African Americans have a long and rich history in the United States and in Indiana. This history is reflected in the resources available through collections of the Indiana State Library.

The Genealogy Collection holds a variety of family history resources for the African American genealogist. These include holdings on microfilm, microfiche, in books, and in a growing collection of CDs. A selection of the holdings are provided in this brochure.

The Indiana Collection has a number of African American newspapers from throughout Indiana’s history, including the Indianapolis Recorder. In many cases, these are available on microfilm and can be sent via interlibrary loan to libraries around the country. Recent histories on the Underground Railroad are added as they are published. Materials from the State Board of Colonization and related groups are available. Additional sources include clipping files, directories, histories, biographies, manuscripts, and photographs.

Reference and Government Services has extensive holdings of federal publications, which document the relationship between the African American community and the federal government. In addition, the general collections of the Indiana State Library hold many books on the topic, as well as historical articles in thousands of historic journals and other periodicals.

The History Reference Room, located on the second floor of the State Library, provides additional books for browsing and use by patrons.
