

Substance use disorder has struck Indiana's farm and rural communities hard.

74% of farmers and farmworkers say they have been directly impacted by the opioid epidemic.

3 in 4 farmers say it is easy to access large amounts of opioids without a prescription.

only 1 in 3 rural adults say it would be easy to access addiction treatment.

Rural Indiana can overcome this epidemic through strong farmer-to-farmer support and the support of good neighbors and communities.
