is also planned.

"One of the most requested changes was to move the main entrance closer to the parking lot and develop an option for a vehicular book drop," said project architect Ted A. Givens. "This in turn drove us to seek creative and practical solutions to the interior that will improve the overall functionality of the entire facility."

Upon entering the Library property from 21st Street, patrons will notice a modification to the building's north-facing façade that will improve the Library's presence and recognition. The façade will feature a glass wall to allow more natural lighting into the facility. Within the north section will be a new children's programming room, while separate collections for children, teens and adults, an expanded circulation area, and a marketplace for exhibits and displays will further enhance the new interior design.

Another change involves relocating the branch's community meeting room to the building's west side, where the room's new glass wall also will provide more open lighting.

"I think this will be a worthwhile investment, and I am very excited for our surrounding community that will greatly benefit from the renovation," said Charles Ingram, President of the Grassy Creek Community Association.

The Warren Branch renovation and other planned capital projects are funded from individual bonds approved by the Indianapolis City-County Council totaling over $58 million that will be assessed with no increase in the Library's current debt service tax rate. Library trustees next will authorize bidding of the Warren Branch project with awarding of a contract scheduled in January 2016.

community education and learning needs was announced today by the American Library Association (ALA) and the Chief Officers of State Library Agencies (COSLA). The Library E-rate Assessment Planning (LEAP) project is a two-year initiative that will target five pilot states to develop strategies to increase broadband capacity to local libraries in each state and to increase participation in the E-rate program overall. LEAP states are Alaska, California, Iowa, Kentucky, and North Dakota.

"Nearly one year ago Federal Communications Commission Chairman (FCC) Tom Wheeler challenged libraries (and schools) to use a newly modernized and fully funded E-rate program," ALA President Sari Feldman, said. "In response, ALA and COSLA undertook significant work with their members to expand access to broadband capacity and fulfill the promise of E-rate reform, particularly for those libraries that most lag behind bandwidth benchmarks." The median internet speed for US rural libraries is 10 Mbps, and 15% of rural libraries have speeds of 1.5Mbps or less.
