Pool Types Defined:

Competition Pool – any pool intended for use for accredited competitive aquatic events. Competition pools may also be used for recreation and instruction.

Diving Pool – any pool that is designed and constructed primarily for diving and does not have a shallow end.

Interactive Play Attraction – a water attraction, including devices using sprayed, jetted, or other water sources contacting the user and not incorporation a basin and standing or captured water as part of the user activity area, such as splash pads and spray pads.

Plunge Pool – a pool located at the exit end of a waterslide flume and is intended and designed to receive sliders emerging the flume.

Pool Slide – any device used to enter a pool by sliding down an inclined plane or equipment similar to a playground slide.

Public Pool – any pool, other than those pools defined as semi-public pool which is intended to be used for swimming or bathing and is operated by a concessionaire, owner, lessee, operator, or licensee, regardless of whether a fee is charged for use.

Semi-Public Pool – any pool restricted for use by residents, members, or registered guests that is intended to be used for swimming for bathing and is operated solely for and in conjunction with: Hotels, motels, apartments, condominiums, bed and breakfasts, or similar lodgings; camps or mobile home parks; or membership clubs or associations.

Spa – a pool designed for recreation and/or therapeutic use, which is not drained, cleaned, and refilled after each use. The term may include, but is not limited to: Hydrojet circulation; hot water; cold water; mineral baths; air induction systems; or any combination thereof.

Wading Pool – a pool used for bathing that has a maximum depth of two (2) feet.

Waterslide – a recreational ride that is a sloped trough-like or tubular structure using water as a lubricant and method of regulating rider velocity and terminates in a plunge pool, swimming pool, or a specifically designed deceleration structure.

Wave Pool – any pool having a bottom sloped upward from the deep end to the surface at the shallow end with equipment installed at the deep end to create wave motions in the water.

Zero Depth Pool – any pool with a bottom sloped upward from the deep end to the surface level at the shallow end.
