Frequently Asked Questions

Can a participant re-enter the program if the participant was forced to close the IDA account because the time expired?

No, the participant cannot re-enter the program at a later date. According to the Indiana code, a participant is only allowed one IDA account.
If the participant never used any match or personal savings, is the participant still ineligible to receive another IDA account?

This question is currently under legislative reviewed. As soon as the state office receives confirmation, then the network will be informed.

How does a participant appeal if he/she is close to a home purchase but it won’t be completed by December 31, 2014?

All participants have the option to appeal any ruling with the state office. The appeal will be taken under advisement and a final decision will be rendered.

How does the agency handle participants who were told that the accounts never have to be closed?
According to the grant application with AFI, program participants have five years to complete the program. After five years, the funds are no longer active with the federal government or the state. If the participant was not matched with AFI funds, then the agency should notify the state office for further instruction. In most instances, the accounts will be closed.

What does an agency do with accounts that were given a two-year purchase period?

The agency should contact IHCDA to see if the grant is still active before proceeding.
Dear IDA Participant:

Our records indicate that your family currently participates in Indiana’s Individual Development Account Program (or IDA). For over five years, you have saved funds that were matched with federal and state dollars to purchase an asset: post-secondary education, job training, build or expand a business, owner occupied rehabilitation, or purchase your first home. We have been excited to increase the economic viability of your family by creating access to assets and supporting your final growth.

However, major program changes have taken place since you joined the program. Participants are no longer allowed to maintain open accounts after five years. We must inform you that your personal savings and match accounts will be closed. The IDA program allows Hoosiers to save and purchase assets for a four year period. All participants are then given an additional 12 months to make a final allowable purchase. If the funds are not spent at the end of five years, your local agency must close the personal savings and match accounts at the local bank. No more purchases will be allowed with remaining funds. Your personal savings will be returned to you, and the federal and state match funds are returned to the state office.

Here are the next steps in the process of closing your accounts. Your local agency will be closing your account at the local bank where your savings were deposited. Your personal savings will be distributed to you by December 31, 2014. The federal and state match funds will be returned to Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority, or the state office that runs the IDA program.

If you have any questions or concerns about this information, please contact your local agency at

Sincerely,

Taura Edwards
Director of Community Programs
