One was she had failed to call the physician prior to end of shift on a resident. (The patient had been evaluated by the NP). The nurse that was taking over the end of the shift was an RN. She consulted with the RN on the patient. Another reason was because she did not put the patient into a sitting position. She didn't put the patient in a sitting position because she didn't have a hospital bed and didn't feel it would be safe. She was also disciplined for demonstrating poor judgment when assisting a QMA which led to medication error and did not recognize the error. The dose was not appropriate for the drug. The wrong dose was given. She states the RN made a lot of false statements regarding the situation. The medication error was noticed when the RN wrote the order. The patient was supposed to receive 10mg but she received 50mg. The resident was examined and the doctor felt that she had had a stroke. The resident was sent to the hospital. The resident passed away. The QMA and the RN were not terminated over the situation but she was. She is currently working. She has had issues where she misread MAR's. The wording on the MAR was rewritten because it was very confusing. Another issue she had was when a nurse put in facts of an order in the computer. She was told to change the times on the order but then it made it look like she did the initial entry even though she did not.
