INTERNAL CONTROL SCENARIOS

Let’s Discuss

Scenario #1

- It is the end of the day and time to close out the drawer up front. There are 3 employees in the Clerks office that are helping customers, taking money and issuing receipts. When reconciling the drawer to the receipts it is determined that cash is short $100.
Scenario #2

- In June, Sarah, the bookkeeper in the Clerks office, who was on maternity leave for 6 weeks returned to work. Upon coming back Sarah realized that the bank reconcilement has not been done since March. Positive pay is used to deter check fraud and 10 fraudulent checks were cashed totaling $48,000. The bank refuses to refund since the checks cleared over 30 days prior.

Scenario #3

- Raymond is newly elected as the County Clerk. His first day in the office he goes to the bank to get his name put on the account and do all the paperwork. Once the paperwork is all filled out one of the Bank Tellers stops him and gives him 36 bank deposit receipts from the prior year that the previous Clerk never picked up.
Scenario #4

- Kelli is the bookkeeper in the Clerk office and has been with the county for 25 years. Once the girls up reconcile their drawers, they turn it in to Kelli who makes the daily deposits. At the end of the month Kelli is also responsible for reconciling and filling out the Report of Collections to turn over the county funds.

Scenario #5

- A new employee Randall is responsible for completing the supplemental annual financial report to give to the Auditor for inclusion in the County’s Financial Statements. Randall only includes the ISETS information and leaves the trust off completely, which make the financial statements materially incorrect.
