PRIVACY STATEMENT FOR IHCDA HOMEOWNERSHIP PROGRAMS

This statement describes how IHCDA receives, uses, processes, and protects the homeowner data it receives through its homeownership programs.

How Information is Provided to IHCDA

Lenders submit information regarding borrowers and their loans, including but not limited to, loan applications, appraisals, tax transcripts or other income documentation, closing disclosures and other supporting loan information and documentation etc. to IHCDA through IHCDA's DMS Authority Online ("DMS"). Occasionally, lenders will send this information via e-mail.

How Information is used by IHCDA

IHCDA uses the information that it receives from the lenders to determine among other things, whether the borrower, property, purchase type, purchase price and loan type are eligible for the homeownership programs. Additionally, IHCDA uses demographic data from the loans to determine if borrowers may be eligible for other IHCDA programs, develop new homeownership programs and/or to better market information regarding its current homeownership programs.

Privacy Protocols Related to the DMS Authority Online

Borrower and loan information is maintained in DMS. DMS uses a role-based security system. IHCDA controls the setup and assignment of rights for IHCDA staff. IHCDA users that are given access to DMS can view data regarding any reservation/loan in DMS. The system tracks all users who access information regarding any reservation/loan along with the date/time that each user accessed this information.

IHCDA controls setting up lenders and setting up an initial user for each lender, the initial user will administer that lender's accounts. The lender's administrative user is responsible for configuring that lender's own users and assigning roles. Users of a specific lender can see all of that lender's reservations/loans. These users can also see reservations/loans for organizations for which the lender is a parent.

IHCDA transfers a data file to U.S. Bank daily, that contains loan information regarding loans that are being serviced by U.S. Bank in its role as IHCDA's Master Servicer. U.S. Bank sends IHCDA status information related to these loans.

The majority of users that log into DMS are either lenders or IHCDA staff. The only other group that has any access is the hedger. The hedger has a login but only has limited access to a couple reports.

Privacy Protocols Related to IHCDA and its Staff

As an entity created by the State of Indiana, IHCDA and its employees are required to comply with the Indiana State Code with respect to the following goals: (1) protecting the privacy of certain information, as set forth in IC. 4-1-10 et seq.; and (2) providing open access to information which is not excepted from the open access requirements, as set forth in IC. 5-14-3 et. Seq. Some types of documentation that cannot be disclosed under IC. 5-14-3 et seq., would be information considered confidential via State or federal law and financial information.

Each State employee must attend training on proper use of Information Resources which includes all State hardware, software, data, information, network, computing devices, phones, and other information technology and execute the State of Indiana Information Resources Use Agreement.

Additionally, IHCDA employees are required to sign an IHCDA Confidentiality Agreement which emphasizes each Employee's duty to (1) keep the confidential information, that it receives, views, or has access to, confidential; and (2) protect confidential information that it receives, views, or has access to from unauthorized disclosure, whether accidental or intentional.
